General Elections Slated For April 22

The election will be held on Monday, April 22 from 8:30 a.m. to 4:30 p.m. Students wishing to run for any of the positions must fill out a declaration of candidacy form (in the Dean of Student's Office). However, for a student to run for a SOA office, twenty-five signatures of CVC students must accompany the declaration. A student running for SOA Representative must secure fifteen CVC student signatures. The SOA constitution states that the declaration of candidacy must be turned in no later than 4:30 p.m. five days prior to the election. However, the Handbook states that only five newspaper coverage to those candidates who have their petitions in by Wednesday, April 16 at 4:30 p.m. This is due to the fact that the paper is mailed on Thursday for printing. There are several requirements that must be met before a student may run for the various offices. Student voting for President, Vice-President, Secretary, and Treasurer must be to food standing with the College, must be full-time students at the time of their election and during their term of office, and must have been enrolled as a full-time student for two consecutive semesters. There are nine 191 SOA representatives to be elected. The freshmen will elect their representatives when they arrive to the campus which will give us a total of twelve representatives. The upcoming Sophomores, Juniors, and Seniors will each elect three members to serve them in the 1981-82 school term. A class representative must be a full-time student in good standing with the College at the time of election and during the term of office. All representatives, except freshmen, who have been enrolled at the College for at least one semester. A representative must be elected by his respective class. Each class will also elect 4 representatives to the Honor Court (3 representatives and one alternate for each class.) A student must simply sign a declaration of candidacy to run for one of these positions. So, drag out the brooms, soap boxes, etc and prepare for 11⁺ two week campaign.

Renovations To CVC?

Chancellor Smiddy recently returned to CVC from Richmond where he had been lobbying for funds for building projects for CVC. Smiddy presented a list of building projects to the Governor's Capital Outlay Study Committee. The Committee then makes recommendations to the Governor on building projects for the next Bi-Annual (1982-84). The General Assembly would then have to approve the revenue spent on the Smiddy presented four priorities to the committee. The first request was for $106,000 to renovate the Academic Building. This would occur when the cafeteria and the Student Services moved to the Student Union Building. The current cafeteria will be converted to a computer and art room. The current office area will be made into a large classroom that be accessible to handicapped students.

The second priority was the building of a new addition to the library with 125,400 in slate funds. A new addition is needed in order for the volume of the library to increase. Most of the original planned conference rooms have required conversion to special purpose rooms to house microfilms, maps, audiovisuals, and the educational materials center.

The third priority includes outside utilities, road, sewer line, parking lot, and water. Currently, parking is limited on the CVC campus and new parking space will be needed with the completion of the Student Union Building.

The fourth priority includes $800,000 to renovate and add to the gymnasium. The greater participation of women in athletics is currently straining existing facilities. Also, expanded special interest demands an increase in seating capacity. Student interest has also required additional recreational facilities such as a handball court and a dance studio.

Smiddy feels that a vote of confidence in the Governor's approval is the best hope for the best.

Rosenberger To Lecture

On April 8 at 3:30 p.m., Clinch Valley College guest lecturer Francis Coleman Rosenberger will conduct a Writing Workshop. It will be held in the lecture hall of the Administration Building.

A retired Chief Counsel and Staff Director of the Senate Committee on the Judiciary, Rosenberger now combines an active interest in law and government with an equally active interest in writing and editing.

Rosenberger's first collection of poetry was published in 1943. Since then, his poetry has appeared in numerous magazines and anthologies. His most recent volume of poetry, An Akhmal, was published in 1978 by the University Press of Virginia.

Rosenberger will be a featured reader at a Poetry Reading to be held on April 9 in the Administration Building Lecture Hall. Others who will read are Patty Payne, M. W. Beth Yarbrough, Catherine Mahoney, and Richard Peaks.

Clinch Valley College invites interested persons to attend both the Workshop and the Poetry Reading.

Shannon To Speak

Shannon will speak at the Carnegie Institute of Technology and Teachers College, Columbia University.

He also has several visiting professorships.

David A. Shannon

Clinch Valley College will celebrate Founder's Day with an address by David A. Shannon, Commonwealth Professor of History and Vice President and Provost at the University of Virginia in Charlottesville. The day marks the birthday of Thomas Jefferson, founder of the University of Virginia, who was born in 1743.

Founder's Day begins with a reception at 10:30 a.m. in the lobby of the Administration Building. Shannon's presentation will be at 11:00 a.m. in the Administration Building Conference Hall.

David Shannon came to the University of Wisconsin, the University of Maryland, and Rutgers University. He also has Billy Ray Jr. will be in action as Spring Mr. He got out of the hospital last week.

By Our Standards But Please...Vote!

The favorite pet peeve of a large number of CVC students is the high rate of student apathy on campus. Sure, we have a lack of student participation in sports, drama, student government, etc. and it is a problem. It's time for student elections to be held and this is a chance to straighten out the problems on campus.

If you're dissatisfied with the way things are done, then don't just sit back and criticize. Anyone can do that and it doesn't accomplish anything. Get someone into the campaign that can get things turned around.

Good student leaders exist on campus but one has to find them. Apathy will probably always be strong here, but this is the chance to bring more students into the campus scene. Everyone needs to get involved and the SGA and the Honor Court are good outlets for this.

Also, remember when you're voting these elections are not popularity contests where you vote for who you party with or who you like best. Vote for the person who will work the hardest for the student body and not special interests. But please, VOTE!

Distorted Information...?

To the Editor:

It was quite exciting to see that the editor had finally decided to deal with a campus issue this year: that being the location of CVC Women's home softball games. The disheartening aspect of this editorial attempt is not that there are a variety of much more important campus problems that could be addressed, (i.e. rate in student housing, lack of adequate and reliable dorm laundry facilities, etc.) but your printing of slanted and distorted information which does nothing to clarify this so-called "controversy."

I agree wholeheartedly with your statement that the basepath usage of the baseball field for softball would "cause the recently sown grass to disappear." Yes, I too feel that our defending state champions should have a field on campus for home games. But let me remind you that this was the baseball team's dilemma for several years until enthusiastic and energetic people developed a marginal baseball facility. Yes, why can't we have separate but equal athletic facilities at CVC? I surely don't know why not, although I have learned the lesson that if you don't do it yourself, it won't get done. In that vein, I have rarely seen the women's team on mass work to improve their field's condition. As far as your accusation that dirt for the softball field was diverted to the baseball field, I know this to be totally false, so we need not be reminded of that issue!

The field's drainage problems will always exist. No drainage system will satisfy the volume of water that lies several feet below the surface area in the form of the water table.

I again agree with your closing statements that the renovation of the softball field would benefit intramurals and the college community. Your suggestion for projects by the softball team to improve their lot are positive, but let them beware of the inevitable big toes that get stepped on. Then look out!

The heading of your commentary should not have read "To Win Or Not To Win" (we all try very hard), but should instead have read "CVC Athletics, Inequality or Parity."

Yours in Sports,
Marty Keene

Editor's Note: Last week's editorial was not intended to down the baseball team or anyone on it, because I support them wholeheartedly and wish them the best of luck. The editorial was simply intended to spark action concerning the lack of a playing field for women's softball. Concerning the campus problems that could be addressed, the ones that you mentioned have already been addressed in the "By Our Standards" column on November 17 and January 26.

Conduct At Film Questioned

To the Editor:

On March 26th, 1981 the CVC Film Series, was happy to present the concert documentary "Ladies and Gentlemen, The Rolling Stones." Along with the film, Laura Lasser, editor for this work answered questions between showings, concerning the art and science of Film Editing. I felt everyone of the over 100 persons in attendance enjoyed themselves and conducted themselves in a manner becoming to CVC. However, after the showing, the lecture hall was strewn with bottles, cans, cigarette butts and papers. Besides being extra work for the maintenance staff, preparing the room for classes in the morning, there is a school rule prohibiting any drinking, intoxicant or otherwise in the lecture hall—and a prohibition against smoking due to gas jets in the room.

The administration is rightly concerned about this situation, due to events of a few years back, when things of this nature got very much out of hand. It is my desire to bring entertaining and thought-provoking programming, that is compatible to the whole college communities taste.

So I ask you to help me in this particular instance and confine your smoking to the lobby and restricting any type of refreshment consumption to before or after the showings.

Thank You,

Peter Genovese
Faculty Director of Campus Film Series

Communications Days A Success

By Marti Libby

Communications Days, March 26-27, were a success according to the local townspeople, the CVC faculty and students, and the newsmen and poets who participated in the program. The idea of the Days was to explain to us how the Medium got started in this region: Southwest Virginia, how it developed into what it is presently, and how it affects the daily lifestyles of Southwest Virginians. Each of the newsmen lectured on these three subtopics using his own way of communicating in addition to using his media's method of communicating to show the audience how the medium is working to bring the news in this area. The poets communicated their ideas to the audience by reading and explaining some of their works.

"Frank Leeming gave the audience a good deal of useful information about his paper's role in the news of Southwest Virginia. One interesting statistic was the fact that only 61% of Southwest Virginia citizens even read a daily newspaper," is the opinion of Ms. Sharon Daniels, Director of Public Relations of CVC.

In addition, she believes "the audience was captivated by the two panel discussions: one dealing with ethics in news, and the other pursuing the question, 'what is news?'. Both elicited questions from the audience."

She continues with her praise of the program on the poetry end: "The poetry readings were enjoyable. Steve Goodwin ended the two-day program on an upbeat note with his low-key, but highly informative poetry workshop."

Ms. Daniels follows up with statements on the sections of the program dealing with the television media. "The T.V. news director: Bob Smith and Bob Carlton described how to put together a 30-minute newspaper. Television, unlike newspapers, provides a primary source of information for 70-75% of the area's residents."

She concludes with a positive note for the Days: "There was so much work involved in the preparation that I wondered if it would be worth it. Communications Days was far more successful than I had hoped and imagined."

As is shown in the previous paragraphs, Ms. Daniels is one example of the good opinions CVC faculty and students and the local townspeople hold for the program. In a survey took by the Virginia Foundation for the Humanities and Public Policy one of the sponsors of the program 47% said they would attend again next year if a similar program was held. 6% said no. The Days were rated enjoyable by 36%. No one said that it was unenjoyable. 49% said they would recommend the program to a friend. 4% claimed they wouldn't recommend the program to a friend.

Mr. Frank Leeming, publisher of the Kingsport Times-News, expressed his opinion of the Days in the Sunday edition of the Times, March 29, 1981. He compares all of the newspaper men who gave lectures, praise the poets, draws a bit on the opinions of several members of the audience, explains what his role in the program was, and shows the pride for their region that is developing among Southwest Virginians, in his article.

Several students expressed their opinions of Communications Days:

Greg Vanover, Freshman, Major-Accounting: "In my opinion, the Communications Days were very interesting and informative. I had time to see only one lecture—Frank Leeming's, but from what I saw, he was interesting and a person could tell he was very knowledgeable in his occupation. The Communications Days were well-planned and should continue to be a scheduled event at CVC."

Cindy Saylor, Sophomore, Major-Communications: "Being a communications major with a hopeful career in journalism, I especially enjoyed Frank Leeming's lecture about the development of the Southwest Virginia edition of his paper, the panel discussion on ethics, and Bob Smith, Jr.'s lecture, 'How to put together a local TV news program'. I think the Communications Days were a total success and I think many issues and interests were covered. I am looking forward to another variety of communication activities in the future."

Clinton Jervis, Junior, Major-Social Welfare: "In the panel discussion on ethics, I don't think the reporters' viewpoints on the issues were sound. They said they were objective, but they didn't appear to be. I feel that although I did not attend every session, Communications Days were worthwhile and would be interesting in attending any future activities of this nature."

Yours truly is under the opinion that there should be more activities like this one. Students then wouldn't be able to complain that there wasn't anything to do. As for the Communications Days, they were very informative since my intended major is journalism.

Two of the majors of the English department gave their viewpoints of the program.

Dr. Richard Paske states, "It was more successful than I ever anticipated it would be. The two panel discussions were especially successful. He will have a similar program next year but probably only a one-day event. The only disappointment was the small amount of community participation."

Mr. Ron Heise says, "It was a good strong program with lots of material in there for anybody interested in either printing or the electronic mediums.

Particularly impressive to me were the Thursday morning and afternoon programs featuring Frank Leeming, Forrest Landon, Carol Tate, and Ronald McDonald.

Also especially interesting to me were the Thursday and Friday sessions that had a lot of opportunity for audience participation with the media specialists built into the program's format. In addition, I believe the audience was treated to three very fine poets and their work: Betsy Shell, Marion Hodge, and Leon Stokesbury.

Both Thursday and Friday seem to me to be highly satisfactory excursions into a more critical, humane understanding of the media."

Tips For A Successful Job Interview

Tips For A Successful Job Interview

Now that the Spring semester is almost over, many graduating seniors and students seeking summer employment will be going to job interviews. To insure that an applicant makes a good impression upon the interviewer, here are some tips which might be helpful.

Your Appearance
Dress appropriately for the job interview, and be well groomed.

Maintain good posture by standing up and sitting up straight. Remember to be as poised as possible, and of utmost importance, remember to smile or at least look pleasant.

Your Attitude
Act attentive, interested and ready to work. Look at the interviewer while he questions you, because eye contact is important. Be yourself; pleasant and natural but business-like. Display confidence and assurance and most importantly, think positive.

Don't forget to thank the interviewer for his time before leaving.

Your Communicative Ability
Speak distinctly, use good English, and remember to answer questions directly and truthfully.

Your Participation In The Interview
Let the interviewer lead the discussion or control the interview. Give all information requested, even if you think it is too personal. Display documents only when more facts are requested. Remember you are selling your qualifications rather than your need for the job. Stress your interest in the type of work for which you are applying. Be realistic in discussing a salary. And, remember to make a written note of time, date, and place when asked to call or return for another interview.

If anyone needs assistance finding employment, remember the Placement Office here at CVC, and the Virginia Employment Commission in Norton can help. Good luck to you all!

"Real People"

By Jim Collie
 Baptist Campus Minister
 Last Wednesday I did my best solemn impersonation. The reason for my bleary-eyed, not-quite-with-it appearance was the Academy Awards show on Tuesday night. Once I started watching, I couldn't stop. That show may have set some kind of a record for awards shows. It began at 10 p.m. and lasted until almost 1:30 a.m.

The length of the show is not my point, however. What kept my interest was the people, the very real people. The films nominated for Best Picture were either biographies or about our human situation. Thanks to the media, even the actors, actresses and producers and directors are well-known. As a recent court case proved, we know too much that is not true as well. But we know these folk as real people!

It is real people that make up this world. From the opening film clip of our President, to the humor of snice Johnny Carson, even to the impostor who stole an Oscar from the stage before our eyes. I'll never forget my senior English teacher, Mrs. Blanche Taylor telling us again and again that, "Literature is life." And so it was Tuesday night. Which brings me at last to the point.

 There is a book that I would commend to you. It is literature and more. It is about real people.

 Chances are excellent you will find yourself in its pages. It is the Bible. It is God's Word. It is literature and it is life.

Are You Glad To Be Alive?

By Warren H. Wattenbarger
 Campus Minister
 Wesley Foundation

Some people would give only a qualified yes to the question and say that they would love life if it were not for pain, troubles, friends who misused them and life's dull routines and obligations. One psychologist claims that all therapy is based upon a patient's response to the question, "Are you glad to be alive?"

To be alive, one must recognize, accept and eventually come to terms with life's liabilities and hazards. To ride out life's storms faithfully, not fatalistically, and heroically, not stotically, we need the resources God makes available to us.

One must also seek those ties which bind life harmoniously and co-operatively to the lives of other men. No person is an island. Solitary living is impossible. For good or ill, we are bound in the bundle of life.

We must, furthermore, know him who is the Author of Life: God is life's indispensable ingredient, the yeast that rises life above boredom and purposelessness, life's sustainer and goal.

Read Deuteronomy 30:19: "I have set before you life and death—therefore, choose life."

Women's Tennis 1-2

By Cindy Saylor

The CVC women's tennis team has organized for the spring season, shaping up for a much larger schedule than last season. Lady Netters have participated in two matches as yet, possessing a 1-2 record. Ferrum and Emory and Henry ousted the Lady Cavs 8-1 and 9-1 respectively, as the Cavs out-volleyed Virginia Intermont 6-3.

New talent on the team are Trish Badzinaki, a freshman of Germany, Kim Adams and Tammy Jenkins, sophomores of Norton, and Debbie Mullens, freshman of Pound.

Returning from the 1979-80 season are juniors Marcia Adams and Kim Still of Norton, sophomore Norma Peters of Coeburn, and sophomore Susan Jarmolowski of Hampton.

The Lady Cavalier Netters are coached by Doris Hubbard.

What About This Year?

By Mark Schifflen

The old Brooklyn Dodger fans used to shout "wait till next year" but the long-suffering CVC fans can be excused if they exclaim "What about this year?" The new look Cavaliers here displaying some old look habits that have been typical of their play in the last few years and all the early optimism of various players has been replaced with some bitter cynicism.

The Cavaliers started this comedy of errors last week by striking out 14 times and falling 18-3 to Bristol Commercial College, Bristol what? The posting pointed out a few of the problems of trying to play without adequate preparation. This shortcoming was confirmed a couple days later when the Cavs dropped a doubleheader against Union without scoring a run. Lawrence Jervis was rocked for 8 runs in the first game while bad breaks and mental errors thwarted freshman Russ Miller in the second game as he had to settle for a 2-0 loss.

So the first three games have done nothing to dispel any doubts that surround this team. Marty Keena's running game strategy is breaking down due to lack of base runners, the hitters have been impotent and the infield defense has been sieve-like.

With the most of the conference schedule coming up, the Cavaliers are having a hard time treading water in the KIAC. The team is earnest enough, but they are going to need a lot more to contend in this conference.
