Holly Ball Held Dec. 12

The tenth night of December proved to be a most exciting one for Clintwod Valley students. Saturday night the gay traditional event of The Holly Ball was held.

A young man, previously un-ionized, was selected as Queen of the Holly Ball. He is Mr. Bernard C. Domest, a native of Virginia where he was born January 20. Everyone has been tense all week in preparation for this big event.

Miss Betty Leffel, sophomore, was selected as Queen of the Holly Ball. She is a native of Kentucky where she was born January 15. Everyone has been tense all week in preparation for this big event.

Gladewater Chorale Presents Program

Gladewater Chorale presided a program of Christmas music at 7:30 p.m. on December 11. It was composed of people from Norton and Wise and faculty and students here at the College. The faculty and students who participated were Mr. Smiddy, Mr. Wheeler, Mr. Johnson, Betty Hart, University Choir, and the Watauga Chorale. The program was held in the auditorium at Wise, Virginia.

New Math Teacher to Arrive Jan. 22

Mr. Bernard C. Domest, a native of St. Mary, Pennsylvania, will arrive at Clintwod Valley College January 22 as a new math instructor. He will teach Math and Math (differential equations). Mr. Domest attended St. Vincent and Gannon College in Pennsylvania where he was a B. A. degree.

He received his M. A. at Penn State. He taught high school for three years before going to graduate school.

Exam Time Again

At Clintwod Valley College, January is that time of year that everyone's personal life is put on hold. It is the time of the year when everyone is tense and unhappy. Dates which have been spent in the bookshelves of the student body now feel like a distant memory as everyone begins studying. Even the library has been invaded by its own students.

The students have found themselves unprepared for exams, and the only thing they have saved to do is work on the next one better. - That is academic.

A cultivated individual has had macabre experiences.

Circle K Has Done - - -

The Circle K club of C.V.C. accomplished three things during the first semester of the 1964-65 school year. Among these were: Student membership, which during the first semester, the First Miss C.V.C. was named, a book sale to raise funds for the First Miss C.V.C. Library, a fleet in the Wise Christmas Program. The winners of the Circle K on December 9 in Abingdon. It is hoped that their membership will be in attendance at the Annual District Convention in January.

Why Not U Va?

Students are planning to continue their education beyond high school. They should always consider the possibilities of attending college or universities. However, many students are hesitant to make this decision because of the high cost of education. The following are a few reasons why you should consider going to U Va.:

1. Quality Education: U Va offers a wide range of programs and courses that can help you develop your skills and knowledge. You can choose from various disciplines such as engineering, business, humanities, and sciences.

2. Career Opportunities: Graduates from U Va have a better chance of finding employment compared to those who only have a high school diploma. You can pursue your desired career path and contribute to society.

3. Networking: Attending college allows you to meet people from different backgrounds and cultures. You can develop valuable connections and grow your network.

4. Personal Growth: College provides an opportunity for personal growth and development. You can explore your interests, gain new experiences, and improve your soft skills.

5. Financial Aid: Many students are concerned about the cost of college education. However, U Va offers various financial aid opportunities, including scholarships, grants, and loans, to help cover the expenses.

In conclusion, attending college offers numerous benefits. It is an investment in your future, and you will not regret making this decision. So why not U Va? Consider exploring your options and make a decision that will help you achieve your goals.

My best friends in Japan lived across the street from us. The eldest of them, Tori-chan, taught me many things. His brother Ouma was my age but didn’t compare with Tori-chan as a friend. Panty-waist, Tori-chan’s youngest brother, and Cici, their cat, were mascots of the gang. Panty-waist inherited the clothes I outgrew, and I learned all the important boyhood essentials at Tori-chan’s, for his house was my second home. From him, I learned chess, manipulation, Japanese table manners, and the formation of Japanese polities. My parents liked Tori-chan very much and trusted him implicitly. They were always pleased to let me go out with him at any time and to any place. One evening, my father, Tori-chan, and I attended a street festival of the neighborhood temple. Father liked to tease Tori-chan, as he always talked Japanese when Tori-chan was present. That evening, Father remarked, “Your father is very amused.”

During the summer, Tori-chan left town with his family to visit some relatives in the country for a week. I felt like I was lost without him. Father could see that I was sad and lonely, so he and Mother decided to take me on a trip on Wednesday. When we were in the dressing room, I told Father that I would beat him to the pool, and I did. When he came out, I was in the middle of the pool, reading water. “Father,” I yelled, and he jumped backward into the water thinking it was shallow and I was standing on the bottom. I plummeted twelve feet to the bottom with a gurgly glub, glub, glub. Apparently, Father didn’t know that I could swim. Of course, Tori-chan had seen it, but I didn’t have one of my own. He was very gentle with us, and every day we would have something for us to do together, after we got through with our homework. If we didn’t know how to play certain games, he would teach us how to do so, with great patience, until we acquired the particular skill. From him, I learned the important Japanese arts: tree-climbing, bicycling, swimming, archery, and fishing, among other things.
