Faculty Supports No-Smoking

At the meeting of the faculty on May 6, 1981, the faculty voted unanimously to support a resolution to ban smoking in classrooms. The resolution had been approved by the students in the April 23 SGA election and presented to Chancellor Smiddy for his consideration. He referred the resolution to the faculty with the comment, "I would like to commend the students for their stand and recommend that the faculty take a similar position." He announced that effective June 8 the College will have a policy banning smoking in classrooms.

Dean Low, in commenting on the student vote stated, "I commend the students on this responsible and courageous action."

Hawpe Heads For Land Of Sunshine, Greenies, Fins, Bikinis

George Hawpe, Assistant Professor of Political Science at CVC, recently announced his plans to leave CVC.

Hawpe stated that there is not one factor why he is leaving CVC, but many. First, he felt that he has never really felt comfortable in the environment (Wise County). He stated, "There are some awfully good people here. I will miss them and most of all I will miss the students. However, I will not miss Wise County."

A second factor Hawpe feels that prompted his departure is the intellectual climate of CVC. Hawpe stated that the intellectual climate was sterile—no longer a challenge. He pointed out that there are very little intellectual discussions among faculty members. Most just do their work and go home. Hawpe also stated, "Very few of the faculty members have actively worked with student organizations. However, more ought to be willing to work with these organizations."

A third factor influencing Hawpe's decision is the fact that there are things in life he wants to do but can't do here. Hawpe is interested in learning to sail. Eventually he would like to build his own sailboat and live on it. Also, he feels land-locked here. Throughout his life he has lived close to a body of water. He would like to live in Florida but his long range plans include sailing to the islands of Caribbean, French West Indies and eventually go to Tahiti to live on the island of Bora Bora. On this island he would like to open a Rum and Sandwich shop.

The fourth and final reason concerns the weather patterns of the area. Here there are too many overcast days. Hawpe would enjoy a semi-tropical environment.

Hawpe is undecided on his future occupation. However, he is definitely heading South before his dream shrinks. His immediate plans include moving

Townsend Leaves CVC

Mr. Jeff Townsend, social welfare professor, has decided to leave CVC to pursue a dream and because he is "burned out" from teaching. Townsend is attending tractor trailer school in Richmond in order to fulfill a boyhood dream. He has taught social welfare for quite a few years.

Townsend, a native of Johnson City, Tennessee, graduated from Eastern Tennessee State University as an undergraduate and then went on to Florida State University where he got his Masters Degree in social work. From then on it was into the working world. He worked for one year in Florida as a psychiatric social worker. He then moved on to the Atlanta public

Faculty Votes...

To Terminate Social Welfare Program

The Social Welfare Program at Clinch Valley College may be discontinued as of 1982. On May 6, 1981 the planning committee recommended at the faculty meeting that the program be terminated at the end of the 1981-82 academic year. The faculty voted to accept the recommendation of the planning committee on the matter.

The recommendation will be sent to the Chancellor to take whatever action he deems appropriate. Dean Low said,

"The decision was made now on the program to prevent keeping students up in the air on it. Parts of the program will be determined next year because the present committee cannot commit the committee of next fall to any decisions. An alternative being considered would be perhaps offering a concentration or a minor in the courses. There are questions which need to be answered about the program's effectiveness and CVC will talk to professional people in the Social Welfare areas." Jeff Townsend, CVC Social Welfare Professor said, "I believe we owed it to the students in the program to stick with it. If they decide they want the program back here in the future, they will have to submit back to the State Office of Higher Education. This usually takes five years." Continuing he said, "The planning committee never gave reasons for doing away with it. I didn't attend the

George, Marty's Last Words

Dear Friends,
As many of you know, we've decided to sail upon this cosmic ship and leave behind all those living and dying in three-quarter time. With a combined total of over fifteen years of living and working in the mountains of southwest Virginia, we have decided to find new geographic milieus which will allow us to "die while we're living then live while we're dead." Although there are many experiences which could be listed here which would represent our attempts to contribute to the overall college community, we again would like to quote our beloved J.B., who stated, "...Island, they say no man is like you, they say you stand alone, sometimes we feel like that too!"

A special feeling will always exist when we each have our moments of reflection on our times here in the mountains. As a subliminal montage we can envision Kentucky Derby week-end, the Den of Sin, Cecil sitting on his porch, seven o'clock in the morning baseball practices, PIKAPPA PHI Happy Hours, schools of sharks circling the weekly dances, twenty-five cent Monday's at the Zone, double-vision and the fear of eternal damnation.

Caribbean madness will always exist within us as we head to different parts of call to consume mass quantities of rum and women. We hope that ultimately we all come to realize that "the pleasure was worth all the pain."

Best of luck and all our love to those of you who know who you are!

From atop the crow's-nest of the Euphorbia III, its George and Marty

By Our Standards Reflections...

Once again it's time to reflect on this year's accomplishments of the Highland Cavalier.

First, we attempted to gather stories of particular interest to the student body, in addition to the straight news stories.

Second, we again attempted to cover events of concern to student life with the greatest care. Our success on this part can be shown by the two ten page issues presented this year. We strongly believe that the paper was presented in an unslanted manner. At times, we were on one side or another of the issue at hand but we tried very hard to present both sides so you, the student, could form your own opinion of the issue.

However, the success that we feel cannot be placed entirely on your shoulders. There are many who contributed stories throughout the year. Without these people a paper of any type would be impossible.

Thanks to Cindy Saylor and Mark Schifflin who kept the sports page overflowing each week.

A big thanks is extended to Renee Shepard who gave up her time each week to type the copy. Without her a paper would have been, perhaps, impossible.

Many thanks are also extended to Sharon Daniels. Thanks to her coming through with new articles on Thursday, all of the four page papers we thought we were going to have transformed into six page editions.

And finally, thanks to Ron Heise who was always there when we had problems with the paper.

We look forward to being back next year. We hope our staff and contributing writers will be the largest ever at CVC. Have a nice summer and come back to school ready to make CVC a better place for student life.

Sincerely yours,
Jerry Kilgore, Editor

—Student Apathy—

On Saturday, May 2, students began decorating the gym at 9:30 a.m. for the 1981 Spring Formal. All that attended the formal noticed how great the decorations were.

However, a problem did exist in decoration. Only a handful showed up to decorate. It took these few people until 3:30 p.m. to finish decorating. A question came to my mind: "Were there all those that were wanting to better student life on election day when they big chance had arrived?"

I realize some may have had to work at their respective jobs but what about the others who had nothing to do? Furthermore, if the students are willing to work for a better campus life, should they expect one person or one organization to accomplish it? Think about it.

Sincerely Yours,
Jerry W. Kilgore, Editor

Superb Formal Program.....

Dear Editor:
In regard to the Spring Formal, which was held on Saturday, May 2, 1981, I firmly believe that Ray Russ, SGA President, should be commended by all the CVC students who attended for his superb selection of a band. In my opinion, this was the best band and dance Clinch Valley College has ever had. I would also like to take this time to mention that the gymnasium was decorated with expertise.

Once again, I feel Ray deserves considerable recognition for a job well done. His hard work and devotion in preparation for this event excelled far above the average.

Sincerely yours

meeting because I wanted no part in deciding what color to paint the Titanic.

Some of the faculty members boycotted the decision and walked out of the meeting. Dr. Peake explained his reasoning on the matter by saying, "There was not enough information presented at the meeting, even though the planning committee was directed to get information. A lot of the faculty boycotted because of this. No information was presented about the Social Welfare Program on the national or state-wide levels. No rational decision can be made on blind fate."

What Has Happened To CVC Theatre?

Dear Editor:
What has happened to CVC theatre? Has Sir Lewis lost his disciplinary touch? It seems to me that the one act plays given during the past few weeks have been well below the usual high standard of the Highland Players.

This spring's talented Performing Arts Department may be trying to do too much and spreading itself too thin. It is probably just a simple case of spring fever, but time is too precious an item to be wasted on under rehearsed theatre.

Townsend...

school system where he worked for three years as a social worker. Townsend then moved to a slightly different position in his profession: professor. He taught for two years at ETSU; seven years at the University of Georgia, Athens; two years at Western Carolina University, Cullowhee, North Carolina; and two years here at CVC. Mr. Townsend has served as director of the Social Welfare Program and has taught practically all of the Social Welfare courses listed in the catalog during his two years here.

Readers will recall Bruce Gibson's article in the Highland Cavalier regarding the recommendation that the Social Welfare Program be discontinued after the 1981-1982 academic year. Townsend stated then that he hoped to be able to persuade the Planning Committee to revise their recommendation and retain the program as a minor or a concentration. The Planning Committee has since decided to affirm their original recommendation to the chancellor that the program be discontinued.

Townsend is disturbed that the Social Welfare is being dropped because he is leaving and because of accreditation. In order to accredit the program, there must be enough students enrolled in the program for CVC to employ the two full-time faculty members needed for accreditation. He recommended that the program be kept as a minor or as a concentration because he feels it is needed to broaden CVC students' education.

Although Mr. Townsend is not unhappy "with CVC or the people here", he's dissatisfied with his income as a teacher of social work, which is one of his reasons for leaving. He believes all teachers should have a better income. Another reason for Townsend choosing to leave his profession is that he is very discouraged about the current national trends regarding social welfare programs as a result of the Reagan budget cuts.

Two CVC Profs Receive Forest Service Awards

Chancelor Joseph Smiddy and Professor Philip Shelton were two of the three recipients of the recent awards given by the Forest Service in honor of its 75th Anniversary. The awards were given for significant contributions to forestry and conservation. The three local awards were recommended to the Chief of the Forest Service in Washington, D.C. by the Jefferson National Forest Division.

Joseph C. Smiddy's award was for being instrumental in starting the arrangements whereby Clinch Valley College houses and feeds the Youth Conservation Corps. This program was begun several years ago as the first YCC Camp in the state of Virginia, and it continues each summer. He also was recognized for championing sound conservation measures for national forest land as well as of surface-mined private lands. Smiddy also participated in the RARE II (Wilderness Study) process.

Philip C. Shelton, professor of biology, received the award for his part in advising the Jefferson National Forest on natural resource management. He assisted in making a rating of the four RARE II areas on the Clinch Ranger District, encourages his students to seek information first hand from the Jefferson National Forest, has joined tours of the Jefferson National Forest, has given input on various management practices, has given the Jefferson National Forest view of the surface mining issues by being on the Governor's Council on Surface Mining, has spent many weekends studying bird populations on the Mount Rogers National Recreation Area and has given input on its management.

The other award recipient was John McKilgore, former chairman of the Wise County Board of Supervisors, who was instrumental in establishing the Flatwoods Civilian Conservation Center (Job Corps) in the late 60s, for his support of the center since its establishment, for his support of the reconstruction of the Flatwoods Picnic Area and High Knob Recreation Area, his support of recreational development in the National Forest, and for his guidance and advice to Forest personnel on natural resources and human resource management programs. Kilgore is the father of CVC faculty member Doris Hubbard.

Our Search For Understanding

by Warren H. Wattenbarger
Campus Minister
Wesley Foundation

This great effort of all our lives, if it had to be stated in one word, is spent in searching of understanding.

Understanding is the vital link in the chain of living that ties us to others. This tie helps us to link our thoughts, feelings, and aspirations with the human race. Without understanding we are locked into our own mental reserves with no give and take and no true picture of how we measure up against others.

To have someone share our cares, our hopes, our feeling, and our thoughts gives the most buoyant feeling on the other hand nothing is so depressing as living alone, especially if it means we are not merely away from someone who cares but truly without such a person.

Most of us walk, work, study and live among many people. We may even say "good morning" or "good evening" or pass the time of day with people yet feel that there is no real care or concern and that nobody really cares or takes the time to sense how we feel. No wonder there are so many people around us who are crying out in word and deed for genuine human feeling. Some are driven to the most outrageous deeds; others are motivated by the warmest feelings and to understanding.

Let us continue to develop a spirit of understanding that we may be of assistance to those around us and find greater strength and support for our own life.

Good luck to all who are graduating. We wish each of you a great summer. We look forward to seeing you next fall.

It Is A prayer... Godspeed

By Jim Colke,
Baptist Campus Minister

I can't remember when it was that I began to use the word "Godspeed" as the closing to all my personal letters. My acquaintance with the word most certainly goes back to my early school days in the Tidewater area of Virginia surrounded by places like Jamestown, Williamsburg, Yorktown and Newport News. While those of you from other areas of Virginia and the nation might associate the phrase "the three ships" with those of Columbus, I think of the Susan Constance, Godspeed, and Discovery, those three cramped vessels that brought those first Jamestown settlers. It's funny how a word sticks in your mind. I remember that the ship called Godspeed in one history book appeared as Godspeed in another. Intrigued I investigated the words. The term "Godspeed" is even in the dictionary. It is a contraction of "God speed you." How appropriate for the name of a ship upon which its passengers had placed so much hope for the future and possibly their very lives. The term "Godspeed" was often used much as we would say, "God luck!" or "I hope you have success."

So I want to say to you now, "Godspeed!" You've meant very much to me. I've greatly appreciated the privilege of writing for The Cavalier and of being a part of the life of Clinch Valley College this year. For to me, "Godspeed" means much more than "God luck" or "Success." I wish you those things, too. But "Godspeed" is more than a wish. It is a prayer. Godspeed!

Low Receives Award

Lana Low has received an award from the Virginia Educational Research Association for her research on the enduring effects of teachers. The results of her research are reported in her doctoral dissertation entitled "The Enduring Effects of First-Grade Teachers on the Subsequent Achievement of Their Students". The award will be presented to her at the Thirtieth Annual Conference on Educational Research to be held in Charlottesville on May 11-12.

This year's conference theme "Research Agenda for the 80's" focuses on problems, issues, needs, and designs for educational research for the 80's.

Students who will receive Two-Year Certificates, completed in May, are Mary Magdalene Fleming, Clintwood, and Victoria C. Johnson, St. Paul.

An additional 34 students expect to complete degree requirements in August, and they will participate in the Commencement exercises and be recognized as potential degree recipients. They include:

to Florida to enroll in the Annapolis Sailing School to take lessons in sailing. Hawpe said, "I will also be chasing brown skin women in tight bikinis on the beaches of the Florida Gulf Coast."

When asked about his biggest achievements at CVC, Hawpe cited several. First, he took pride in preparing students for law school. Eight of his former students are practicing law and two are currently in law school and doing well. Second, he felt that he provided good solid subject material in classes for students to build on in graduate or professional school. He was also grateful that he assisted the brothers in getting a national charter for the Pi Kappa Phi Fraternity here at CVC.

Hawpe said, "I would like to personally thank all of my friends here at CVC for all of the nice things they've done for me and said about me over the years. My only regret is that so many of these friends are contented at this stage to be 'living and dying in 3-4 time'." Hawpe hopes that he can look back on his experience here and decide the pleasure will be worth all the pain.

In closing Hawpe hopes that all will remember him among other famous Missourians such as Harry Truman, Mark Twain, and Jesse James.

Clinch Valley College Will Continue Theater With Summer Production Workshops

Theatre at Clinch Valley will continue through the summer months with students who enroll in the five-week Summer Production Workshops.

Theatre 288 and 299 will meet from June 15 through July 19, and will be directed by Gary Slamp. He is a graduate of CVC and has had roles in various productions here for a number of years. Some of his memorable performances were in "Playboy of the Western World," "Monty Python and the Holy Grail," "The Trollop Who Believed in People," "Charlie's Aunt," "You Can't Take It With You," and "A Part of the Great Design." He also has directed several one-act plays and such major productions as "Scuba Dubs" and "Don't Drink the Water."

In the course of the summer workshop, participating students will be involved in all aspects of theatre and will present at least one major play. Six hours of college credit will be awarded for each of the Summer Production Workshops.

Students may preregister now for Theatre 288 and Theatre 299, or they may register on June 8.

The Guiding Light

By April Douglas

Everyone during their life span needs some form of guidance or another. Many of us are guided by decisions made by our parents, loved ones, and friends.

But the only real guidance that is beneficial is the guidance from within one's heart. There's no other "guiding light" than knowing who you are and what you want to be. To have self assurance, inner strength and a good foot forward in accomplishing anything, it takes that guiding light within ourselves.

A Guide... To Taking Examinations

by Ann Morris
Special Services Counselor

Examinations probably cause more anger, anxiety, fear, and complaints than any other academic aspect of college life. Attitudes toward a particular examination, in general, may play an important role in your performance.

Students who are tense or highly anxious are less likely to do well on an examination. Being relaxed is a great advantage in taking a test, and the best way for most people to relax is to feel they know their material. An additional aid in relaxing is being fully rested and having eaten properly.

Preparing For Exams

You have probably heard this all before: Studying for exams is a constant process; it does not begin a few days before the exam. Following a semester study schedule prevents falling behind, and good notes provide clear, concise, and readable material from which to study. The final study should involve review and integration, not initial reading.

If you have not kept up, the pressure is on! One of the best ways to prepare for exams is to predict questions and then practice answering the questions you predicted. Studying with others can be very helpful, but only when the group does not lapse into general discussions.

Procedures for taking exams in general

1. Read all directions carefully.
2. Look over the entire exam.
3. Read each question all the way through.
4. Understand the scoring system.
5. Do not spend too much time on any one item.
6. Go over the exam carefully when you have finished.

Objective Exams

1. Avoid careless errors on answer sheets. Put the answer in the correct space.
2. Be careful with absolutes - all, never, always. These generally cause an answer to be false.
3. Do not hesitate to change an answer.

Essay Exams

1. Write a brief outline of your response.
2. Include an introduction and good concluding statement.
3. Use good grammar, spelling, punctuation, and handwriting.
4. Length is not always better than quality.
5. Budget your time.
6. Leave space after each question - you may remember something else to include.
7. Stick to the question.

Tennis Team Third In KIAC

Clinch Valley's Mens Tennis Team finished third in the KIAC Tournament held at Campbellsville college on April 30-May 1. The team results were: (1) Campbellsville-23 pts., (2) Georgetown-15 pts., (3) Clinch Valley-9 pts., (4) Thomas Moore 7 pts., (5) Berea-5 pts., (6) Union-1 pts., (7) Pikeville-0 pts. "I think the College can be proud of the team's record and third place finish," said Van Daniel. "Five of the starting singles players are playing their first year of college-level tennis. The teams that finished ahead of us had junior and senior players at most positions."

The following players did exceptionally well in the tournament: Greg Cole playing at number three singles, Johnny Clifton playing at number five singles, and Barry Dombek-Jack Browning at number one doubles. Greg Cole won the conference championship at his number three position and earned 3 points for the CVC team. He will receive a championship certificate for his performance. Johnny Clifton reached the finals at the number five position. He lost to heavily favored Bill Sadler of Campbellsville in an extremely close 7-5, 4-6, 7-5 match. Barry Dombek and Jack Browning reached the finals in the number one doubles division. They were defeated in the finals by Searcy and Barbour of Campbellsville. Searcy and Barbour were defeating KIAC and District 32 Champions and also attended the National Finals last year. Both Clifton and Dombek-Browning earned 2 team points for CVC. Other players earning one team point were Barry Dombek at number one singles, and Kenny Beverly-Rick Davidson at number two doubles. Dombek lost to Dale Wright of Georgetown in the semifinals 6-0, 6-3. He was the only player to win a game against Wright in the tournament. Beverly and Davidson lost to the eventual champions of the number two doubles division. Campbellsville's team of Cobb-Sadler defeated Beverly-Davidson 6-2, 6-4.

The team will play Union College at Union on May 5 and

Cole Is KIAC Champion

Yes, the headline is correct! CVC does have a KIAC Champion. Greg Cole, a freshman from Big Stone Gap, relied on his steady baseline play to wear down a more erratic opponent from Georgetown College to take the individual title in the number three singles division of the KIAC Tennis Tournament held at Campbellsville College April 30-May 1. Cole lost the first set to Brad Hamilton of Georgetown 4-6 but came back to win the last two sets 6-1, 6-4. In the first round he had defeated Mike Smith of Union 6-2, 6-3 and in the semifinals he had defeated John Kauffman of Berea 6-1, 4-6, 6-1.

Greg's season record now stands at 9-5. Most of his losses came early in the season, and he entered the Tournament having won 5 of his last 6 matches. Greg is a pre-med student and plans to major in one of the sciences.

Randolph's women's team practices in hopes of winning the Intramural Championship.
