The Annual Retreat of the 1962-64 school year was held at the University of Virginia in Port Blackmore, May 24-25. Both old and new Officers and faculty members met to discuss mutual problems in the improvement of the school system. After luncheon, the first session of Retreat got under way. President Havens called the meeting to order where difficulties of various organizations were discussed until the hour and a half beyond the scheduled time. Then a recess period consisting of dancing and night softball was held. Breakfast began at 7:30 a.m. and at 10:30 a.m. the students were ready to continue the meeting before the next session. Although no definite conclusions were reached various ideas were brought up. Things such as how to improve the college's appearance and make the school's colors to their attractive. The school's colors were talked about.

Hocthann Held At CVC Lounge

A Hoeath had been held in the CVC Lounge May 17. Among the folk music, square dancing music was furnished by the Sanders Brothers. Several students participated in the folk music of the evening. Among the students were Mike Blackwell and Ernie Hall in the Huricane Kings, Karen Benso, Mildred Hall, Diekie Stapleton and a duet from J. J. Kelly High School. Later on in the evening a quartet of "older" folk-singers took the stage, namely Dean Howard, Dorey, Mr. Timzflly and Mr. Gibson. The square dance was called by James Meade. In charge of refreshments were Phyllis Corrett, Edward Shepherd, and Karen Benso.

Physical Fitness Tests Completed

The results have been compiled from the physical fitness program at CVC Lounge. These tests showed a marked improvement this spring. Many of the average fell. The men came out with an over all total of 106 in the percentages. Most of the women scoring higher with a sum of 80. This means that out of every 100 students in college, there are more than the average CVC male and 22 more than the average CVC women.

Before leaving Oak Ridge, the group made a stop at the Norris Dam of the Oak Ridge National Laboratory. The group of students were then taken on a guided tour. Out of the outstanding devices the group saw was the huge atomic reactor which is the nation's chief source for radionuclides. Several different reactors were also observed. About 2000 shipments of radionuclides a month go out from Oak Ridge National Laboratory, to hospitals, industrial plants, and laboratories all over the world, where they have many uses.

Is Our System Based Upon Honor?

Letter To The Editor

Dear Editor,

I have been interested in the subject of Honor Societies and how they function. It seems that there are many different types of Honor Societies, each with their own criteria for membership. Some require high grades, while others are based on other factors such as leadership or volunteer service.

I believe that the concept of an Honor Society is a positive one, as it recognizes students who have achieved a high level of academic success. However, I also think that it is important to consider the broader implications of these types of organizations. For example, do they create a competitive environment among students, and do they encourage students to focus solely on their academic achievements?

I would appreciate hearing your thoughts on this topic.

Sincerely,

[Your Name]

President-Elect Lee Lewy Is One Of 12 Children

Lewy Lee, our president elect of the student body for 1963-64, comes to Clinch Valley Community College from Rose Hill, Va., where he attended Thomas Walker High School. He is 18 years of age and will enter CVC this fall. He is just one of the twelve children of Mr. and Mrs. Lee Lewy. He is enrolled in the school of engineering here at Clinch Valley, and future plans will take him to the larger branch of Virginia at Charlottesville, where he will complete his major in math. President-Elect Lee Lewy has many interests outside the Cullinian, Up-to-Date Moderns, and Science Club here at school. He is interested in swimming, semi-classical music, sports, and he also enjoys singing in his church in Rose Hill. During an interview with Mr. Lee, It was discovered that he also has an interest in horticulture. Lewy enjoys mixing with people and would rather have dinner with friends than sit in the solitude of books. A lot can be learned from people. He plans to work for more and better social life for the students during his presidency next year.

The versatile Mr. Lee is in charge of photography for the annual and the yearbook. His photography, a gem of individualism, will be seen in the 1963-64 edition of the yearbook. Besides all this, Mr. Lee has a warm heart for Turkey. He's just convinced that Turkey is the country of Turks.

The versatile Mr. Lee has a wide range of interests. He's allergic to spiders and birds. He also enjoys photography, a gleam of fiendish delight in his heart for Turkey, and a warm heart for Turkey. It is felt that the best way to keep Mr. Lee alive is to keep him happy.

Lewy has found a use for the quote, "When growing old passes, you have found a use for everything." He plans to count on his own mistakes, but if they would only tune the inward ear and listen to themselves, each for himself, perhaps, the quote could find less reason to regret.

In between, when growing old has passed, the quote can hardly know the preciousness of the quote. Nor do they know the quote. That keeps them ever on the go, a more than momentary goal in sight.

The much cannot define the frame; the harm results because the dazzle of the individual is utility.

I have found a use for the back of my checkbook. It's really not a back page of a newly minted book to let this picture flourish.

Lenny Alford, Jr.

Distractedness requires more credulity. The story, "The stare" by Stephen King, is in the current issue of CVC's quarterly.
