Clinch Valley College

Volume 23 - Number 21

The University of Virginia, Wise, Virginia

Friday, April 15, 1977

Phi Beta Lambda Attends Conference

The Gamma Alpha Sigma Chapter of Phi Beta Lambda at Clinch Valley College attended the annual state conference in Richmond April 2 - 3, 1977. The members attending were Greg Edens, Teresa Yates, Phill Schuyler, Donna Gray, Man Foo Yee, George Bailey, and Randy Taylor. These members entered various business contests. Randy Taylor placed first in the Business Law Contest. He is now eligible to attend the National Conference in Denver, Colorado.

This was the first year that the business law event was held at the state conference. There was competition from other colleges such as Old Dominion University, Radford, and Madison.

The members also attended various group discussions, such as Community Service Projects. During the conference several graduates and members near graduation adopted by laws and elected officers form an alumni association. These organizers, including Greg Edens, became charter members of the new association.

The club entered a scrapbook of their events during the past year. The members attended the twenty-first banquet. There Randy Taylor and George Bailey won a door prize. New state officers for the up-coming year were elected and installed at the banquet.

Phi Beta Lambda is a business fraternity and is Nationally recognized. The state conference is held to gather all chapters in the state for competition and feedback from individual chapters. Although the contests emphasized the business aspect of the fraternity there was also judging of outstanding service projects and other service related activities. We would like to emphasize that we are a service fraternity and are open to anyone for membership.

E.H. Concert Choir To Perform In Wise

The internationally honored Concert Choir of Emory and Henry College will sing at 3 p.m. on Sunday, April 17, at the J. J. Kelly High School Auditorium. The program is sponsored by the Gladeville Council of the Performing Arts.

This outstanding choir has twice participated in International Choral Festivals. In this country the choir has performed in churches, colleges and universities from coast to coast, they have been featured on radio and television and have appeared in several community concert series. They sang a concert in 1974 as part of the World's Fair celebration in New York, in 1972 sang at the General Conference of the Methodist Church in Atlanta, and in 1969 recorded in the Hymn - of - the - Month series for the United Methodist Church.

Dr. Charles R. Davis, founded of the Concert Choir in 1958 and its director since that time, holds degrees from Emory and Henry, Westminster Choir College, and Indiana University.

Diedre Brantley Davis, formerly of the music faculty at Clinch Valley College and now married to Dr. Davis, is the accompanist for the group. Randy Lowe, a senior from Wise, and Ken Bauman, a senior from Coeburn, are members of the choir.

The program will include several anthems and spirituals, a setting of the Magnificat by Buxtehude, and the Te Deum Laudamus of Anton Bruckner.

Admission is by season ticket or at the door $2 for adults and $1 for students. The Gladeville Council of the Performing Arts welcomes all to share this performance.

The last date for requesting a change in address for receiving grades for the Spring Semester is Friday, April 22.

Change of address requests must be made in the Registrar's Office.

Shah To Speak On Creativity In Math Apr. 21

On Thursday, April 21, CVC will have the privilege of hosting one of the most distinguished lecturers to speak at the college. Swarupchand M. Shah, Professor of Mathematics at the University of Kentucky will speak on "Creativity and Research in Mathematics".

Mr. Shah is a native of India. He attended the University of Bombay where he received his BA degree and the University of London where he obtained the MA, PhD, and D Litt. He has held teaching positions at various universities including Cambridge University, and the University of Oxford. He is a member of the American Mathematical Society and the London Mathematical Society, among others. He has been included in the World Who's Who in Science, Who's Who in India, and American Men of Science.

Professor Shah has published over one hundred research papers in journals such as the Proceedings, Transactions, Duke Mathematics Journal, and the Oxford Quarterly Journal. He has lectured at a number of universities such as the University of Aberdeen, Scotland; Stanford University, and Cornell University. He has co-authored numerous books: Summability Theory and Applications, Introduction to Real Variable Theory, and Powder Analysis.

"Creativity and Research in Mathematics" will be held in the Administration Lecture Hall Block X on April 21, 1977. The general public is encouraged to attend.

CVC To Sponsor Gerontology Institute

Clinch Valley College will sponsor a two-week Summer Institute in Gerontology the weeks of July 11 through July 22. This is a three-hour credit course in the department of social welfare. The institute will meet daily from 9:30 to 3:30 five days per week during the summer session.

Morning sessions will be spent in classroom sessions dealing with the sociological, psychological, biological, and anthropological aspects of aging. Evening sessions will include lectures, discussions, and visiting noted speakers in the field of aging. The afternoon will be spent in reviewing films, library resources, and class reports. Field trips will be made to geriatric programs and services in Southwest Virginia.

The institute, a multi-disciplinary one, is designed for people interested in the strength and problems of the elderly, the role of the elderly in an industrialized society, cross-cultural aging, and the physical aspects of aging. Also, special attention will be given to the idea of older people as educators and the class will stress using the older person as a classroom resource. Arrangements are being made to invite Mr. Elliot Wiggington and a group of high school students from Rabun Gap, Ga. to visit the institute and share their experiences in bringing the young and the old together. Mr. Wiggington is the editor of the bestselling Fixite book series which his students compiled in part from interviews with older people in their communities.

Clinch Valley College has been awarded a grant from the Virginia Office on Aging to pay the cost of tuition, fees, and books for area teachers wishing to participate in the course. If you are a public school teacher in Lee, Wise, or Scott Counties and wish to apply for a grant to attend this course, call Mountain Empire Older Citizens at 338-2302 and request an application form. Grants will be awarded on a first-come, first-served basis.

This course is not limited to public school teachers, and it is hoped that any others interested in participating in this institute will call Mountain Empire Older Citizens. The agency is trying to assess overall interest in the course so as to be better able to plan for this summer. Also, books need to be ordered and some idea of number of enrollment is necessary.

The course is an introduction to Gerontology designed to help the practitioner as well as the layman address the question, "What can I do to prepare for old age?" The class will examine responses to that question by using a multi-disciplinary approach. The course will be broad enough to accommodate all general interests in the field of aging.

Letters To The Editor

Tabor Defends Student Circus... Council (?)

Dear Editor,

This letter is in regard to that of Deborah Pearson's entitled "SGA Circus...Greatest Show On Earth" which appeared in last week's paper. I'm glad to see that Miss Pearson took the initiative to come to an SGA meeting and actually write a letter to the editor, as we wish all students would do. Well; "criticize and be criticized", as I always say.

It is obvious to me that Deborah was very hard up for something to write about so she chose the Student Council, it being the favorite subject of most of our idle campus critics. Is it not considered poor taste to quote a person or take an author's words out of context? I feel that the same poor taste is evident when one describes the framework of one Student Council meeting without also describing its content. True, the SGA meeting to which Miss Pearson refers was run for the most part without the noose of parliamentary procedure. I do not doubt if it ever occurred to her that to run that particular meeting in a formal and restricted manner would be as appropriate as wearing a coat and tie to work when the job called for blue jeans.

There were several topics of discussion being dealt with during the pandemonium that she described. Among these were the Student Convocation, the depreciating trailer situation, dormitory cleanliness, the CVC-UVA break, etc. If you happened to notice there were several letters about these subjects and others in the same issue of the paper that Miss Pearson's letter appeared. If you look at the authors of these letters you will also see that nearly all of them are members of the Student Council. What a coincidence that the apathy she said she saw, combined with the pandemonium, helped produce these expressions of concern over student rights. I suppose it is also apathy that impels 10 or 12 students out of the whole student body to give part of their Sunday evenings each week to sit in the Zehmer Building.

As for myself, I participated in several discussions. I got to laugh a little, blch a bit, and release a few of the frustrations that had built up since last Fall. These frustrations were culminated after finding out from the student convocation that only 63 students out of 1000 even cared enough to come. That lets you know that your work is really appreciated.

Thanks so much Deborah for your sincere concern over student affairs. I plan to vote for you in the elections Wednesday as I'm sure such a novel patriot will be running for an office to see that our SGA is no longer run with less pride than her high school's. Perhaps if you would come to more than one SGA meeting you would truly get a taste of parliamentary procedure and the tedious task of trying to do things for students who don't even care enough to tell you what they want. I only hope that in the future your letters to the Editor are of a constructive nature and not designed merely to see your name printed at the end of a bunch of words.

Sincerely,
Tim Tabor

It's Resignation Rather Than Apathy

Dear Editor:

Some call the low level of student activity in elections apathy. I think a better word would be resignation. The students of Clinch Valley College have resigned themselves to the fact that our college's student affairs are run by a small select group of students. It may be said that this is good because it allows the best to take the lead and put things in order. However, a bit of information may change this idea.

Tony Graham the new SGA President never at any time during the election resigned as Chairman of the Election Committee. He went into state of suspended animation on the Monday before the election and allowed L. H. Davis to run the election. Tony did set the election up though. He should have resigned upon announcing his candidacy.

Steve Minor the new SGA Treasurer should not have been on the ballot at all. His petition was not handed in or even signed until the Monday after the April 1st deadline. This gives anyone a clear case for contesting the election of Steve Minor as SGA Treasurer.

The past election was won on a basis less than honorable to say the least. Honor is supposed to be one of the foundations of Clinch Valley. Surely Tony Graham did nothing illegal and Steve Minor won the election because he got the most votes, but the opportunity for unethical behavior was there. I'm new here at CVC and this is the first large scale election I've seen. If this is even a small example, I can see why students are "apathetic."

Cruche De Merde

(A Closer Look at Campus Architecture, Part One)

Viewed on a solemn spring day, the Colgate Darden Memorial Bridge (affectionately known by students as the Bed Post Bridge) manifests the ethereal essence of its natural surroundings. Since it is an everyday sight, students tend to overlook it; but occasionally, some young couple pauses to reflect upon the romantic setting of this ingenious decor as we can see.

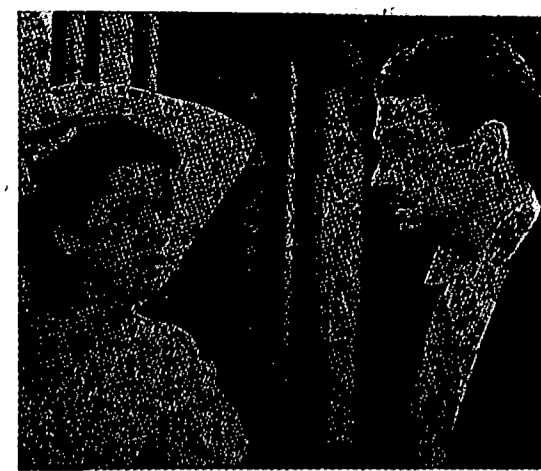

For those of you who are unaware, the Colgate Darden Bridge was recently constructed by our much admired architect-in-residence whose designs have been widely acclaimed as the emergence of a unique style in modern American architecture—a style formally designated as Lippsonian Architecture, or "Early Junque".

The bridge is located on the south side of campus, linking the Resident Transportation Storage Facility No. 2 with the rear concourse of McCrarry Hall. This creative innovation to the beautiful 350-acre campus of Clinch Valley College, aside from its practical use, also provides an idyllic oasis where young lovers can contemplate the eternal questions of Man & the relative position of his design within the framework of this vast, seemingly incomprehensible universe.

Prof. Shelton Publishes Article

The Library recently received the January 1977 issue of Land: Issues and Problems which contains an article by Philip Shelton entitled "Strip Mining for Coal in Appalachian Virginia." This is the first of a two-article series. Professor Shelton writes, "This paper is an attempt to outline the history, nature, and present status of what I believe to be the major land-use problems and issues relating to strip mining for coal in Virginia. A second part will examine aesthetic, social, and economic problems and indicate major trends in attitudes toward strip mining." This article will be on 2-hour Library reserve and the second article will also be put on reserve when it arrives.

Joan Fontaine in Alfred Hitchcock's gothic suspense classical, Rebecca. Winner of the Academy Award-Best Picture of 1940. With Laurence Olivier. The film will be shown at 3:00 and 8:00 in the Science Lecture Hall on April 17, 1977. Charlie Chaplain on roller skates will also appear in the Rink.

The Library: A People Place

By Susan Waddell

Library Assistant In Public Service

Many of you have come into the Library unaware of the people who work here and the services we offer. National Library Week, April 17-23, presents an opportune time to introduce you to our staff and student workers. This will be the first of three articles explaining the operation of the Library's three departments (Technical Services, Cataloging, and Public Services) and presenting a cameo look at the people who staff these three vital areas of library operations.

Technical Services is the beginning of the Library's work flow. Here books, periodicals, audiovisuals, and government documents are ordered and processed before being sent to the Cataloging Department. Miss Nova Gibson came to work as Technical Services Librarian for the John Cook Wylie Library in 1968. Miss Gibson received her B.S. from East Tennessee State University, after which she worked in a school library. Later she received her Master's degree in Library Science from George Peabody College in Nashville; and now she is in the process of taking her Ed.S., Specialist in Education in Library Science, a sixth year degree, also from George Peabody.

In her position as Technical Services Librarian, Miss Gibson performs many functions for the Library. She supervises the acquisition and processing of all books, serials, and government documents. This includes working closely with the faculty concerning their allocations for library materials; over seeing the ordering of books and periodicals and the checking of periodicals and government documents; and supervising the expenditure and accounting of funds. Miss Gibson also supervises the processing of gifts given to the Library and the acquiring of duplicate materials from other libraries.

Some of you have met Miss Gibson in another of her capacities. She teaches two courses, one in Medical Libraries required for the Medical Secretarial Cer-tification and one in Technical Services required for the School Librarian Certification. Also this is her second year as Chairman of the Academic Appeals Committee. (Let's hope few of you have met her in this capacity.) Miss Gibson has been a member of both the Publications Committee and the Social Committee in past years.

Two staff members work under Miss Gibson's supervision, Ms. Patricia Bolling and Mrs. Daisy Portuondo. Ms. Patricia Bolling has been with the Library ever since she was a student worker majoring in Biology here at CVC. After she graduated three years ago, Pat worked as Circulation Supervisor for about a year then became Library Assistant for Public Services and now is Library Assistant for Technical Services and Cataloging. In her technical services role, she supervises student workers, verifies book orders, checks in books and pamphlets, maintains records of books received, assigns Fastcat numbers, receives and sorts government documents, and receives gifts and duplicate exchange material. With all her work experience, Pat thinks some day she may get a Master's degree in Library Science and get yet another job here in the Library.

Mrs. Daisy Portuondo, wife of Professor Augusto Portuondo, was employed by the Library in 1974 as Bookkeeper. Her duties include placing orders for books and supplies, typing and coding invoices, maintaining the ledger of Library accounts, and making monthly expenditure reports to the faculty and the Head Librarian. Daisy came to the United States nine years ago from Cuba where she had received a degree in Public Administration from Havana University. She has been very active in volunteer activities here at the college and in the community and is especially devoted to working with school children and college students. She is the originator and organizer of the CVC International Club and the CVC Creative Arts Summer

The Beaux Arts Ball is an annual event dating way back in Paris. Art students held an annual blowout; came roaring out of their cold, dingy garrets dressed in elaborate costumes of every description to dance the night away and tear up the town. So, come ripping out of your luxurious dorm or your tasteful trailer to dance and frolic. Shake off your everyday self, don a costume and check the action.

The H.R.E.B. has met again, despite dismay and opposition from saner factions, a quorum of one originated and approved all proposals.

April 22
The picnic area will be the scene of the Boze Art Ball and Musicale. Easter Kentucky fiddler J.P. Fraley and wife, Annadeene, will begin the music at 7 pm. All praise given these musicians would be redundant. They classify their music as traditional folk and Annadeene handles an Elizabethan ballad. A Fraley album is available in the campus library.

The Music Department of CVC will provide a variety of selections. Mr. Donothan and students will present a Female Barbershop Quartet, and Octet performing two madrigals, and more.

Miss Vicki Mulliken, vocalist, will perform current selections, included in Vicki's performances are "Evergreen" and "Send in the Clowns."

Those inspired by the Fraleys and Donothan's Gang will be rewarded an outlet in the Jef-erson Lounge at 9 pm. Spectrum has spoken well for itself at previous campus and local dances. The group is much more than a humdrum boogie band. Tight keyboard, drums, guitars and occasional flute give the audience a lot to chew.

Cost for the three events is $1. Tickets will soon be available. In event of rain, the picnic area activities will be moved to the gym.

April 23
Mike O'Donnell remains a mystery. He has dared anyone to participate, free of charge, in a frivolous activity near Emma McCrarry Hall at 10 am. He stated, "The event will involve dexterity through a short distance."

A girl's softball doubleheader will begin at 1 pm.

Robert Kulhken, student, has threatened to mass enough literates, and some that aren't, for a marathon poetry reading commencing at 6 pm. Dallas Tanner and Charles Ingles will present some original works. The reading will be near the library.

Jonathan Williams: Simple Outlook On Life

Jonathan Williams was the guest lecturer-poet during the convocation held on Wednesday, the 13th. Born in a small farming community in the Appalachians of North Carolina, he grew up in Washington DC. In 1951 Mr. Williams founded the Jargon Society, a publishing house for poets and photographers, and at the present he is its editor, designer, and publisher.

Mr. Williams has published over fifty-five books and ninety-five essays since 1951. Before speaking at Clinch Valley College he gave readings at Harvard, MIT, and Cambridge University. He has held numerous positions of honor at various colleges and universities including: Post-in-Residence, University of Delaware; Post-in-Residence, University of Kansas; and Scholar-in-Residence, Aspen Institute for Humanistic Studies.

On Wednesday Jonathan Williams told his audience that he wrote basically about the simple, ordinary things in life. For example, he read a series of epigrams starting with the Roman poet Catullus to Dick Nickles, a friend of his who was killed while photographing the destruction of the Stock Exchange building in Chicago.

Mr. Williams said the purpose of a poet is to "recore and elate". He also stated that poets are "to make things—not to make things up." Most of the poems that he read followed this belief. He would take the words of the people he has talked with and with his skill would arrange the grammar and syntax so that the finished product would read something to this effect: "But pretty though as roses is, you can put up with the thorns."

Mr. Williams poetry is light and usually very visually...those of you who spent Wednesday afternoon in the Jefferson lounge drinking coffee missed an excellent chance to view a poet outlook on the simple things in life.

James Stewart In Imaginative Phantasy"

On Monday, April 18, at 7:00 and 9:00 P.M. in the Science Lecture Hall, the CVC Classic Film Series will present James Stewart in what is probably his best role, George Bailey in It's a Wonderful Life. The film is an imaginative phantasy about a distressed man-Stewart-who is thwarted from suicide by a messenger angel and is forced to reevaluate his life. It is funny, sad, and for once an affirmative view of existence. An absolute must for all who love movies and life.

Jefferson Rip-Off

Dear Sir:

You may have noticed that the portrait of Mr. Jefferson which hung next to my office door has been missing for about a week. Although this picture did not belong to me, I was especially fond of it. It was, in fact, given to the College by the University of Virginia many years ago as a token of the connection between the institutions.

It is ironic that Mr. Jefferson was the spiritual founder of the University of Virginia honor system. He also died believing that every man was basically decent and honest and went astray only when society failed to provide him an environment in which to exercise his basic decency and honesty.

As you know, I have two paintings of faculty members in my office. I had hoped to complete the framing of them so that they could be placed in some appropriate place in the Zehmer Building. I can't help wondering if it is safe to do this. If you visit other colleges, you are impressed with the paintings, statuary, and other things which say to the visitor that these are places peopled by those who have reached a certain level of culture and sophistication. What do bar walls say to the visitor to Clinch Valley College?

Sincerely,

Cavaliers Sweep Doubleheader From Bluefield

The C.V.C. Cavaliers, led by "BooBoo" Rinner with eight hits in nine at-bats, won their first two games of the season, drilling The Bluefield Rams 12-11 and 14-3 Tuesday afternoon on the Cavaliers home diamond.

The Cavs. took the first game of the twinbill in grandiose fashion, rallying for 8 runs in the bottom of the 6th to overcome an banged out two hits, including a double to drive in two runs other standouts include "Jigger" Bradley who drove in four runs for the game and Dennis "Tigerman" Kenndy who lashed a 2-run tripple during the Cavs' explosive inning. Tom Carmichael was credited as the winning pitcher.

Adkins later added a single a double, finishing the day with 4 hits and 4 RBI's. Other big sticks in the CVC lineup included Drew Johnson (2 hits, 1 RBI), Doug Damron (2 hits, 3 RBI's), and BooBoo Rinner (4 hits, 1 RBI). CVC's next home game will be Friday April 15, against King.

An outstanding pitching performance by freshman Donnie Gibson, combined with a 14-run 19-hit attack gave The Cavaliers their most impressive victory in recent years in game two. Gibson fired a 2-hitter and struck out 14 striking out the side in the 3rd and 5th-inning. While the Cavs' pitching ace demonstrated his mastery over the Bluefield hitters, the Cavalier Suggers were scoring almost at will. Jeff Adkins began the barrage by belting a 2-run homer in the second, inning a 6-run rally.

Sink Your Teeth Into This One

Dr. Jan Perkowski, Professor and Chairman of the Department of Slavic Languages and Literatures at the University of Virginia, will bring as background his research into vampires for his visit to Clinch Valley College in the Ralph Eisenberg Lecture Series.

Dr. Perkowski holds A.B., A.M., and Ph.D. degrees from Harvard University in Slavic languages and literatures. He also has studied at the John Hopkins School of Advanced International Studies, in Turkish, at the University of Texas Linguistics Society of America summer institute, and at Charles University in Prague. He has delivered numerous papers on Slavic languages, demonology, folklore of Serbs and Croats, vampires, and Slavic folklore, and has published and edited several books on these subjects.

Dr. Perkowski's lecture "Vampires of the Slavs" will begin at 1:00 p.m. on April 18 in the Theatre Building at Clinch Valley College. The public is welcome to attend.
