Approximately 60-65 Fellowships will be awarded to seniors and recent graduates who are considered "Early Entry" applicants in the Program. Another 35-40 awards will be made to postbaccalaureate persons who are called "Late Entry" component to persons 30-40 years of age.

Applicants for the Early Entry awards may not have undertaken any graduate or professional study beyond the baccalaureate and must be nominated by Liaison Officers of their undergraduate institutions by November 15, 1976. The Danforth Foundation does not accept direct applications for the Early Entry Fellowships.

The Foundation is currently making a special effort to bring qualified persons from the racial and ethnic minorities into the profession of teaching. Approximately 25 percent of the awards are expected to be awarded to American Indians, Blacks, Mexican-Americans, and Puerto Ricans.

The Danforth Graduate Fellowship is a one-year award but is normally renewable until completion of the advanced degree or for a maximum of four years of graduate study. Fellowship stipends are based on individual need, but they will not exceed $2275 for single Fellows and $2450 for married Fellows for the academic year, plus dependency allowances for children. Faculty Quality Improves

The number of faculty at Clinch Valley College with terminal degrees has increased significantly in the last three years from 32.8 percent to 56.9 percent. When the College underwent a self-study in 1973 as part of its review for reaccreditation by the Southern Association of Colleges and Schools, only 32.8 percent of the faculty had terminal degrees. A terminal degree is the highest degree normally offered in a discipline area, usually the Ph.D. or Ed.D., though sometimes another degree such as the M.F.A. in a performing arts area is appropriate.

A recent review of the faculty showed that 56.9 percent of the faculty now have a terminal degree. The increase was due to a number of the faculty obtaining their terminal degree and new faculty with terminal degrees replacing departed faculty without those degrees.

The College is a member of the Southern Association of Colleges and Schools, an organization comprised of elementary and secondary schools, community colleges, colleges, universities, and vocational and technical schools in states ranging from Maryland to Texas. The organization sets minimum standards which schools must meet to be accredited. For colleges offering the baccalaureate degree at least 30 percent of the faculty must have the terminal degree and at least 50 percent must have at least a year of advanced study beyond the master's degree in their respective teaching field.

Student Body Elects Representatives

Student Body Elections will be held September 15 and September 22, 1976. On September 15 the freshmen class shall elect three (3) representatives to the Honor Court. Also, the entire student body shall elect two (2) representatives from each class to the Student Disciplinary Board. On September 22, the freshman class shall elect three (3) representatives to the Student Council.

Any eligible student who wishes to run for any of these offices should obtain a petition of candidacy from the Student Council or Dean of Student Affairs' Office. These petitions must be signed by fifteen (15) qualified voters and filed in the Dean of Students Office no later than 4:30 p.m., five (5) days prior to the election date.

The voting station shall be located in the lobby of the Zehmer Building directly in front of the bookstore. The polls shall open at 8:30 a.m. and shall close at 4:30 p.m. on the day of the election.

All persons who are full-time students of Clinch Valley College at the time of the elections shall have the right to vote and are sincerely urged to exercise this right. However, students may not vote for their own class representatives.

On the days of the elections, anyone desiring to vote should come to the official voting station. An election official shall consult the student directory to see that the student is an official voter. If so, his name shall be marked from the directory and he shall be given an official ballot.

The voter should then go to one of the election tables and he shall prepare his ballot by marking in the appropriate margin or placing a cross (x) opposite the name of the candidate of his choice for each office to be filled. At the top of the ballot shall be printed the words "vote for one", "vote for two", "vote for three" according to the number to be elected. The voter should pay special attention to vote for the correct number of candidates.

After the voter has completed his ballot, he shall fold the ballot and present it to an election official. The election official shall then initial the ballot and place it in the ballot box.

No person shall take ballots from the polling place before the close of the polls. If the voter marks more names than there are persons to be elected to that office, or if it is impossible to determine the voter's choice, his ballot shall not be counted. No write in votes shall be allowed.

So, remember - elections will be held Wednesday, September 15 for the Honor Court and Student Disciplinary Board and September 22 for the SCA.

Editorial

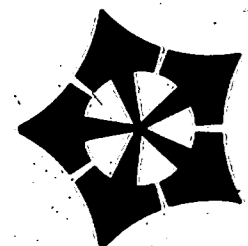

The Responsibility Is Yours . . .

In the upcoming SCA, Honor Court, Student Disciplinary Board elections you will exercise your democratic right to choose your representatives to CVC student governing organizations. However, there are no applicants for vacant positions in the SCA or the Student Disciplinary Board. This indicates a disturbing apathy towards the organization the year's academic and social involvements at CVC.

Sometimes, someone must show an interest in these groups. They are most probably the most important organization on campus. All activities involving CVC students which occur on the Clinch Valley College campus are subject to approval by the SCA. A strong SCA can mean the difference between a full social life this year and another year of apathy and boredom. Likewise the Student Disciplinary Board in that it represents the best interest of the students in maintaining a standard of discipline on campus. Fair representation on the Board insures fair hearings of student problems. The one bright spot in the murky situation is the Honor Court. Can this spark of interest (four people running for three positions) be attributed to the Honor Court's increased effort to promote interest in the Honor System?

I cannot overestimate the importance of these elections. The effectiveness of these organizations rests on the active participation of the student body; the fate of CVC's social life this year is up to you.

Baptist Student Union

The Clinch Valley College Baptist Student Union is made up of students and is a student led organization. We are a community of individuals - seeking ways of expressing our relationship to God and to each other - seeking to understand the implications of the Christian life for us.

This organization belongs to whoever chooses it; some are Baptist and some are not, and both are equally WELCOME! The largest expression of our community happens on Wednesday evening from 5:00 - 6:30 p.m. at the United Student Center. We have a meal together, a time of worship and a discussion or program relevant to the Christian life.

The symbol of BSU suggests that we are engaged both in an inward journey of self-discovery and growth, and an outward journey of service and ministry. This is shown by the arrows going both inward and outward. The program and activities of the Baptist Student Union is designed to cover both of these aspects of the Christian life style.

Dean Trickett is the Baptist campus minister at CVC and works with the BSU. He is available to you at any time for counseling and spiritual guidance or just to talk. His phone number is 328-9469 and his office phone at the United Student Center is 328-8203. Come by or call any time.

BSU invites you to get involved at any level you feel comfortable. Bible studies, tutoring programs with kids, work with the elderly and worship teams are now being held. BSU is also planning to hold Vesper worship services during the week on campus. BSU is students; and it is an organization where you can be yourself and build friendships. It is a community of students seeking to grow in relationships and understanding of God and of their fellow man. We hope BSU is for you!

Letters To The Editor

In Defense Of Beer Blasts

Dear Editor:

After reading, with puzzled humor, Mr. Wampler's letter, "Beer Blast Reviewed", in last week's paper, I was compelled to write my own letter reviewing the most recent beer blast as well as those of last year. I think the opinions I will express in the following paragraphs are shared by the majority of the people who attended these functions.

When I first came to Clinch Valley College slightly over a year ago, I was disappointed to put it mildly. The first week I was here, my roommate and I threw so many darts we were thinking about turning pro. The most exciting thing to do was sit on the front porch of Emma McCrary and awkwardly try to meet the other unfortunate souls in the same shape as myself. Was this the college life that I had waited for, for so long? I was ready to go back to an eight hour a day job and at least get paid for being bored to death. Before I pulled out all my hair, word got around that Phi Kappa fraternity was having a free beer blast at their house down the road. It seemed like a good place to get to know some people and at long last it was something to do.

Upon arriving at the fraternity, I was given a glass of beer and introduced to several of the brothers. (At that time, several was all there were.) They showed me the house and explained about the fraternity, all the while introducing me to new people. Before I knew it, I was sitting out in the yard in the company of people I had never seen; talking and laughing while making my first friends at Clinch Valley. Before or since, I have never witnessed such unity and closeness among people so new to each other. We had all been starving for companions to share our new experiences with and at last had come together to have a good time. Many of my best friends I first met that night. I am still thankful, as are many others, I'm sure. That beer blast raised all of our hopes just a little about our stay at Clinch Valley College.

The next beer blast was again Phi Sig's and was held in the college picnic area the following spring. Everyone was extremely anxious to get outside and party after a dull winter indoors. By this time I had joined the fraternity, which seemed my only hope for a social life at Clinch Valley. I was now able to participate in the planning and organizing of the beer blast. I hoped to help bring to my friends more good times like the first one. This time we went all out and cooked all day to provide seven hundred pieces of barbecued chicken, potato salad and cole slaw, as well as all the beer you could hold and all the best stereo music most people will ever hear. This was all for just two dollars a person. It was a lot of work just to break even but seeing two hundred and fifty of the happiest people around in one spot made it all worthwhile. There were no fights or accidents, just good times.

A week or so later, Phi Beta Lambda, the business fraternity, held their first beer blast of the year. It had turned cold during the week so one knew who the hard core partiers were. We just pulled on our long johns and headed for the anti-freeze. This was the first time that "Beer Olympics" had been tried on us and I must say they were great. The chug-a-thon and wheelbarrow races stand out in my memory as being the most fun. I can't recall when I have had more fun and again there were no fights and no accidents.

The latest beer blast was again the Phi Sig's. It, too, was held in the college picnic area on Tuesday, August 31. Because of upcoming financial obligations, the fraternity had to charge each person one dollar, instead of the traditional free admission to the first beer blast of the year. It was our hopes that it would provide for this years freshmen what the one a year ago offered many of us: a chance to meet each other in the new light of college life and begin sharing happy experiences together. Well, as human nature would have it, there was trouble before the evening was over. It seems that a few people from outside the school saw fit to bring everyone down. A fight broke out between two of them and quickly picked up momentum and participants before it was brought under control. The task of stopping a fight, without fighting, was a big one for the fraternity brothers and resulted in a few bruised ribs, busted mouths and sore jaws for the people who gave their time and money to see their friends have a good time.

As long as people continue getting together for any reason, there will occasionally be conflicts. My whole point of this letter is to inform new students and remind the old ones that the history of beer blasts here at Clinch Valley are excellent. The Phi Sig's are planning another beer blast for the 23 of September in an effort to finish what we started. With the help of each person who likes to party and have a good time, we will pull this one off without incident. If you feel like fighting join the Army!!!

Oh, by the way, I didn't notice any Tarzans swinging on grapevines or see any monkeys either. It sort of makes one wonder what kind of dope Mr. Wampler was smoking. Doesn't it?

Thanks, Tim Tabor

Organizations

Form Interclub Council

The first CVC Interclub Council meeting was held on Monday, September 6 with the leaders of most campus organizations attending. The meeting, conducted by Associate Dean of students Madeline Allen, paved the way for cooperation between student organizations in their efforts to raise money and provide entertainment for students through out the 1976-77 academic year.

The purpose of the Interclub Council is to coordinate campus activities so that they will not conflict. This way, campus organizations should be able to make more money while at the same time providing more regular entertainment for the campus. Hopefully, the Interclub Council will also serve as a medium for communications between organizations in finding outside help to sponsor activities. In effect, trading members for closer cooperation between clubs by drawing them into a more organized unit.

The members of the Council have also agreed to publish a monthly calendar of social events in the first and third issues of the Highland Cavalier each month; the purpose being to create more awareness of their events among the students. All organizations are encouraged to submit planned activities after having them cleared by Mr. Gott.

Under the newly proposed SCA constitution now in the planning stage, Pete Vance would be Chairman of the Interclub Council. Until the constitution is voted on by the students of CVC Ms. Allen will preside over the meetings. A secretary for the Council has not yet been appointed.

The Interclub Council provides campus organizations with a unique opportunity to expand attendance at their functions. By co-operating with the Interclub Council, student organizations can greatly increase the success of their activities.

Teacher Corps Program Established

A new component of the in-service training program of the Wise County Schools is a two-year, federally funded Teachers Corps program, located at the Wise Middle School. Program director Meredith Adler, whose office is located in the Zehmer building in the CVC Campus, explains that the purpose of the program is threefold.

For recent graduates with a BA or BS degree in fields other than education who have shown an interest in working with children the program supplies a pre-service program. The four interns will attend training sessions and work with experienced teachers at the Middle School. Sixty percent of their time will be spent in the school and forty percent in working with community activities. This year's Wise Teacher Corps interns are Jewel Worley of Coeburn, Becky Rozeleof of Knoxville, Ron Hamilton from Loreto, Kentucky, and Peggy Blumenstein from Collingswood, New Jersey.

In addition to the program for the interns, the Teacher Corps Program provides in-service teacher training to the Middle School faculty and staff, leading to a Master's Degree from the University of Virginia in cooperation with CVC and the Appalachian State -lite project.

The third program aspect is the Community component, the purpose of which is to encourage interaction between the school and community by increasing information flow. In this manner the corps hope to help the school to both learn more about the community and to utilize its resources while helping the community to learn more about the school.

The new Teacher Corps Program provides an exciting opportunity for non-education majors interested in working with young children to further their career. Interested persons should see Meredith Adler in her office (near the Jefferson Lounge) in the Zehmer building. One can also write for more information to: Southeastern Center for Recruitment and Referral Teacher Corps University of Virginia C&S Bank Building, Room 605 Athens, Georgia 30601.

Democrat Jimmy Carter:

Where He Stands On Domestic Issues

By J. Jack Kennedy

The first of three debates between Republican Presidential candidate Gerald R. Ford and Democratic Presidential candidate James E. Carter is to begin Thursday evening, September 24. The first debate is slated to be on domestic issues and the economy.

This article will concern where former Georgia Governor Jimmy Carter stands on the domestic and economic issues facing the United States in our third century. But first I wish to discuss Governor Carter's background. Jimmy Carter is a farmer, businessman, nuclear engineer, US Naval Academy graduate, planner, student of international affairs and legislator. Jimmy Carter was first elected to the Georgia State Senate in 1963. He ran for Governor of Georgia in 1966 and lost a narrow race. From that day on Jimmy Carter was determined not to lose again. In 1969 Jimmy Carter won the Governorship of Georgia. During his term as Governor, Carter recognized state government. He pushed through a hard-nosed reorganization of the state's overgrown bureaucracy. He eliminated 278 of the 300 agencies and slashed administrative costs by 50 percent. He successfully launched reforms in areas of mental health, education, racial discrimination, criminal justice, consumerism, and environmental protection. Carter announced for the Democratic nomination for President in 1975. Carter won the Democratic nomination with the greatest unity ever seen in the Party.

The Economy

"Our single most important national priority must be a job for every American who wants to work," Carter says. Through various federal subsidies and taxes, the Federal government should encourage private industry to hire the unemployed; retain workers during cyclical downturns and provide flexible hours for working mothers. Carter wants the government to create "meaningful public jobs in the cities and rural neighborhoods of the unemployed, these could include repairs of the railroads, completion of mass transit systems and caring for retarded children, alcoholics and drug addicts.

Carter maintains that a jobs program would not revive inflation, "because our economy is presently performing so far under capacity." Carter claims there will be a balanced budget before the end of his first term as President. To hold down inflation Carter would closely monitor the prices of raw materials; he also recommends stand by wage- and price controls that "the President can apply selectively."

The President should also strengthen his control over interest rates and the money supply by being able to pick "his own chairman" of the Federal Reserve Board. At the same time, the President should initiate long range economic planning through three-year budgets.

Energy And Coal Mining

The first priorities of a new national program to develop energy sources should be coal and solar power. Carter believes "our excessive emphasis" on atomic power "should be severely reduced and converted to a long-term, possibly multinational effort. Total energy independence is "unlikely" in the 20th century, Carter claims.

Carter believes in special legislation to provide adequate compensation to coal miners and their dependents who have suffered disablement or death as a result of black lung disease.

Carter believes in expanded coal production to meet the nation's energy needs. He also believes in a prohibition against "ownership of competing types of energy" by the nation's oil companies as "dangerous to the national interest."

Amnesty

As President Jimmy Carter would issue a "blanket pardon" for all the Vietnam draft evaders. "Amnesty says what you did was right," Carter explains. "Pardon says whether what you did was right or wrong you are forgiven for it."

Tax Reform

Carter favors a vastly simplified tax system that eliminates most deductions and treats all personal income alike. He would also modify corporate taxes to discourage U.S. businesses from moving plants - and jobs - abroad. Carter believes our tax system is a disgrace. The average family earning $10,000 or less pays a larger portion of its income in taxes than a family with an annual income of $1,000,000 or more.

Social Services

Carter favors national health insurance as "a top priority." Carter supports a "major overhaul" of revenue-sharing that would allow the money to be funneled directly into cities and local rural communities, and to be spent for education; he would also secure more attention for education by creating a separate Department of Education within the Cabinet.

School Busing

"We have tried mandatory school busing in Atlanta," says the former Georgian Governor. "It did not work."

Instead Carter favors a plan implemented during his administration, under which no child is bused against his or her will. But if federal courts insist on busing, says Carter, "I will support the court. This is not the subject to be reopened with a constitutional amendment."

Abortion

Jimmy Carter believes that abortion is wrong, and the government should try to minimize it by subsidizing better sex education, family planning and adoption procedures. However Carter opposes a constitutional amendment that would return the issue to the states.

Sunshine Law

Jimmy Carter believes we can not protect those who prefer to work in the dark. "We need an all-inclusive sunshine law in the federal government. Major officials should be required to reveal and drop all business and financial interest that are in possible conflict with the public interest," Carter believes that our system is besieged by peddlers of influence and protectors of undue privilege. Hiding in the nooks and crannies of a confused federal bureaucracy, they pay handsomely for and get the attention of lawmakers who sustain the typical Washington attitude of politics as usual.

The Presidency

Carter says, "Being President of the United States is not the most important thing in the world to me. There are a lot of things I would not do to be President. If I ever tell a lie, make a misleading statement, avoid a controversial issue, or betray your trust, don't support me."

O'Donnell Experiences Outward Bound Program

By David Sanders

During the summer break, one of the CVC faculty underwent what he termed as the greatest short term challenge of his life. Mr. Edward O'Donnell completed a course called outward bound. Outward bound schools are scattered throughout the world; six being located in the U.S. Outward Bound was founded as a training school for British seamen during World War II by the late educator Kurt Hahn. From this beginning, Outward Bound has evolved as a challenging learning experience that has served more than 35,000 people in the U.S. alone.

The Outward Bound experience is one involving several influences. One learns to depend upon himself and other while testing the limits of his physical and mental endurance. It is not primarily physical conditioning that is the ultimate goal. This conditioning is used instead as a means toward a different more challenging end. It answers a primary question that each of us has concerning that which is meaningful in our lives! Do we have the stamina, both mental and physical, to discipline ourselves? This program aims toward realization of what self-discipline is all about.

The experience is not so strenuous that one must possess super-human powers to participate. Ordinary people, from 100 lb. teenagers to hulking college types form sedentary businessmen to middle-aged housewives, experiences the course.

The course that Mr. O'Donnell underwent included rock climbing, back packing, white water canoeing, a primitive camp experience and a solo trip. The crews vary from nine to twelve individuals with two instructors per crew. The instructors are of the highest quality and most have graduate degrees.

One should not get the impression that this is a survival or a "jock" school. It is a school that teaches one reliance on oneself. The cost for the course is approximately $500 but there are scholarships available. Any interested person who would like more information, see Mr. E. O'Donnell.

As the people of outward bound say "I have learned that there are no limits to my efforts, unless I limit myself."

How Do You Mend

A Department Of Bleeding Hearts?

What kind of man would assume the responsibility of mending the bleeding hearts of as many as 30 disillusioned students? Hint: his initials aren't J.C. He's Tom Cox, new director of the social welfare program here. Mr. Cox has two masters degrees, one in Applied Mathematics and Statistics, the other in Social Welfare. He left a teaching position in Richmond and a job as social planner for United Way to assume the directorship here. He had participated in the writing of a health plan in New York and was a welfare rights worker with VISTA. His graduate work was done at the State University at Stony Brook. An interesting point in Mr. Cox's history is that he once attended a school that underwent accreditation procedure, so he is sensitive to the conflicts and tensions existing within our own program.

On August 23rd, Mr. Cox arrived, "excited, bewildered, and tired," to be interviewed by the Social Welfare students among others. Much of what went down during the interview cannot be printed here, but Mr. Cox did state his firm intention of structuring the social welfare program so that it would meet standards necessary for accreditation. Mr. Cox strongly emphasized the value of student input in developing a strong program for accreditation.

Air Conditioning

All Wet!

The air conditioning units that have been installed in the Lounge have proven to be as much a hindrance as they are comfort. The quality of installation has not been satisfactory. The blame cannot in this case, be placed solely on the college administration. The contract was awarded to an electric service company from Pound, Va. During installation, it was necessary to cut holes in the roof of the Zehmer Building. In order to repair these holes as effectively as possible, the initial agreement was subcontracted to a roofing firm. These people have been called several times to stop leaks but of course, the results are easily seen. This see-saw situation will continue until the damage is repaired.

Problems with the system have been complicated even further. All of the units are freezing up. The reason for this has not been ascertained. All that one can do, it seems, is to dodge as much of the cold shower as possible and hope for the best.
