Faculty Approve New Performing Arts Degree

By David Messer

The faculty of Clinch Valley College approved a new major at its meeting on Wednesday,

May 3. The degree, Bachelor of Arts in Performing Arts with concentrations in Art, Music, and Theatre will be available for students with sufficient background in one or more of these areas. The purpose of this degree is to provide a comprehensive education in the arts by achieving a balance between comprehensive classroom study of the history, philosophy, and theory of the arts with creative expression and performance.

Each concentration has its own unique requirements for graduation, but all three concentrations have twenty-four semester hours of common or "core" requirements. These include Humanities 101, 102, Art 101 and 305, or 306, Music 101, 102, or 104 105, or 108, 109, Music 233 or 121, Speech 201, Dance 101 and Theatre 485. All students applying for a Bachelor of Arts degree in Performing Arts will be required to take these classes, in addition to the individual concentration requirements. The Art concentration has a requirement of thirty-three semester hours in art classes. The Music concentration requires thirty-eight semester hours of specified music courses, and the Theatre concentration requires thirty-two hours of Theatre classes. In addition to the above requirements the student must complete forty-six hours of general education part of which may be satisfied by classes required by the degree, and nine hours of related work. All students must meet the required 122 hours to graduate.

Dr. Blackburn, Chairman of the Humanities Division, under whose auspices the Performing Arts Degree will fall, emphasizes that the degree will not immediately replace the Theatre Major which now exists for students who have entered under the Theatre major. Rather, it is intended to phase out the current Theatre major, and will apply to those students who enter after its final approval.

Mike Donathan of the music concentration, Charles Lewis of the Theatre concentration, and Betty Gilliam of the Art concentration have been working on the Performing Arts degree since early last Fall. After being reviewed by the planning committee and the curriculum committee, and now that the degree has received unanimous approval by the faculty who were present at the meeting, it must now be approved by Chancellor Smiddy. After he has approved the program, it must be submitted to the University of Virginia and to the State Council of Higher Education for approval. Meanwhile, the Performing Arts degree remains tentative.

For over fifteen years, Bill Deal and the Rhondells have pleased and excited audiences all over the country from New York to Los Angeles, and from east to west and north to south. The Student eight piece group to CVC to make the Spring Formal a memorable occasion, tickets are now on sale, and may be obtained from any SGA member.

Cheek To Support Concert, Intramurals

By Gary Close

"We had people voting this election who I know haven't voted here in four years...I was pretty confident we would win by 20 or 30 votes when it was over," said SGA President-elect Phillip Cheek about his surprise write-in presidential campaign. Cheek also discussed his plans for next year, which follow the same pattern set by former president Tony Graham, with the possible exception of a large concert. Cheek also appears to place more emphasis on CVC sports than previous administrations.

Cheek, a Business-Political Science major was urged by friends Tuesday night before the Wednesday election to run. He said his campaign began about 11:30 p.m. and after gaining presidential hopeful Richard Frye's support, Cheek and his friends began making posters. Frye provided the poster board which he had before his disqualification. Cheek attributed his victory to a large turnout of "commuter" votes. "We got 80 or 90 percent of the commuter votes," said Cheek.

Cheek stated he "didn't have anything definite yet" regarding his future plans though he said the SGA would be run in a more "democratic manner."

Cheek indicated he would expect next year's council to bring action for consideration rather than him. "...do all the innovating," said Cheek, "I'm not going to be an authoritarian."

Cheek stated he would bring in low cost entertainment, much like the pattern set by Tony Graham. The possible exception is a concert. "I've had a lot of pressure from people who want a concert," Cheek said he would check into it, and his decision would be based on student and student council reaction. He said he may hold a referendum on the issue. In years past, concerts have been dismal failures at Clinch Valley. Cheek stated this could be changed by bringing in a "big name" group.

One area Cheek appears very interested in is CVC's intramural sports program. Said Cheek, "There have been problems with the intramurals... They're (participants) all dissatisfied with it." He said it needed, "a little more planning; and that "We (the SGA) need to do something about it." When asked if the intramural woes were the fault of Roy Baker, Housing Director, Cheek replied, "Right".

Sabotage Investigation

By Rick Hutzell

The investigation of the newspaper sabotage two weeks ago has concluded that Charles Jervis acted alone in his execution of "le Coupe de Grace". The Dean of Students, Bonnie Elosser, revealed details of the sabotage incident but would not name the student responsible. However persons inside the investigation did reveal Charles Jervis' name. Jervis has been permanently dismissed from Clinch Valley College.

Dean Elosser did admit that more than one student was involved in the composition of the second page of the April 21st edition of the Highland Cavalier but that "it was executed by Jervis (name not used by Elosser) without the knowledge of some of the students involved. The Confidential Financial Aid form Analysis also printed was given to Jervis by a third student, and yet a fourth student had prior knowledge that the pieces would be printed.

A confession was made by Jervis and the other students which closed the investigation. The decision to permanently dismiss Jervis was made by the students involved, Dean Elosser, and Chancellor Smiddy. The college will not try to keep Jervis from being accepted in other schools but will not hide the details of his dismissal from this school. No punishment has yet been brought against the other students involved, contrary to rumors of social probation.

The investigation was led to suspect Jervis through a "considerable amount of circumstantial evidence" according to the Dean, and through some crucial concrete evidence, though the Dean would not elaborate on what the evidence was. Through questioning Elosser was led to believe that Jervis was the saboteur.

The name of the saboteur was not officially released because it was felt that the punishment given to Jervis was enough. In spite of local newspapers and radio stations publishing the wrong names no public announcement is planned for the future. The radio and newspaper services involved are being contacted by the Dean's office.

Assistant Editor Gary Close stated that the name of Jervis is being revealed because "what he did was unethical, unfair, he is guilty, and it's news." The general student body has known the identity of the saboteur since late last week when Jervis left campus.

As a result of the sabotage the publication committee has been prompted to adopt additional guidelines for the paper. The suggestion came from Dean Elosser, the Chancellors office, and concerned faculty. Also as a result of the sabotage an argument (name calling) between the chancellor occurred over the distribution of the April 21st paper to the public by Messer. Messer resigned and then retracted his resignation before it became official at the suggestion of Dr. Richard Peake, Chairman of the Publications Committee.

Joe Smiddy Will Not Enter Congressional Race

Today, Joe Smiddy, Chancellor of Clinch Valley College announced that he would not be a candidate for the U.S. House of Representatives. In announcing his decision not to run, he cited the heavy workload at the College which prevented his being able to enter the race at an earlier date. Mr. Smiddy, announced that he would support the nomination and election of Mr. Champ Clark of Chilhowie who is the only announced candidate seeking the democratic nomination to run for the Ninth District Congressional seat.

Mr. Smiddy expressed appreciation for all of his friends who so generously offered to support his candidacy.

Riffs

By Fred Cohl

Greetings, fellow CVC sound hounds. This is your good Doctor Decibel, back from a week in the air waves. I am back with news of many new things for your ears and eyes to behold. First of all, it is the new film by Martin Scorsese titled The Last Waltz. As it is billed, "It started as a concert... it became a celebration." The film stars The Band featuring Rick Danko, Levon Helm, Garth Hudson, Richard Manuel and Robbie Robertson. Also featured in the movie The Last Waltz are such rock luminaries as Eric Clapton, Neil Diamond, Bob Dylan, Joni Mitchell, Neil Young, Emmylou Harris, Van Morrison, The Staples, Doctor John, Muddy Waters, Paul Butterfield, Ronnie Hawkins, Ringo Starr and Ron Wood. The film soundtrack is in Dolby stereo and should sound wonderful at theaters that have appropriate equipment to accommodate it. The film is produced by Robbie Robertson of The Band and directed by Martin Scorsese. The movie is rated PG, so everyone can enjoy this film.

On Sunday, April 30, in Central Park in New York City, Miles Forman, who directed One Flew Over The Cuckoo's Nest, shot the be-in scene for the movie version of Hair. As advertised in New York's Village Voice of May 1, anyone who wished to be an extra in the be-in scene in Central Park needed only to show up at 9:00 Sunday morning, preferably dressed in the clothing of the period. This should prove to be a very entertaining and successful motion picture when it's released. So keep your eyes open. New Staff Deserves a listen... Elvis Costello, The Second Album (Columbia), Climax Blues Band, Salve On (Sire), Paul McCartney and Wings, London Town (Capitol), Lou Reed, Street Hassle (Arista), Henry Gross, Love Is The Stuff, Eddie Money, Eddie Money (Columbia), soundtrack of the film FM (MCA), Jerry Garcia Band, Cats Under the Stars (Arista), Root Boy Slim and the Sex-Change Band with the Rootettes.

Check it Out... Carly Simon, Boys in the Trees, Jefferson Starship, Earth (RCA-Grunt), Crack the Sky, Safety in Numbers, Stanky Brown Band, Of Special Note, Michael Murphy, Loose Wolf and Warren Zevon, Excitable Boy.

Must to Avoid... B.T.O., Street Action (Mercury), the soundtrack from Beatlemania (Arista).

There is a new movie out called American Hot Wax which is a nostalgic trip back to the 50's and the days when Alan Freed was the undisputed Master of Ceremonies for the American rock and roll scene. Only to find his downfall in undisclosed amounts of money being sent to him by record promoters to play their records. The resurrection and defecation of Alan Freed, now deceased, should appeal to all you "American Graffiti" freaks who wait all week to watch Happy Days and Laverne and Shirley.

I have to go on emergency call now, the doctor will be in again next week. No appointment necessary.

Steve Gerber: The Man Behind The Duck

Steve Gerber has not been everywhere, nor has he done everything, so urbane omnipotence is not, unfortunately, one of the qualities he brings to his work on Howard The Duck.

Steve was, however, born - on September 20, 1947, in St. Louis, Missouri. And he did manage to survive a lonely childhood to be graduated from University City High School in 1965, and from St. Louis University in 1969, with a Bachelor of Arts in radio-television-film.

Polar Bears Add Cubs

The Polar Bears are proud to announce the addition of three new cubs. The three were chosen by current members and will remain cubs until next winter's Polar Bear Romp. The new cubs are Jean Malar, Alan Witherspoon, and Ron Heise. Congratulations Cubs.

Rick Hutzell has been chosen as next year's chief to replace departing Roger Dallman.

Next year will see the Polar Bears growing and becoming much more visible in campus affairs. Until then, we wish you all clean snow and a good hunting season.

Steve's work experience, prior to joining Marvel Comics in 1972, included stints as a teacher, an advertising copywriter, a used-car salesman, a department store Santa Claus, an unskilled laborer, a travelling encyclopedia huckster, a radio announcer, and a columnist for an underground newspaper.

"I was raised on Ralston, Twinkies, Warner Brothers cartoons, the Little Rascals, hamburgers, bagels, Toll House cookies, and Marvel Comics. If it's true that we are what we eat, my creation of Howard The Duck was not only logical, it was inevitable," says Steve. "Howard is as uniquely and peculiarly American as my intestinal and intellectual diet. He'll be around for a long, long time. He's loaded with preservatives."

Monthly Hikes In Clinch Wilderness

Save Our National Forest invites the public to share four Saturday hikes in four beautiful areas of the Clinch Ranger District of the Jefferson National Forest.

The first hike will be up Devil's Fork on Saturday, May 6. Hikers will meet at 10 a.m. at the Glen Carter Store, 5 miles north of Fort Blackmore, in Scott County, VA, on County Route 619. From the mouth of Devil's Fork, the hike will climb up to beautiful "Devil's Bathub."

Devil's Fork is being considered for possible Wilderness designation under the RARE II "Roadless Area Review and Evaluation" program of the U.S. Forest Service. As an alternative, part of the same area might be taken by Appalachian Power Co. for the lower lake of their proposed pumped-storage electric power facility.

This hike and the three that follow it will be led by a Forest Ranger from the Clinch Ranger District. On each hike participants will attempt to identify distinctive characteristics of the area which might make it more or less suitable for Wilderness designation. Each hiker will share in a brief evaluation at the end of the hike, and the opinions of all will

Former CVC student Becky Botts displays her Wax Fantasies.

Wax Fantasy In Library

Becky Botts, a former CVC student and now an English teacher at Powell Valley High School, has a group of miniature wax sculptures on display in the Library until May 21st. She made the delicate figures and landscapes for an Independent Study course under Betty Gilliam. Some of her subjects are entitled "Indian Village," "Graveyard at Night," "Winter Wonderland," "Huck and Jim," "T.V. or Not T.V.," and "The Skier."

Becky read about this different art medium in a magazine and decided to try it, not without some burned fingers in the beginning. Requiring extreme patience and a firm determination to keep trying even after successive failures, the resulting fantasy figurines are absolutely beautiful. Also Becky has four plaster of Paris sculptures entitled "Angel," "Snow Queen," "The Philosopher," and "Tree Stump." She has some 50 or 60 ideas for more of these sculptures, which she makes in her spare time.

Also on display are some plaster plaques depicting Queen Nefertiti, the Pharaoh, and Egyptian princess, and a museum, all done in acrylic paints. Becky chose the be forwarded to the Forest Service to help in their appraisals.

Parts of the hike will be off established trails. Long pants and long sleeves are recommended, along with sturdy boots or shoes. Hikers should pack their own lunch. In case of rain, the hike will be held the following Saturday, May 13.

On Saturday, June 3, a hike will be held up Roaring Branch between Big Stone Gap and Appalachia, VA. This area is also being considered for Wilderness designation, as are the remaining hikes. Hikers will meet at 10 a.m. at the Pizza Hut at the north edge of Big Stone Gap.

On Saturday, July 8, a hike will be held up Little Stony Creek to the beautiful Falls of Little Stony. It will depart from the Hanging Rock Recreation Area near Dungannon, Va. On Saturday, August 5, a hike will be held through the Big Stony Creek area, leaving from the same place as the first hike. In each case the rain date will be one Saturday later.

Persons wanting more information may call Richard Austin, President of Save Our National Forest, at (703) 467-2437; or Chuck Sabotes, Chief Ranger of the Clinch Ranger District, at (703) 328-2931.

Liberal Arts Majors Riding Rough Seas

Liberals arts majors, it seems, are having the roughest time finding a job this year. Ralph Keller, director of the Stanford Career Planning and Placement Center, puts it this way: "The job prospects for liberal arts majors are not promising. Not much improvement can be expected in the foreseeable future."

Placement offices have, nevertheless, been reporting increases in the number of jobs offered to humanities and social science majors this year. Sam Brown, director of the ACTION agency in Washington, D.C., has even announced a new recruitment policy that favors liberal arts grads over grads with more technical degrees. The increase in job offers, though, is relatively minimal. The College Placement Council (CPC) reports only an eight percent increase, compared with a 36 percent increase in the scientific disciplines.

Many observers, like Vernon Wallace of the San Francisco State College, attribute the increase to "the whole economy picking up," rather than any job boomlet. As it stands, state and federal governmental agencies are primarily responsible for hiring the humanities and social science majors.

The questionable "marketability" of liberal arts grads seems to have worried the discipline into some drastic measures. Even the National Endowment of the Humanities is, according to one of its press releases, "encouraging the development of courses which will take the humanities outside the field of humanities." The hope, of course, is to endow liberal arts majors with a better chance of gainful employment.

Low Salaries

Those who have tried to find it have also tried to re-educate themselves. Sarah Wong of the City College of San Francisco has witnessed a stream of "liberal arts majors returning to get technical skills."

Dr. Garland G. Parker of the University of Cincinnati, who studies such things, thinks the enrollment increases in many two-year and commuter colleges are largely fueled by liberal arts grads "returning to school to find some way back into the job market at higher salary levels."

The average starting salary for humanities and social science grads is $229 per month. The Michigan State University Placement Center found that liberal arts starting salaries have gone up only 4.4 percent since 1969, far lower than the corresponding increases in the Consumer Price Index.

New Course In Religion

The Humanities Division will offer a new course in religion during the fall semester of 1978. The course is Religion 101 - Survey of the Old Testament and will be taught by Dr.

George Aichel, minister at the Gladville Presbyterian Church in Wise. Students who are interested in this course should check the fall class schedule.

Placement

The following positions are available:

Full time - Office girl with filing - $475.00 per month, starting immediately.

Part time - Custodian in museum, full time for summer, part time in fall starting immediately.

Part time - Delivery of carton and package racks around Wise County, $3.50 per hour plus $5.00 per day vehicle use - need a vehicle other than a car, can work as much as 30 1/2 hours per week - starting immediately.

Full time - Manager of a thriving restaurant and carry-out, starts in August, pay range from $5,00 to $9,000 according to education and experience.

There are other full-time openings graduates may be interested in on the Placement bulletin board on the first floor of the administration building. If you are interested in the above positions, contact Trish Collier.
