Merry Christmas and Happy New Year
WHAT ABOUT TRADITIONS?

We frequently read of some unfortunate accident that occurs due to some childish and senseless traditions which are found in most of our colleges and universities. The purpose of these institutions is, among others, to mold character. If traditions of this type don't serve the purpose of molding the character of students, they develop their animal-like and sadistic instincts. We Americans pride ourselves as being a just and fair people when it comes to dealing with our fellowmen. However, some students who favor the so-called "ratting" of freshmen have this feeble defense for their actions, "We were treated this way when we were freshmen, so we have to get even." They fail to realize that the people they get even with have nothing whatsoever to do with their ordeals. But evidently the high and mighty upperclassmen still believe in the old saying of "an eye for an eye, a tooth for a tooth."

We at Clinch Valley are fortunate in that we have no traditions which we must adhere to. I sincerely believe that the students of Clinch Valley College are intelligent and mature enough to prevent any such traditions from ever becoming established. If we must set up traditions, I am sure we can find ones which we can be proud of and which will serve to elevate our school above the shortcomings of most colleges.

LET'S PROTECT OUR PROPERTY

One of the greatest characteristics of the American people is the pride they take in their work and in their property. Every American is very proud of anything he owns whether it be a priceless gem or some worthless souvenir. As Americans, we of the Clinch Valley Branch of the University of Virginia, should be very proud of our school. Too many of us forget that the school really belongs to us. Anyone will be guilty if he defaces any of the good new equipment that we have-desks, tables, chairs, etc.

The school belongs to us. The future of this growing institution depends on us, the beginners, and as we take pride in our building and in the traditions we are establishing, our school will stand as a solid foundation throughout the years.

A lady of fashion was out airing her Pekingese when she stopped to look down into an excavation where men were working. A tractor was tugging away without success, trying to haul a giant crane out of the hole.

Presently the foreman approached the woman and asked: "Lady, could we borrow your Pekingese?" "Whatever for?" "'We'll hitch him up and pull out that crane."

"What? Tie up this poor little dog to that big crane? It's impossible."

"That's all right, lady," leered the foreman. "We have whips."

Everyone has been wondering who has been causing all the noise in the lounge. That person is the Glee Club doing their daily rehearsal. The choir, directed by Professor Smitty, includes the following students: Diane Bryson, Shirley Porter, Delores Booth, Joyce Gardner, Barbara Minstead, James Varner, and Elizabeth Colley. Linda Addington is the pianist. She may not have curls like Liberace, but that's no sign she can't play!

The choral group went to Big Stone Gap Wednesday, the 24th of November, to entertain the Big Stone Kiwanis Club. There they were served a big chicken dinner. The group sang three selections which included Diane Bryson’s soloing Believe and Barbara Minstead’s soloing Whither Thou Goest. A beautiful background for the solo was furnished by the rest of the group.

New music has been ordered for the choir. At present, they are learning Begin the Beguine and You’ll Never Walk Alone. Since they were treated to such a good dinner at Big Stone, a lot more students have been wanting to join the choir. Plans are being made now so that during the semester anyone who can carry a tune and wishes to do so may join the Glee Club. The entire choir is looking forward to going back to Big Stone because they shot muffs did like that southern chicken!

Library Addition

The University of Va. Clinch Valley Division Library has been greatly improved by the addition of several hundred books received from the University of Virginia. The many books received include most any category of reading that one may desire. A thorough coverage of American History, College Mathematics, Economics, Literature, and Fictional Novels may be had from these books. Several dictionaries and encyclopedias were also obtained for use by the students in the library.

All students need to realize the importance of taking care of our library. Students who use the library as a place for reference or as a place of study will be able to work effectively as they take proper care of encyclopedias, dictionaries, magazines, and newspapers.

SOCIAL DANCE

On November 21st, the Thanksgiving Party and Dance was held at the Fort DeClade V.P.W. Post. The party got underway about 9:00 o’clock. There were several guests attending, including the faculty. Everyone seemed to have had a good time. The faculty was pleased with the orderly conduct maintained.

The Social Committee met Friday, December 10th. It was then decided that a Christmas Party would be held on December 17th at the Wise Clubhouse. Please come and support the school.

The True Spirit of Christmas

The effervescent yuletide in all its splendor is being ushered in all over the nation by gaily colored decorations and advertisements, by a jolly Santa on the street corner, by crowds of shoppers busily intent on their purchases, and by pungent cedar tree heaped high in the market, modestly unaware of the prominent part they are about to play. Hurriedly elbowing our way through most of the season, we guiltily strive to acquire the holiday spirit only to realize we haven't succeeded when we find ourselves thinking, "I'm glad Christmas comes only once a year."

Unfortunately Christmas has numerous interpretations, many of them superficial, which influence our attitude toward the celebration of this most hallowed day. We are often so absorbed in finding something suitable for Sally that we dash madly from store to store, perhaps absent-mindedly dropping a dime in the Salvation Army box on the corner without stopping to wonder why. Then we don't understand why we can't get the holiday spirit this year, not realizing that we haven't really given all of ourselves to Christmas. We must remember those people who are less fortunate than we. This year, especially in this part of the state, there are many little children who on Christmas morning will be told, "Santa Claus was so busy that he couldn't get here this year."

There are many families who will have a meager Christmas dinner and many families who will be cold because they lack clothing and fuel. Let's each of us join with a church, a club, or some other organization in helping to make this a happier Christmas for someone else. Your contribution of time, money, or other gifts will make some child smile on Christmas morning, and some parent will whisper a prayer of heartfelt thanks. In return you will find that you have the true Christmas spirit which comes only from giving generously to others.

Larry Branham, Jim Riffe, and Grady Maggard combined scoring punches to lead the Clinch Valley College five to a 69-63 win over the Clincho Hi School tonight in a basketball exhibition tilt.

The battle was a nip-and-tuck affair for the first two quarters; but the College five broke loose in the last half to break the game wide open, scoring 37 points to the losers 29.

Larry Branham paced Clinch Valley College's scoring by dumping in a very impressive 20 points. His consistent sharp-shooting from the midstripe was outstanding. Grady Maggard zipped the basket for 18 points; while Jim Riffe and L. C. Mondrake added 15 and 13 points, respectively.

Clincho's scoring attack was led by Linkous with a very nifty 21 points. Linkous played an outstanding game at center. Davis and Selfe contributed 12 and 9 points each. Anderson and Gilbert each added 7 points.

CVC TRIPS CLINCHO HI 69-63

Jamie Roy Mullins led CVC's scoring attack by tallying for 23 points. Larry Branham and Jim Riffe hit for 15 and 13 points, respectively.

Gary Kilbourne was the leading scorer for the Appalachia Bulldogs with 20 points. Terry Holloman tallied for 17 points, while Lewis added 15.

In the opening seconds of the first quarter Appalachia's Gary Kilbourne hit a field basket from the midstripe to give Appalachia a 2-0 lead which they never relinquished. Appalachia led 15-16 at the end of the second quarter, and were never in serious trouble until the third quarter when the Clinch Valley five came roaring back with a 21 point third period rally to pull within three points of the Bulldogs. The Bulldogs led by the slim margin of 43-40 at the buzzer of the third quarter. Appalachia scored 20 points to the Valley's 15 in the final canto. The final score read, Appalachia 63, CVC 55.

Here's a new added attraction to keep you posted on the latest dope at C. V. C.

Congratulations, Walton Meade! How's the new baby girl? Think of us when you walk the floor when she's crying. Looks like Bill Moore and Jean Roberts are finally going to take that walk toward the altar. Right, Bill? Peggy Hall seems to like a certain brand of milk. It would happen to be "PET," wouldn't it, Peggy? Is it true, Paul Kilgore, that you and Pat Collier are going steady? Looks as if we may have another married guy at C. V. C. Ronald S., how about that ring on your little finger? Gals, it looks as if we're going to lose all these guys. Carter C., what happened to your trips to Norton? Having car trouble? It seems Benetta is tying the knot Christmas. Well, everyone wishes you the best of luck. Hey, Harold K., what's the interest in Pounlately? Naughty boy. Must be teacher's pet. Whose red Olds has Linda A. been riding in lately? It isn't someone stationed at Hampton, is it? Carol Sue, are you and Dean Campbell going to get hep again Friday night? Clear the floor and make way for the cats. Hey, Paul C., Big Stone is still looking your way. What's the matter? Lost interest? All was quiet this week at Glenn's. What's wrong, boys? Afraid of Zollie or have you enough yellow sheets to paper your walls? That's the dope. None we didn't step on anyone's toes. Anyway, here is wishing you all a Merry Christmas and a very Happy New Year.

"Pleasing you keeps us in Business"
On an early morning breakfast food show, the announcer was quizzing a six-year-old guest.
"Hello, sonny, what cereal do you prefer in the morning?" he asked bouncily.
There was no answer.
"You do eat cereal, don't you?" insisted the emcee, with a smile at the audience.
No answer.
"Now come on, you mustn't be shy!" he laughed, "Tell us your favorite cereal."
Suddenly the little boy's voice piped, "Mister, you're hurting my arm."
