Where Are Last Year's Students??

Many of the sophomores are wondering where some of their classmate who are not in their dorms are. Below is a list of last year's sophomore class and where they are now:

- John Dewey: Bingham Young University
- Alice Pay Daritis: working in Washington, D.C.
- Janetle Blackwell: East Tennessee State University
- Ronnie Brown: sophomore class and where they are now:
- David Smith: Stanford University in California
- Betty Castle: Tusculum College
- Kathdeen Kern: working as secretary in Washington, D.C.
- Carole Elster: working in Grundy County, Tennessee
- Dorothy Fowler: Radford University
- Barbara Johnson: Virginia State University
- Betty Hilton: Virginia A & J University
- Ann Miers: Virginia Tech
- Barbara Long: University of Virginia
- John Sanders: University of Kentucky
- David Smith: Stanford University in California
- Eddie Ayers from Lee County who writes a lot of songs. He is the vocalist and plays guitar
- Edith Ayers: Radford College

John Dewey's Birthday -- Surrender Of Cornwallis At Yorktown

To the Woods --

On Sunday of October 11, 1964 the faculty and students went on a hike. We started from the picnic area about 4:30 that afternoon. We went behind the faculty houses, around the tower, past the lake and climbed back to the picnic area about 5:30. The scenery was beautiful and everyone enjoyed it.

We started from the picnic area behind the faculty houses, around the tower, and we had a big fire ready to roast wieners. Upon returning to the picnic area about 5:30, the scenery was beautiful and everyone enjoyed it.

On Sunday of October 11, 1964 the faculty and students went on a hike. We started from the picnic area about 4:30 that afternoon. We went behind the faculty houses, around the tower, past the lake and climbed back to the picnic area about 5:30. The scenery was beautiful and everyone enjoyed it.

We started from the picnic area behind the faculty houses, around the tower, and we had a big fire ready to roast wieners. Upon returning to the picnic area about 5:30, the scenery was beautiful and everyone enjoyed it.

On Sunday of October 11, 1964 the faculty and students went on a hike. We started from the picnic area about 4:30 that afternoon. We went behind the faculty houses, around the tower, past the lake and climbed back to the picnic area about 5:30. The scenery was beautiful and everyone enjoyed it.

We started from the picnic area behind the faculty houses, around the tower, and we had a big fire ready to roast wieners. Upon returning to the picnic area about 5:30, the scenery was beautiful and everyone enjoyed it.

On Sunday of October 11, 1964 the faculty and students went on a hike. We started from the picnic area about 4:30 that afternoon. We went behind the faculty houses, around the tower, past the lake and climbed back to the picnic area about 5:30. The scenery was beautiful and everyone enjoyed it.

We started from the picnic area behind the faculty houses, around the tower, and we had a big fire ready to roast wieners. Upon returning to the picnic area about 5:30, the scenery was beautiful and everyone enjoyed it.
The Professional Do You?

One of the chief differences between the European and the American university line is the attitude of the students at these institutions. This prevailing attitude among students at European universities has always seemed to be one of professionalism; "we are just students of a subject and I will, therefore, mean very little of my life -- my conversations, my reading, my recitations, my sociology -- serve the one great purpose of my calling which is to learn as much as possible and to put into use which I have learned as opportunity." There seems to be a strong realization of the real purpose of the student's profession is as ancient, proud, and noble as the world; and, thus in this role, much is expected of him in his relationships with his fellow human beings. He is in a position of great social matters, an archet of good taste, a representative of the highest truths, and an altruistic supporter of all artistic and scientific endeavors.

The average American does not accept this role. The four years or so in which he is enrolled in college is usually marked by a Corsican spirit which accompanies fulfilling a series of arbitrary requirements as qualitatively and as easily as possible. Much attention is given to the making of grades rather than learning. The student is to immerse himself in politics with all the ingenuities and experiences of his immature thrifts. He is inclined to attend only by taste whose musical tastes are formed by advertisements. There are no college agitators and sixties who buy somewhere in the neighborhood of eighty percent of all the single records sold. Having been nurtured as an atmosphere of teacher-intelligible (which means that people who refer from rocking the boat are usually not hobnobbed with to be ridiculed to be docile in the face of controversy). If he has any, he is to express it because of being thought of as by his fellow students. He is also a sort of dullness in conformity. Any expression, listening to a kind of music which he has never heard before, talking with someone who is known to have unorthodox views, reading a book which is not on some exalted reading list, or an article which no one will ever give -- which does not contribute.

The Professional Do You?

One of the chief differences between the European and the American university line is the attitude of the students at these institutions. This prevailing attitude among students at European universities has always seemed to be one of professionalism; "we are just students of a subject and I will, therefore, mean very little of my life -- my conversations, my reading, my recitations, my sociology -- serve the one great purpose of my calling which is to learn as much as possible and to put into use which I have learned as opportunity." There seems to be a strong realization of the real purpose of the student's profession is as ancient, proud, and noble as the world; and, thus in this role, much is expected of him in his relationships with his fellow human beings. He is in a position of great social matters, an archet of good taste, a representative of the highest truths, and an altruistic supporter of all artistic and scientific endeavors.

The average American does not accept this role. The four years or so in which he is enrolled in college is usually marked by a Corsican spirit which accompanies fulfilling a series of arbitrary requirements as qualitatively and as easily as possible. Much attention is given to the making of grades rather than learning. The student is to immerse himself in politics with all the ingenuities and experiences of his immature thrifts. He is inclined to attend only by taste whose musical tastes are formed by advertisements. There are no college agitators and sixties who buy somewhere in the neighborhood of eighty percent of all the single records sold. Having been nurtured as an atmosphere of teacher-intelligible (which means that people who refer from rocking the boat are usually not hobnobbed with to be ridiculed to be docile in the face of controversy). If he has any, he is to express it because of being thought of as by his fellow students. He is also a sort of dullness in conformity. Any expression, listening to a kind of music which he has never heard before, talking with someone who is known to have unorthodox views, reading a book which is not on some exalted reading list, or an article which no one will ever give -- which does not contribute.

The Professional Do You?

One of the chief differences between the European and the American university line is the attitude of the students at these institutions. This prevailing attitude among students at European universities has always seemed to be one of professionalism; "we are just students of a subject and I will, therefore, mean very little of my life -- my conversations, my reading, my recitations, my sociology -- serve the one great purpose of my calling which is to learn as much as possible and to put into use which I have learned as opportunity." There seems to be a strong realization of the real purpose of the student's profession is as ancient, proud, and noble as the world; and, thus in this role, much is expected of him in his relationships with his fellow human beings. He is in a position of great social matters, an archet of good taste, a representative of the highest truths, and an altruistic supporter of all artistic and scientific endeavors.

The average American does not accept this role. The four years or so in which he is enrolled in college is usually marked by a Corsican spirit which accompanies fulfilling a series of arbitrary requirements as qualitatively and as easily as possible. Much attention is given to the making of grades rather than learning. The student is to immerse himself in politics with all the ingenuities and experiences of his immature thrifts. He is inclined to attend only by taste whose musical tastes are formed by advertisements. There are no college agitators and sixties who buy somewhere in the neighborhood of eighty percent of all the single records sold. Having been nurtured as an atmosphere of teacher-intelligible (which means that people who refer from rocking the boat are usually not hobnobbed with to be ridiculed to be docile in the face of controversy). If he has any, he is to express it because of being thought of as by his fellow students. He is also a sort of dullness in conformity. Any expression, listening to a kind of music which he has never heard before, talking with someone who is known to have unorthodox views, reading a book which is not on some exalted reading list, or an article which no one will ever give -- which does not contribute.

The Professional Do You?

One of the chief differences between the European and the American university line is the attitude of the students at these institutions. This prevailing attitude among students at European universities has always seemed to be one of professionalism; "we are just students of a subject and I will, therefore, mean very little of my life -- my conversations, my reading, my recitations, my sociology -- serve the one great purpose of my calling which is to learn as much as possible and to put into use which I have learned as opportunity." There seems to be a strong realization of the real purpose of the student's profession is as ancient, proud, and noble as the world; and, thus in this role, much is expected of him in his relationships with his fellow human beings. He is in a position of great social matters, an archet of good taste, a representative of the highest truths, and an altruistic supporter of all artistic and scientific endeavors.

The average American does not accept this role. The four years or so in which he is enrolled in college is usually marked by a Corsican spirit which accompanies fulfilling a series of arbitrary requirements as qualitatively and as easily as possible. Much attention is given to the making of grades rather than learning. The student is to immerse himself in politics with all the ingenuities and experiences of his immature thrifts. He is inclined to attend only by taste whose musical tastes are formed by advertisements. There are no college agitators and sixties who buy somewhere in the neighborhood of eighty percent of all the single records sold. Having been nurtured as an atmosphere of teacher-intelligible (which means that people who refer from rocking the boat are usually not hobnobbed with to be ridiculed to be docile in the face of controversy). If he has any, he is to express it because of being thought of as by his fellow students. He is also a sort of dullness in conformity. Any expression, listening to a kind of music which he has never heard before, talking with someone who is known to have unorthodox views, reading a book which is not on some exalted reading list, or an article which no one will ever give -- which does not contribute.
Gossip

Rick T., was it the popcorn or the girl?
The C.V.C. Commandos can also sing, at least the Martha Randolph girls say they can.
"The Kid" has been carrying a new "battle flag" since Sunday. We know where it came from, but whose are they?
Ali Baba and the Forty Thieves revisited Mary Beth and the Fifty-seven keys.
It seems that Dana would do anything for $5.00.
Who is it that D. Robinson has been writing to at another college?
Has J. Lindsey been losing his teeth lately?
We see that Wayne Riner was in this week-end and that he and Eddie left their mark on High Knob.
We see that Gus spent the week-end in Grundy. Who was the girl he stayed with?
Sam W., what did you do Saturday night?
Who is the cute little black head Dave G. has been seen with?
Let your fingers do the shopping -- Crockett Hall boys.
Gary M. and Lee B. have been visiting the graveyard, we hear. They now live in Tombstone Territory.
Holliday seems to like eyes nowadays, just ask him.
Loretta G., why do you go home every week-end? Could it be that you're real gone on a guy from Berea who also comes home on week-ends?
Lee must have been sick lately, because he has spent all of his time at the hospital.
Who is that big farmer that Ivy C. is interested in?
Nancy L., are you interested in the same farm?
Where did Brenda S., Lee H., Lynn B., and Verdie R. go at 6:00 Thursday?
Is it true that Larry Baker got lost in Wise?
Johnny H., how do you manage to get such intelligent girls as Iris A. and Shirley K. so very confused?
Whick blonde is next on Couzie's list?
G. Kennedy has been seen talking to a beautiful black head at school lately. Gary seems to be interested for some reason.
Does anyone know if P. Lester has gotten his rabies shot lately?
Clyde S. has taken up riding pumpkins instead of camels. Who likes to lock the door to the girls' dorm?
Are the Cardinals really that important to you, Iris A. and Shirley K.?
Who has Johnny M. been entertaining?
Dana T., do you always make strikes by falling halfway down the lane?
Barbara A., could there be a December wedding for you after all??
Larry L. and Linda T. sure had a swinging time Friday night.
Elliot S., where were you really Thursday night?
Where is Ricky when Mary Lee is looking for him at the girls' dorm?
Old "Pat Man" says it gets pretty rough when you are next to the bottom.
Is Dana T. having trouble again? Seems every time he turns around he is in trouble.
Gifts seem to be constantly flowing to the girls' dorm. How about that, "Spectra"?
What was the big deal going on in the black Chevy Sunday night?
Betty L. has decided that high collared blouses are in style now. What could be behind this?
Lou N., did you really want the doors open?
Sammie L. sure seems to be up in the air about a visit she's planned to Richmond.
Are Frank G. and Lynn B. really cousins?
Lydia C. seems to like brick layers. Could it be because they're Masons?
Why did Parie L. leave the Halloween Dance? Could it be because his girl from home was in Wise?
Betty L., who is Henry??
Looks as if Woody Woodpecker finally won Sunday night.
There seems to be a two-legged Lyron prowling our campus. Who could it be?
Brenda V. and Gus G. seem to enjoy each other's company.
Kitty F., was it you that caused all the commotion in the dorm the other night?
Why is thema D. so anxious to go to Biology Lab?
We understand that Jerome is a U. Va. student when at V.I.
Nancy H., Margaret Banner, and Shirley K., did you enjoy your 3 a.m. tour of Southwest Virginia?
Darrell seems to be really serious about a certain girl from Grundy High School.
Janey S., why are you going to Radford this week-end?
What's so famous about room 12 at Martha Randolph Hall?
Verdie R., did you have a nice week-end?
Attention Boys -- The girls from Martha Randolph Hall are still waiting. We know all about you, Butch.
Opal E. and Polly F. are keeping the No-Doz company in business.
What did two of our fine students pick up at Bertha's??
Carolyn A., you sure pulled a dirty trick.
Who is the big tattle-tale in M.R.H.?
Loretta Y., why can't you let us know when the big day is gonna be?
Diana C., who's that guy from Grundy you're gone on?
Who is Brutus???
Student Council News

Vote, and the choice is yours; Don't be afraid to be BOLD in your Vote, or you have no choice. At the last meeting of the Student Council Election of Freshmen Representatives was held on 5 and 6 votes. Only members of the Freshmen Class and only members of the Senior Class can register and vote for the position of President, Vice-President, or Secretary. Vote for the person of your choice and let your choice be known, or you shall be known student body.

At our last meeting on October 15, we discussed the possibility of having a Student Suggestion Box in the lounge. There was a great deal of discussion as to whether a Suggestion Box should be placed in the lounge. It was decided that a Suggestion Box should be placed in the lounge, and any other phase of the lounge that would be of interest to the students. We believe that the Suggestion Box will be of great benefit to the students and that it will help to improve the record of the Forensic Club.

The Forensic Club

On Oct. 15, 1964, the Forensic Club of W. Va. held its first organizational meeting in Room 209 of the Willard residence hall. The members present were: Barry Willard, Charles Jewell, and Matt Kendrick. The members present were introduced to each other and a tentative plan was made for the organization of the Forensic Club. The following were elected officers for the 1964-65 school term: President, Barry Willard; Vice-President, Charles Jewell; Treasurer, Matt Kendrick; and Secretary, Matt Kendrick. The officers for the Forensic Club for the 1964-65 school year will be: President, Barry Willard; Vice-President, Charles Jewell; Treasurer, Matt Kendrick; and Secretary, Matt Kendrick.

Circle K Plans

First -

The Circle K Club of Clarks Valley College is planning their first Miss CVC Contest on November 15th. It is being planned for their Friday evening in the Fred B. Cover Auditorium. Mrs. Edna McCray will handle all the female contestants connected with the execution of the Beauty Pageant. All girls who wish to participate should register by November 1st and must be present by November 2nd. The registrations will be accepted by personal letter from the Club President. In the contest and it is hoped that all the girls will be present for the beauty pageant on November 15th. There will be 11 price levels for the contest on Saturday, November 15th, at 8:00 p.m. The contest will be open to anyone who wishes to participate and is hoping to attract a girl from a school near by.

If you are interested in being a contestant in the contest, please get in touch with Barry Willard, Charles Jewell, or Matt Kendrick.

The root meaning in college is an individual chosen to be one of a commodity. The real you is the true you. The true you is the real you. The real you is the real you. The real you is the real you. The real you is the real you. The real you is the real you. The real you is the real you. The real you is the real you.

The Forensic Club was organized to facilitate interest in public speaking; to introduce debates, informal speaking; parliamentary procedure, and any other phase of public speaking that may be of interest to the student body.

A large and comprehensive program of activities has been prepared for the members of the Forensic Club. The program is in the planning stage, and the members will be able to start the program at the beginning of the year. A large and comprehensive program of activities has been prepared for the members of the Forensic Club. The program is in the planning stage, and the members will be able to start the program at the beginning of the year. A large and comprehensive program of activities has been prepared for the members of the Forensic Club. The program is in the planning stage, and the members will be able to start the program at the beginning of the year.

The real student must give as well as get. Nothing that he learns will be his unless he uses it and possesses it. For, of course, some- thing of that sort is in the mind, but what is merely stored up will not be practically useful in later life. Interchange of ideas among students and between students and faculty is the main goal of the club. The main goal of the club. The main goal of the club. The main goal of the club. The main goal of the club.

Debates are held at every meeting of the Forensic Club. The debates are held at every meeting of the Forensic Club. The debates are held at every meeting of the Forensic Club. The debates are held at every meeting of the Forensic Club. The debates are held at every meeting of the Forensic Club.

Peace Corps Test

Here on Nov. 21

Arrangements have been made for the Peace Corps Placement Test. The non-competitive test, used only in the selection of the Peace Corps, will be given on November 21 at 9:30 a.m. in Room 209 in the Academic Building.

For further information about the test and how you can apply, contact Mr. Willard or Mr. B. C. Addington in the Information Office.

The Inn

At Wise Courthouse

Compliments of

GLEN'S DRIVE-IN

Wise, Va.

Cohen's Department Store

"Quality Since 1899"

Phone 466

Norton, Va.

Don't Quit

When things go wrong as they sometimes do, take a deep breath and say, "I can't do that now, but I will when things settle down."

When the funds are low and the world is dark, you may feel like you can't stand it any longer. You want to smile, but you have to bite your lip.

When care is pressing you down a steep hill to the bottom, you may feel like you can't stand it any longer. You want to quit, but you have to hold it out.

As every one of you knows, you must hold it out. And many a failure turns around. As every one of you knows, you must hold it out. And many a failure turns around. As every one of you knows, you must hold it out. And many a failure turns around. As every one of you knows, you must hold it out. And many a failure turns around. As every one of you knows, you must hold it out. And many a failure turns around. As every one of you knows, you must hold it out. And many a failure turns around. As every one of you knows, you must hold it out.

Don't give up, though the pace may seem slow. You might succeed with another method. Success is failure turned inside out, the silver lining of the clouds of dust.

And never you can tell how it will turn. And never you can tell how it will turn. And never you can tell how it will turn. And never you can tell how it will turn. And never you can tell how it will turn.

Intramural Results

Two weeks ago the intercollegiate basketball play-offs were held and the results of these play-offs were announced. The Pioneer team, sponsored by the Forensic team, met the Red team sponsored by the Baptist Student Union. The Red team beat the Pioneer team 62-37. On Saturday, the Red team and Blue team met for the final round of elimination play. As expected, the Red team beat the Blue team 62-37.

The second round of elimination found the Red team and Blue team playing in the championship tournament. As expected, the Red team beat the Blue team 62-37.

In the third and final round, the Red team beat the Blue team 62-37 and the Grey team beat the Orange team 62-37.

The standings are as follows:

Red team 2 lost 0 won 2 last 1 Gray team 1 lost 2 won 1 first 1

and any other phase of public speaking that may be of interest to the student body.

The Institute of Learning is an individual chosen to be one of a commodity. The real you is the true you. The true you is the real you. The real you is the real you. The real you is the real you. The real you is the real you. The real you is the real you. The real you is the real you. The real you is the real you.

The Forensic Club was organized to facilitate interest in public speaking, to introduce debates, informal speaking; parliamentary procedure, and any other phase of public speaking that may be of interest to the student body.

A large and comprehensive program of activities has been prepared for the members of the Forensic Club. The program is in the planning stage, and the members will be able to start the program at the beginning of the year. A large and comprehensive program of activities has been prepared for the members of the Forensic Club. The program is in the planning stage, and the members will be able to start the program at the beginning of the year. A large and comprehensive program of activities has been prepared for the members of the Forensic Club. The program is in the planning stage, and the members will be able to start the program at the beginning of the year.

The real student must give as well as get. Nothing that he learns will be his unless he uses it and possesses it. For, of course, some- thing of that sort is in the mind, but what is merely stored up will not be practically useful in later life. Interchange of ideas among students and between students and faculty is the main goal of the club. The main goal of the club. The main goal of the club. The main goal of the club. The main goal of the club.

Debates are held at every meeting of the Forensic Club. The debates are held at every meeting of the Forensic Club. The debates are held at every meeting of the Forensic Club. The debates are held at every meeting of the Forensic Club. The debates are held at every meeting of the Forensic Club.

Peace Corps Test

Here on Nov. 21

Arrangements have been made for the Peace Corps Placement Test. The non-competitive test, used only in the selection of the Peace Corps, will be given on November 21 at 9:30 a.m. in Room 209 in the Academic Building.

For further information about the test and how you can apply, contact Mr. Willard or Mr. B. C. Addington in the Information Office.

The Inn

At Wise Courthouse

Compliments of

GLEN'S DRIVE-IN

Wise, Va.
On Saturday, October 17th, this reporter witnessed one of the most exciting upsets of the football season this year. The University of Virginia Cavaliers came from behind in the opening quarter to beat the Army Black Knight 10 to 7. The game was held at Memorial Stadium in Knoxville, Tennessee.

The game began with the Army offense driving down the field quickly. They were stopped short of a first down, and the ball was recovered by Virginia on their own 49-yard line. The Cavaliers then drove to the Army 40-yard line, where the Army defense held firm. The next kick, a 49-yard field goal attempt, was blocked by the Virginia defense, and the score remained 0-0.

Virginia then took control of the game, driving down the field and scoring a touchdown on a 1-yard run by the quarterback. The game was tied at 7-7.

In the second half, Virginia continued to dominate. They scored another touchdown on a 1-yard run by the same quarterback. The score was now 14-7.

Army tried to mount a comeback, but Virginia held them off. In the fourth quarter, Virginia scored a final touchdown on a 1-yard run by the same quarterback. The final score was 21-7.

Virginia's victory was a sweet one, as they defeated an Army team that was ranked higher than them. This victory has put Virginia in a strong position to make a run for the national championship.

The Highland Cavaliers wishes to thank all those contributing to this issue.

Cumberland Bank and Trust Co.
Olivewood.

The West Virginia National Bank
Norton, Va.

U.Va. Skins!!

Circle K Sweetheart Selected

This year the Circle K Club of CVC has followed its usual tradition by selecting a very lovely young lady for its Sweetheart. Sammie Lane, a sophomore majoring in physical education, was selected as the Circle K Sweetheart. She is the daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Samuel Lane of Olinton, Va.

Sammie Lane and her family recently moved to Olinton, Va. from Owensboro, Ky. She attended High School there and was a member of the Varsity Band, Glee Club and a class officer.

This year Sammie has worked at the Martha Washington College campus guide as well as being in charge of the Circle K Club's Stamp and Knitting Shop. She is also a member of the Women's Athletic Association, Alpha Chi Omega and the Alpha Delta Pi Sorority. She is president of the Homecoming Committee and is a member of the Women's Athletic Association, Alpha Chi Omega and the Alpha Delta Pi Sorority.

Sammie Lane is also an assistant editor of the newspaper and is a member of the Women's Athletic Association, Alpha Chi Omega and the Alpha Delta Pi Sorority. She is president of the Homecoming Committee and is a member of the Women's Athletic Association, Alpha Chi Omega and the Alpha Delta Pi Sorority.

The theme of the October 19 program was "Identiflcation of Suspects." Mrs. Gibson of the Fine Arts Department spoke about the ways in which we can identify suspects. She also spoke about the importance of being able to identify suspects.

Mrs. Gibson's talk was very interesting and informative. She gave many examples of how suspects can be identified. She also stressed the importance of being able to identify suspects.

Sammie Lane is the daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Samuel Lane of Olinton, Va. She attended High School there and was a member of the Varsity Band, Glee Club and a class officer.

Sammie Lane's sweethearts speech was very moving and emotional. She spoke about her feelings for Circle K and her love for her sweetheart. She also spoke about her hopes for the future.

Final Sessions Held

The final two sessions of the annual meeting of the Three Rivers Area of the Eastern Kentucky State Woodcrafting Fair were held at Berea, Kentucky. The sessions were held at the Berea College Auditorium and the Berea College Gymnasium.

The Berea College Auditorium was packed with people who were all there to hear the words of encouragement from the students and faculty members. The Berea College Gymnasium was also packed with people who were all there to hear the words of encouragement from the students and faculty members.

The keynote speaker for the final session was Mr. Harold M. Johnson, President of Berea College. Mr. Johnson spoke about the importance of education and the role that Berea College plays in the community.

The Berea College Audito...