Prosals Academic Building High: Ford Bid On Faculty Housing in Jam

Houses were opened on two Clinch Valley College buildings this week, according to Dr. George Zehmer, Dean of Administration. Although the annual the annual appropriation for academic building and faculty housing has been increased, the total amount available is still inadequate to handle all building needs. The two houses are now being used for academic purposes, while the other academic buildings remain in use. The faculty housing will be completed this summer.

Dean Zehmer described how the decision was made to allocate funds for the two new buildings. He explained that the academic buildings were scheduled for construction within the next two years, and that the faculty housing project was also planned for the same period. The college administration decided to allocate funds for both projects, but in a manner that would allow for some flexibility in the construction schedule. The decision was made based on the needs of the college and the availability of funds, and it is hoped that the two buildings will be completed as soon as possible.

Outpost Elects

The Outpost Award Election was held recently in the Clinch Valley area, and a new group of outstanding students was elected. The election was held to recognize the contributions of these students to their communities and to give them an opportunity to showcase their leadership skills. The group included several students who have already demonstrated their commitment to their communities through their involvement in various activities and organizations. The election was held to recognize the contributions of these students to their communities and to give them an opportunity to showcase their leadership skills.

Vanhever Heads Group

A group of CVC men, meeting for the second time, last Thursday, chose Fred Alslee as senior, Don Brotan, Don Campbell, Don Regey, and others. The group was formed to meet the need of developing the group of outstanding students, and it also serves to promote camaraderie and to recognize the contributions of these students to their communities and to their college. The group will meet regularly to discuss ideas and plans and to organize activities and events.

The students at Clinch Valley College are currently involved in the academic building high project, which has been the subject of much discussion and debate. The students have been working hard to ensure that the project is completed as soon as possible, and they are looking forward to seeing the new buildings take shape. The students are proud of their contributions to the project and are excited about the progress that has been made so far.

CVC Celebrates Internationally

The CVC Celebrates Internationally program is an ongoing initiative that aims to promote cultural exchange and to foster understanding among people from different countries. The program includes a variety of activities and events, such as international festivals, cultural exchanges, and language classes. The program is led by experienced educators and cultural experts who have extensive experience in promoting cultural exchange.

The program is open to all students and faculty members, and it is a great opportunity to learn about different cultures and to make new friends. The program is supported by a variety of organizations, including government agencies, foundations, and private companies. The program is a great way to learn about different cultures and to make new friends.
Styles For Men

Three different articles have been written here in succession with the same title, "Fashion Trends," by the three editors. Each of these is a different story, each bringing a new twist to the current fashion topic. The articles are well-written, and the authors are very specific in their descriptions of the latest trends.

On and Off

On the second page, there is an article about the new fashion trends. The article is well-written, and the author does a good job of explaining the current trends. The author also provides useful tips on how to incorporate these trends into one's wardrobe.

PROPOSALS

The building authorities at the University have 30 days, however, to accept one, or reject all bids. So local officials and supporters of the college are still uncertain as to what the final picture will be here.

In summary, the director of the college, who was present in the meeting, said that the competitive Ford-LaFollette home construction project would be resolved, and was even more confused before leaving Charlottesville to know where the additional $67,900 could be used in the academic building, even though contract bids may be available. The university board, which handles building contracts, was equally confused, and spent a lot of time studying the possibilities. It was generally agreed that the only way to make the concrete decision was to Governor Almond, to obtain a specific appropriation for the complete academic building, plus furnishings, just as was done with the General Assembly to add an amendment to their appropriation which would permit the building authorities at the current appropriation for completion of the academic building. This would be an opportunity to build another facility, however, for immediate construction of the auditorium-gymnasium building, and the Charlottesville board was not as excited in that plans as such a building can be built.

Included in the侯 at $87,900, to be used in other areas, for the academic building, would include such things as driveways, water and sewer connections, and other similar auxiliaries, which, if needed, for this particular building on the campus, would also save any additional buildings that may be constructed later.

The University board will give closest consideration to all of these possibilities, in hopes that they may come up with a satisfactory maser within the 20-day time limit, to permit awarding contract for the construction of this larger academic building.
