Pan American Day was Celebrated at Clinch Valley College on Tuesday, April 14. The observance of Pan American Day was sponsored by the Social Committee, with Mrs. Edith N. Crockett as first director. Mr. Crockett is now Area Director of the University of Virginia. The observance was a day of cultural events that included music, dance, and speeches that stressed the importance of Pan American unity between the nations of the Americas.

The celebration began with a formal dinner at 6:30 p.m. in the cafeteria. The guests were members of the faculty, staff, and students of Clinch Valley College, as well as representatives from the University of Virginia. The dinner was followed by a variety of cultural performances that showcased the rich diversity of Hispanic and Latin American cultures.

The highlight of the evening was the performance of a traditional Mexican dance by a group of female students. The performance was accompanied by a live mariachi band, which added to the festive atmosphere. The audience was captivated by the intricate footwork and vibrant costumes of the dancers, and the music provided a joyful and uplifting backdrop.

After the dinner and performances, the evening concluded with a social gathering, where attendees could continue to celebrate and exchange ideas. The event was a success and provided a platform for the students and faculty to learn more about the rich history and culture of the Americas.

Overall, the Pan American Day observance at Clinch Valley College was a memorable event that brought together members of the campus community to celebrate the unity and diversity of the Americas.
Between The Bookshelves

By Carl H. Collins

The library is celebrating its 50th birthday this year. I, for one, have been a regular customer for the past 40 years, and I'm planning on being there for the next 10 or 20 years. The place is full of wonderful books, and I always enjoy spending an hour or two browsing through the stacks.

Campus Custom

Being an old-timer, I have always admired the flower arrangements that are placed throughout the building. They add a touch of elegance and class to the place, and I always make a point of admiring them whenever I'm in the area.

Poly Catalogue

At present the library offers a Poly Catalogue, which is a valuable resource for anyone who is interested in finding specific books. The catalogue is well-organized and easy to use, and I always look forward to using it when I'm looking for a particular book.

Book Rack Notes

If you think that you belong to yourself, Vance Packard’s The Hidden Persuaders may open up for you how much you are being pushed around. How much you are, or are not, may be indicated by your reaction to a movie blur on TV or by what you find in the Sunday newspaper’s Human Types. If you’d rather look at pictures, see where you fit in the popular profiles of Man. Then there are Ruth Benedict’s Patterns of Cultural Growth. Michel de L’Hortant’s The Nature of the Non-Western World. It will stir the curiosity of all that, you are still a realist, you stop right there. Buehler will tell you about The Negro in American Culture Today.

YOU AND HEROES

Man Makes Himself (according to V. Gordon Childe), and so must you make your own life out of this world. Edmund Hamilton directs you to The Greek Way and The Roman Way. Patterson’s Lives can provide many specific examples. MacMullen’s prescriptive manners for The Prince in fifteenth century Italy. Benjamin’s Lewis’s Journal is a witty and cynical scribbling of people who did in eighteenth century England. William James details Variables of Religious Experience. Hymns should recall to older persons the times when you stopped singing.

No matter what your goal in life is, you are. What does interest you? Answer that question! Take the Heart of the Forest, and you will find a new life and a new heart.

DORM

There must be a plan of living that best serves the whole group. Sometimes this plan will not serve an individual girl might desire. We believe this same situation will be faced many times later in life and so it will be that we learn to cope with it in college. Another important benefit of living in the dorm is the greater opportunity it gives us to take an active part in extra-curricular activities such as working on the yearbook, the newspaper, Pan American Day, and the Class of 1960 party. We are convinced that students who do not participate in extracurricular activities definitely miss a valuable part of college life.

We are grateful to Mrs. McCracken for the constant encouragement and guidance she provides us in urging us to derive the greatest possible benefit from dorm life.
