The Robbin Thompson Band To Perform At CVC

By Kathy Roark

The Robbin Thompson Band is tentatively scheduled to appear in concert on the CVC campus November 4.

The band began in October of 1978 when Robbin joined forces with four of Richmond's top performers—Velpo Robertson, Eric Heiberg, Michael Lanning, and Bob Antonelli—forming the Robbin Thompson Band.

The Robbin Thompson Band is a proven audience pleaser and CVC will be no exception. The band has played over 100 college dates since July 1980.

The Robbin Thompson band is also quite a success in the recording business. In mid-November 1980, their hit single "Brite Eyes" appeared on the Billboard Hot 100 chart. Concurrently, their LP "Two Pa's Please" appeared on the Billboard Top LP List.

The concert is sure to generate much excitement on campus, as well as in the community and will not be soon forgotten.

The SGA has been instrumental in the scheduling of this concert and is to be commended. Meanwhile, CVC students are counting the days until November 4....

Changes Proposed In General Education Requirements

The following proposals on the revision of General Education Requirements has been received by the Planning Committee. However, before we consider it further, we wish to determine how it is viewed by the faculty and students. If any student wishes to comment about the proposal and/or give the committee any other suggestions about revising the General Education Requirements, please write out your ideas and put them in Mr. Scolnick's mail box by Wednesday, October 28, 1981.

Each student should be informed that any changes made in the General Education Requirements will apply only to incoming CVC students. Students already at the college may remain under the requirements listed in the college catalogue that presently applies to them.

Proposed Changes in General Education Requirements

It has become commonplace to say that we live in a shrinking world, where what happens halfway around the globe can have great influence on how we live. As a result we believe that over the next few years and decades, we will all have to learn how to deal more effectively with people of other nations and cultures. Hence, we should like to propose that a stronger international education component be included in our present general education requirements. We would point out, however, that the proposed changes would not necessarily increase the number of hours required or cause any change in the present overall distribution of credits required.

Our proposal is that the present requirement of nine hours of courses which emphasize the cultures of non-English speaking peoples be replaced by a twelve-hour international education requirement. The twelve hours would be distributed as follows: six hours in Humanities, three hours in Math-Science, three hours in Social Science. Within the present fifteen hour Humanities requirements, students would be required to take one course in World Literature (chosen from several offered by the English and Foreign Language departments) and a second course chosen from either the history of the arts (probably the present Humanities 101-102) or the history of civilization (probably the present History 101-103). Within the present ten hour Math-Science requirement, students would be required to choose one of several courses focusing on the concept of "spaceship earth" and studying matters such as energy and food supplies, the natural environment, population problems, etc. Such a requirement would have the effect of requiring an additional-course in science and ending the option students now have of selecting a mathematics course to fulfill their general education requirements, so we would have to decide whether or not the mathematics requirement should be changed in some manner. Within the present fifteen-hour social science requirement, students would be required to choose either a course in international politics (such a course could compare government structures, compare political ideologies, examine the process of modernization, or do any number of other things), or a course examining different societies and social structures (taught in sociology-anthropology area.)

The advantages of such a change could be numerous. We could greatly improve our students' knowledge of the entire world, its problems, and its possibilities. By requiring a course in World Literature, we would have a vehicle by which to improve the writing skills of our students. By requiring a course on "spaceship earth," we could improve our students' knowledge of science in a way that should seem vitally important to them. Perhaps most importantly of all, we could go a long way toward expanding the intellectual horizons of our students and that, after all, is one of the fundamental goals of a liberal arts education.

Surface Mining Proposed At CVC

By Valeri Jones

A controversial proposal is being considered by Clinch Valley College to provide funds for the building of additional Student Housing. The proposal deals with the surface mining of approximately 80 acres of school property, located in the area of woods behind the tennis courts of the college. The reclamation of the land would alter the contour of the land from a gorge type area to a more flat and level landscape.

The college has been applying for HUD grants for several years now and with no success. Therefore, the college has begun to look for alternate sources of revenue for student housing. The proposal to surface mine would be similar to the other mining which was conducted on CVC's campus. But in this case, the college owns only the surface rights to the land; the coal is owned by a private individual. Therefore, the profits would be reduced somewhat.

The state requires a $50,000 deposit to be used for reclamation and UVA requires another $50,000. The royalties would be applied to the building of a dormitory. The royalties of the previous mine the college operated were applied to the Student Union Building.

The Chancellor's Committee on Buildings and Grants is chaired by Phillip Shelton. Mr. Shelton agrees that funds need to be found but this concerns is with the actual mining operation. He would like to see the most innovative procedures used in the mining process and the reclamation of the land. He is also concerned with the credibility of the institution and its public image. "I think each student should look at the area and decide for himself what the benefits and losses would be. We owe it to ourselves and the public to make sure the situation is handled properly."

Chancellor Smiddy pointed out the benefits to the college from the proposed mining. The funds for the proposed dormitory would have to be covered partly by an increase in student fees, plus other sources of revenue would have to be found. With the surface mine project, the increase would not be quite as great.

The Chancellor views the mining as, "looking to the future and the better of Clinch Valley College in the long run." "We will have to make sacrifices to better Clinch Valley."

One concern of Chancellor Smiddy is how close the actual mining operation would be to the college. The proposal he favors would prevent the operation being done too close to the campus, especially the tennis courts area.

The Chancellor provides the final recommendation on the project and the decision is made by the Board of Visitors of the University of Virginia. Officials of the University have been down to look at the area and to discuss the terms of the contract.

By Our Standards Road Rally Successful

The 1980-81 Road Rally was held on October 23 and I would like to take this opportunity to commend the SGA for its organization on the entire Road Rally. Sure, some complained that others didn't obey traffic laws but there's no way to check this. The SGA did the only thing they could do and that was to set a minimum time for completion of the route.

The clues were original and directed the students to check points well (that is, if you know where you're going and don't make a wrong turn at Darwin, if you know what I mean). Nevertheless, after the smoke has settled, the 1981 Road Rally will be looked on as successful. Finally, "congratulations" to those who placed and a "well done" to those who entered.

Sincerely yours,
Jerry Kilgore, Editor

The Race Is On For Governor

Marshall Coleman

Republican Marshall Coleman is running his campaign for Governor of Virginia on experience and being a Virginian. His campaign slogan is, "Keep a Good Thing Going", in reference to the twelve years a Republican has been Virginia's first citizen. Coleman has twelve years of service to Virginia State Government divided among the House of Delegates, the Virginia Senate, and the Attorney General post.

He attended Waynesboro Public Schools and later finished undergraduate at the University of Virginia. He then graduated from the University of Virginia Law School. His military record included service in the United States Marine in Vietnam.

As Attorney General, Coleman witnessed several accomplishments. These include:

1. Being the only Republican Attorney General of Virginia in this century.
2. Representing Virginia before the United States Supreme Court to overturn regulation against Virginia's coal industry.
3. Representing the citizens of Virginia before the Virginia Supreme Court to overturn the early release of drug smugglers sentenced for up to 25 years but let out after only one.
4. Advocating tough and uniform sentencing with no early releases.
5. Reorganizing the office of Attorney General and thus reducing the number of lawyers on the payroll, while providing, for the first time, legal guidance to individual Virginia citizens.

Below you will find a list of four topics with Coleman's view following.

TAXES-Coleman believes that through continued fiscal discipline and savings from a 5% cut in the State Government payroll (by attrition), Virginia can meet all its human, school, highway, and law enforcement needs without a tax hike.

JOBS-Through cooperation with the Reagan Administration, Coleman believes that Virginians will face less harassment and regulations of Virginia's businesses. Coleman will also promote expansion of Virginia industry and recruit new industries for Virginia.

EDUCATION-Coleman intends to place an emphasis on basic skills, discipline in the classroom, and improving teacher salaries. Also, he intends to keep the budget share for education steady even though student enrollment is dropping.

CRIME-As Delegate, Senator, and Attorney General, Coleman has argued for certain and uniform sentencing as the answer to easy bail, early release and lenient courts.

Chuck Robb

Chuck Robb in his bid for Governor is trying to give back to the Democratic Party what hasn't been theirs for twelve years-the Governorship of Virginia. His campaign motto is "Robb-A Governor to Build on Virginia's Best." His service to the Commonwealth of Virginia includes being Lieutenant Governor for the past four years.

His education includes graduating from Mount Vernon High School in 1957. After undergraduate work, he graduated from the University of Virginia Law School.

As Lieutenant Governor, Robb's accomplishments include:

1. Being Chairman of Virginia Forum on Education.
2. Being Chairman of the Concerned Citizens of the Commonwealth Committee.
3. Sponsoring a series of statewide forums on coal, exports, and regulatory reform.
4. Serving as Chairman of the National Conference of Lieutenants.

Below you will find a list of four topics with Robb's view following:

TAXES-Robb plans to bring an immediate halt to decades of growth in state government-a critical step, according to Robb on holding the line on taxes.

JOBS-Robb has a plan for economic development that includes numerous proposals to stimulate the growth Virginia will need to provide 50,000 new jobs a year. Some of the proposals include targeting growth industries, regulatory reform, and help for small business.

EDUCATION-Robb's top priority is providing the salaries to attract and keep the best teachers. He also plans to place an emphasis on classroom discipline and teaching basics.

CRIME-Robb's plans include setting stiffer criteria for setting bail, tougher sentences for repeat offenders, and a crackdown on criminals using firearms.

Harding Speaks To Merit Society

Judy Harding, a graduate of CVC, spoke to the Merit Society on October 19th. After receiving a B.A. in Math from CVC, Harding went to University of Virginia where she received a Masters in Civil Engineering. She began work with Shell Oil Company as an Engineer. Currently, she is working for an oil company in Canada.

She told the group good points in receiving a job. She reminded students that proper packaging and good salesmanship are the key to getting a job.

She continued to tell the group about her preparation at CVC for her career and the facts about her first year at Shell Oil Company.

In closing she told the students, "If you're not suited for a particular job, switch. Keep looking for what you want."

Cafeteria Makes No Profit

Contrary to some students' opinion, the Cafeteria does not make a profit. The Cafeteria is an Auxiliary Enterprise which means that it is non-profit. According to Clayton Williams, CVC Business Manager, "The Cafeteria operates from its sales and receives no state tax money. The students must pay 100 percent of the costs." Continuing, Williams stated, "The reason prices went up this year was because the cafeteria suffered and $7,000 loss last year." Prices also will not automatically go up when the students move the new Student Union Building according to Williams. A decision will be made after an Income Statement is done in December. If no money is lost, the prices won't go up.

Students also fuss about the quality of food served in the cafeteria. Mrs. Helen Bass, manager of the cafeteria, stated that she served the very best. According to Bass, hamburgers are 100 percent beef and no fillers are used to make the food go farther.

Continuing Bass stated, "All breads, cakes, etc. are homemade." Bass also said that she hoped that in the new Student Union Building she could offer the students anything that they could get in town. Finally, more than anything, students fuss about quantity of food received in the cafeteria. Mrs. Bass decides the quantity and stated that if any student wanted to question the quantity he or she received, the individual could call her to the register and she would answer questions.

Its Your Move

By Warren H. Wattenbarger, Campus Minister-Wesley Foundation

James, in writing his letter to the early Christians, reminded them that they should "Be doers of the Word and not hearers only." So it is in life we are to be participants and not spectators.

When one is playing checkers or chess there comes a time when after your watching, waiting, and thinking, your opponent says, "It's your move." Maybe you do not want to act, but if the game is to continue, you must move. There comes a time when you have to take the risk. You may win the game or you may lose it, but one thing you know—"It's your move."

Meditation must always be a means to an end, but never an end in itself. The person who "waits for the light," "seeks the silence," and "thinks" should realize that there comes a time when it is his move. Certainly we all believe that clear thinking and earnest prayer will do much to prepare us for the game of life, but when we try to hide behind our fears, our indifference, or even our piety, someone needs to shout at us saying "It's your move."

There is a strong tendency to try to escape responsibility. When the game of life becomes perplexing and difficult, we would like to shift the responsibility to our neighbor, our fellow students and especially to the school administrators or professors, or even to the government leaders. We should like to solve our problems by running away from them.

If the world is ever to be changed for the better, there comes a time when it's our move. It will be changed only by the action of persons who accept without complaint and without excuse their measure of responsibility for the conditions of the world and who believe that moving the checkers can make a difference.

Career Corner

Majoring In English

By Ann Morris

English majors often become teachers or go on to graduate school because they are not aware of other options. For example, with a bachelor's degree an English major could go into advertising, publishing, journalism, business or industry. Graduates who go on to advanced studies could become lawyers or college professors. The career opportunities are there if you know where to look.

Institutions hiring English majors include advertising agencies, transportation companies, banks, bookstores, libraries, public relation firms, the radio/T.V. industry, travel agencies, and government agencies. Within these agencies, you could work as an advertising manager or salesworker, announcer, news editor, writer, librarian, archivist, columnist, critic, public relations person, or travel agent.

So, the next time you ask yourself, "What can I do with a major in English?" remember the opportunities are there if you know where and for what to look.

"Attend The Other Cheek"

By Jim Collie, Baptist Campus Minister

Certain denizens of the Jefferson Lounge will recognize the above title right away. I won't describe the situation that brought about this little paraphrase of "turn the other cheek." It does bring to mind the fact that acts of love and kindness are never out of place or inappropriate.

Maybe we cannot hear too often the words about love in 1 Corinthians 13. Here is how they sound in one modern translation: "Love is patient and kind; it is not jealous or coated or proud; love is not ill-mannered or selfish or irritable; love does not keep a record of wrongs; love is not happy with evil, but is happy with truth. Love never gives up; and its faith, hope, and patience never fail. Love is eternal." (1 Corinthians 13:4-8a. Today's English Version.)

Football Action Balanced

By: Rick Whitner

The first week of the football season is over, with this week's games completing the regular season play. With the exception

Behind The Games

By: Tim Howard

How about those Kapps. It looks like the intramural football team to beat this year is the boys from the Pi Kappa Phi.

Right now the team is 2-0 defeating its toughest competitor, the Phi Sigs, Wednesday by a score of 8-0.

Before the game Wednesday, no one would speculate on the outcome. It seemed to be two evenly matched teams going head to head, but when the second half ended, it was the Kapps on top of the pile.

The key to the Kapp's success seems to be a well-balanced offensive attack and an iron curtain defense.

The offense, headed by the talented arm of Tommy Ludvick, is able to move the ball in the air as well as on the ground. Ludvick, a veteran quarterback, has the ability to find the open man and lay the pigskin right in his arms.

When the offense elects to go to the ground, Terry Raines is, more often than not, called on to carry the ball. Raines is small and quick. He is able to find the open hole and burst through before the defense has time to react.

When Raines is not called, it is either Billy Watson or Tom Gilliland that do the honors.

Watson, like Raines, is small and quick. He is a scrappy player that fights and scratches for every inch.

Tom Gilliland is just as talented as Raines or Watson, but Gilliland has size. He is often used as a leading blocker for the other backs. Gilliland is also one of Ludvick's favorite receivers as he will often range across the middle for short passes.

The Kapp defense is as quick as its offense.

Some of the defense consists of Jeff Lucas, Butch Kifory, Jeff Roberts and Tommy Ludvick.

The defense doesn't give up many yards and it is hard to throw deep on them with their fast, deep men.

Although the Kapps are tied for first at this time with G.M. SOTS, it looks like the Kapps are the stronger of the two.

Let's not forget the Sigs either. They are capable of striking at any time if they can just get it all together, remember where they put it, and get it all to the football field at the same time.

There are still a few teams neck in neck, but I predict the Pi Kapps will come out on top.

of a couple of games, this year's action has been relatively balanced, most of the teams demonstrating coordination on offense and balance on defense.

The season opener between the Kapps and the Barbarians was a classic, hard-fought battle. The first half ended in a 6-6 tie, and going into the last 2 minutes, the score was 12-12 and the Barbarians were driving. An interception stopped the drive, however, and the Kapps went on to score and win, 20-12, as time ran out.

The Fooaballs/G.M.S.O.T.s encounter proved to be a defensive affair, with the only score being Frank Hodges' Kickoff return to open the second half. The G.M.S.O.T.s won, 8-0.

Tuesday pitted the Sigs against the Dirty Deeds in the only blowout of the early season. Capitalizing on an intercepted pitch, the Sigs established an offense and went on to win, 18-0.

Tuesday's other game had the Barbarians against the hapless Fooaballs. Although the final score was only 9-0, Barbarians, mental mistakes such as fumbles in the open field and penalties prevented the Barbarians from running away with the game.

Wednesday was the final day of play last week, and what a day of action it turned out to be. The anual Phi Sig-Pi Kapp rivalry was as much a bruiser as those of years past. The hard-hitting affair was a defensive battle all the way. The winning score came midway through the second half as the Kapps scored on a draw play to win 8-0.

The last game of the week showed a much improved Dirty Deeds team against the G.M.S.O.T.s. Tied 6-6 going into the final minutes of the game, the G.M.S.O.T.s executed a perfect 2-minute drill to come away as 14-6 victors.

This final week of regular season action will set the stage for the tournament, and barring a mental letdown by the Kapps, they should go in undefeated and the number one seed, as they have already played what may have been the two hardest games on their schedule. Come out again this week and support CVC intramurals, as there should be another whole week of action-packed football.

Ladies Have Teamwork

By: Mark Broadwell

Linda Richardson will guide the Lady Cavs this season in her first year of coaching college basketball.

Coach Richardson stressed inexperience as the team's main obstacle. She added that upcoming scrimmage games will be helpful in ascertaining the team's weaknesses and correcting them.

The Lady Cavs' coach also commented that the girls worked well together and that teamwork is a key factor.

Teamwork seems to be the Lady Cavs' strong point, due to their lack of speed and height, and because many of the players are newcomers to college basketball.

Coach Richardson was formerly a high school basketball coach. She stated that college ball is completely different because of style and a much quicker paced game. Also, she stressed a different prevailing attitude than in high school.

With Sharon Morris leading the team, Coach Richardson hopes to work out the problems early in the season so that after break, the girls will have gained confidence and most importantly, experience.
