Prominent Figure In CVC's Establishment Dies

Colgate Darden Jr., the third president of the University of Virginia and a major force in the establishment of CVC as a branch of UVA died at his home in Norfolk at the age of 84. According to Chancellor Joseph Smiddy, "Without the willingness of Darden to open the first branch of the University, CVC would not have been possible."

On July 2, a memorial service was held at CVC for Darden. Prior to his death the Darden Society, a honor society whereby students must maintain a 3.5 GPA, was named for him. Also, the portion of the Coeburn road that falls within the Town of Wise limits is named Darden Drive.

Darden and his wife also gave generously by their own means to support the college. They established an endowment fund to support a speakers program at CVC. Continuing, they donated two valuable tracts of land to the college. The tracts include the area that was stripmined and the area where the parking lot is located behind the college.

Darden has a long list of public service to the Commonwealth of Virginia. He was elected to the House of Delegates in 1939. He served in Congress from 1933 to 1941 and became Governor in 1942. He began his twelve year service as the University's president in 1947.

Following Darden's death, petitions were being distributed to rename CVC Colgate Darden College. The efforts died when most agreed that it would be best if the current name was kept. Darden's last visit to CVC was in 1970 when he gave the commencement address to CVC's first four-year class.

Smiddy ended by stating, "Darden is CVC's number-one citizen and his efforts in establishing CVC will not be forgotten."

Orientation '81 A Success

By Valeri Jones

The orientation for new CVC students was held on August 18-19, 1981. Freshmen and parents were scheduled for activities on both days to help them adjust to life at Clinch Valley.

On the 18th, the main events were the dormitory check-in, where the new students settled into their rooms for the fall semester. A buffet supper was held for all that evening and was followed by a reception for the parents at Dean Low's residence. The Students Rights and Responsibilities lecture was held then for the freshmen to explain the do's and don'ts to them. A coffeehouse provided entertainment later in the evening, featuring Charlie Engle and a few other local musicians doing Blue Grass and Country Music.

The next day began with the Math Placement test. The parents then attended a session with Bonnie Eloseer, who answered their questions about CVC. The new students pre-registered that afternoon and took the English placement tests. Registration for classes was held on Thursday and Friday and from then on, the freshmen were officially listed as CVC students.

SGA Plans Released

Plans for the SGA have recently been released by Terry Kilgore, SGA President. Kilgore, when he was running for the office in the Spring, presented the students with an eleven point plan to increase student activities.

On Thursday, the SGA sponsored a dance free of charge to the students. Other activities that are currently being planned include a road rally where students participate in a race obeying all traffic laws and following carefully planned clues.

Kilgore said, "I hope the council will support my plans to increase student activities. For this to occur, however, the council will have to approve a

Thompson band.

Speakers are also on the SGA's agenda according to Kilgore. He hopes that the Virginia gubernatorial candidates will finalize speaking engagements at CVC.

Organization Participation week is also being planned by the SGA. Kilgore stated, "For any activity of this nature to work, we have to have the full cooperation of all organizations. If they all cooperate this could prove to be beneficial both to the students and the organizations."

Activities for the Spring include a homecoming week with a Snowball King and Queen, a 10 kilometer run, the CVC Olympics,

By Our Standards Welcome Back

A new year is upon us. College life will present some with problems but for others it will be a beginning. With virtually the same newspaper staff as last year, the staff of the Highland Cavalier will attempt to offer diversity to the students. We are going to attempt to change the notice page, so please bear with us until we are satisfied with the looks of the page. Also, in the near future a national opinion column will begin. Furthermore, anyone that wishes to work on the paper, feel free to contact me or Valeri Jones as soon as possible. An organizational meeting will be held on Monday, August 24 at 2:00 p.m.

Sincerely Yours,
Jerry Kilgore

Privacy Of Information

Federal legislation (Buckley Amendment) concerning the privacy of information states that students may elect to have their names, addresses and other "directory" information not listed in such a publication. Colleges may publish directory information concerning an individual student if the student does not request his/her information be withheld.

In compliance with this new legislation, Clinch Valley College requests that any student (full or part-time) who does not want to have certain information listed in the directory notify the Registrar's Office by September 14, 1981.

Political Science Professor Added

Clinch Valley College announces the appointment of Joseph Willard as Associate Professor of Political Science. He begins his teaching duties with the opening of the 1981 fall semester.

Willard majored in Industrial Organization and Management and received a B.B.A. degree from Western Reserve University. He later completed a Master of Arts in Political Science, also at Western Reserve. His Ph.D. degree is from Indiana University with a major in Political Science and a minor in Sociology.

He has worked for the past six years as a free lance researcher and analyst in legislative and governmental affairs in Washington, D.C. Prior to that he conducted an academic research study Congressional Oversight of Administration and a research of "uses being made of evaluative research" in higher policy analysis. He has experience in applied research on state and local governments.

Willard has held academic appointments at Goshoro State College, Moorhead State College, the University of Toledo, American University, and Northern Michigan College as an associate professor of political science. He also worked as Visiting Associate Director for education and training at the U.S. Civil Service Commission in New York, and as research assistant in the Bureau of Government Research at Indiana University.

Willard will teach courses at Clinch Valley in constitutional law, public administration, and American government and politics.

Willard came into Wise on Sunday following the flood. He felt that it must flood in the mountains more than it did on the plains of Northern Minnesota. However, Willard stated, "The atmosphere of CVC is pleasant, friendly, and helpful."

Willard is currently living on faculty row.

Spencer Promoted To New Admission Counselor

By Valerie Jones

The new admissions counselor for CVC is Phyllis Spencer, a native of Smyth County, Virginia. Miss Spencer is replacing Marty Kesma in the position.

Spencer enjoys working in this area. She taught at J. S. Kelly High School in Wise but left there to work on her masters. She was interested in working in this area, so she applied for the admissions counselor position at CVC. Her educational background consists of her B.S. degree from Radford University and her masters from Virginia Polytechnic Institute.

The part that Miss Spencer is most looking forward to is working with the students. Since she began her position only on August 3, she hasn't had much contact with the students un-orientation week. The position of admissions counselor requires a lot of "on the road recruiting." Miss Spencer says she hopes to be able to show her enthusiasm for CVC to the prospective students. "You need to like the school you're recruiting for in order to win the students over."

Miss Spencer enjoys jogging, bicycling, and hiking as hobbies.

Welcome Students

Campus Minister

The summer is passed. Once again it is time to return to the classroom. It seems to have been a very short time ago that we looked forward to the busy, busy days of summer. Some looked forward to graduation from high school, completion of another year of college, all of this is now past. We return to the classroom from our summer jobs, from simply taking it easy. Now is the time to renew our friendships, to make new friends, to be started with all of the assignments that the professors are able to make. It is a time of settling down to a routine of study. Regardless of whether you are a beginning freshman or a last semester senior, we wish for you the best year ever. Remembering that your life is filled with adjustments, work, disappointments, joy and mountain top experiences. All of these experiences work together to bring meaning and hope to life. We most constantly press on to (can't to page 5)

In The Big Inning

By Jim Collie
Baptist Campus Minister
For Southwest Virginia

It's great to see baseball again after the strike. I must admit, though, that I enjoyed watching the minor league games. There's an old, old joke that goes, "God must be a baseball fan." "Why?" "Because the first words in the Bible are 'In the big inning.'" "Big inning! Beginning!" As a Campus Minister I am very conscious of beginnings. By the time this article is printed Wise County Schools and Clinch Valley College will be in the beginning of a new school year. Maybe there's something to this "big inning" "beginning" business after all.

Beginnings are important. The whole getting started process may well be the biggest inning of any game or anything we do. Even older than our baseball joke are sayings like, "The longest journey begins with the very first step." And racing drivers know the tremendous psychological advantage of winning the pole position.

With this new semester and new school year come new beginnings. For some of us there are new courses, new teachers, new friends. For others college is a brand new experience. Others are starting the school year in a brand new school system. How we begin this year is important.

Each of us needs to get off to a good start. And while we're about it, let's mention that whether or not God is a baseball fan, He is certainly a fan of yours. In the beginning or in the big inning He's on your side. Don't forget it even beyond the beginning. Let's get started!

Anyone interested in writing for the Highland Cavalier this year, please remember to attend the Organizational meeting today at 2:00 p.m.

Still Attends Bankers School

Each year, the Virginia Banker's Association sponsors the Virginia Banker's School of Bank Management in cooperation with the McIntire School of Commerce at the University of Virginia. The University, with its wide respect in the national business community and beautiful grounds designed by Thomas Jefferson, provides the ideal setting for this learning experience. Several student scholarships are granted each year for the one week course. Clinch Valley College was represented by Kim Still who was chosen by the faculty to attend this year's session held August 9 - 14 in Charlottesville. Kim is a senior majoring in Business and Administration with a concentration in Administrative Management. The remainder of the school was comprised of two hundred and ninety-five representatives from the various banks across the state. Courses were taught in the areas of accounting, economics, marketing, management, and communications. In addition to Clinch Valley College, other colleges represented were Longwood, VPI and SU, Norfolk State University, Virginia Union University, Washington and Lee University, The College of William and Mary and the University of Virginia. Employing lecture, case method and peer study groups, the school provides a vehicle for each student to express himself or herself.

The faculty is a blend of the best from the banking professions and the academic world. Commenting on the week's activities, Kim said "It was a tremendous learning experience from which I greatly benefited. Everyone should have the opportunity to attend a school of this quality".
