

Intramural softball got underway this week. Here, Scott Cooper throws a strike!

Kilgore Re-Election Bid Successful

Terry Kilgore faced little opposition as he handily won a second term as SGA President over nearest write-in candidate, Alex Modaber. Kilgore finished with 181 votes while Modaber's write-in granted him 67 votes.

It didn't appear that it would be a runaway, though, as the write-in campaign began on Monday night. After thirty minutes of vote counting, Kilgore led by only nine votes. Then, the bubble burst. Kilgore racked up thirty-one of the next thirty-three votes and was facing a forty vote lead. Kilgore finished with over 70 percent of the vote.

Kilgore was SGA representative for two years prior to his first term as SGA President. Currently, he is a member of Merit Society, Darden Society, a SOL, and a member of the Wesley Foundation.

Kilgore pledged to continue to sponsor SGA activities and stated, "I was pleased to be re-elected and I'll try to do the best job possible."

Sam Chapman, Treasurer

Terry Kilgore

Beverly Bradberry, Secretary

Williams - Vice President

Vernon Williams, a junior at CVC, edged David Thomas, a senior to win SGA Vice-President. Williams won with 142 votes while Thomas finished with 121.

However, as the Election Commission counted the late evening ballots Thomas took an overwhelming two to one lead, leading at one time 70 to 31. But, as the Commission reached the early hours, it appeared that Williams' supporters voted early as he quickly trimmed the lead. Williams then tied Thomas at 115 and coasted in to victory. Williams finished with 53 percent of the vote.

Williams is currently sophomore representative to the SGA, Vice President of Circle K, a member of the Merit Society, a SOL, and Vice President of College Republicans.

Chapman, Bradberry Win

Sam Chapman and Beverly Bradberry easily won SGA treasurer and secretary respectively. Chapman fought off write-in candidate Frank Lotko and won 198-87. However, if Lotko had won he would have been unable to serve because of Article IV, Section 1-B of the SGA Constitution which requires a student to be enrolled two full semesters prior to seeking an SGA executive office.

Sam is a senior at CVC majoring in Business and Public Administration, and is President of Circle K, a SOL, a past SGA representative and a RA. Bradberry captured the most votes of any candidate as she balloted 249 votes. Bradberry was also the only candidate on the ballot and faced only three write-in votes. Bradberry is secretary of Circle K and a SOL.

SGA Elections Exciting

The SGA races for class representatives proved to be exciting in the senior and sophomore class but dull in the junior class.

Four candidates vied for three sophomore seats and Shari Farmer, Lynn Gilbert, and Jeff Lucas received the nod. Farmer finished with 61 votes, Gilbert 57, and Lucas 50. The fourth candidate, John Kilgore, narrowly lost with 49 votes.

The junior class saw only one candidate on the ballot. Ken Sanders finished with 78 votes. The other two representatives will be appointed by the SGA President and confirmed by the SGA.

Seven candidates vied for the three senior positions on the SGA and Rick Cole, Ted Darby, and Rick Whitner emerged as the winners. Cole finished with 42 votes, Darby 35, and Whitner 26. Rounding out the class were Sheila Dougherty 24 votes, Richard Grabee 11, and Cindy Saylor 29, and Keith Denison 19.

Honor Court -- Few Re-Elected

The Honor Court races proved to be the most contested as numerous students vied for three seats and an alternate from each class. The day also proved to be a disaster for incumbents as few were returned.

Twelve seniors vied for three positions and Beverly Bradberry, Bruce Gibson, and Jerry Kilgore narrowly won. Walter Littrell and Rick Whitner tied for alternate and will face a runoff next fall. Past Chairman Valeri Jones finished with 20, Rick Cole 17, Keith Denison 14, Ted Darby 12, Frank Lotko 12, Richard Grabee 11, and Sheila Dougherty 10.

George Marshall, James Hask and Lauchlin Lee were named junior representatives. Greg Vanover was named alternate. Marshall finished with 63 votes, Hask 52, Lee 48, Vanover 47, and past Honor Court Secretary Mary Ann Laws 43.

In the race for sophomore honor court representatives Allen Wallace, Travis Kennedy, and Jeff Lucas were elected to the positions. Wallace finished first with 59 votes, followed by Kennedy's 55, Lucas' 39, and Tim Williams had 33.

Highland Cavalier's Letters Policy

The Highland Cavalier encourages all persons who wish to express themselves to write a letter to the editor. All letters must be signed to be printed. Names will be withheld by request and at the editor's discretion, however the original letter must be signed. In addition, the editor has the right to edit and/or reject letters that violate the guidelines as set up by the publications committee. Send all letters to Box 1187 by Thursday, 3:00 p.m. each week. All letters must be typewritten, unless they are neatly printed.

Questions Raised

Dear Editor:
A couple of questions should be raised about the recent elections:

(1) An election for student representatives is an important process. The word "election" implies that the students have a choice. In the elections last Wednesday, three of the four officer positions were uncontested. There was a charge by the editorial staff that students are apathetic and that if they didn't vote they shouldn't complain. But if the student does not have a choice and the person running is not appealing to them, he or she has every right to complain.

There is a feeling on the part of many students that the "apathy" may be bred. That is, the question is raised: Are the students apathetic or simply inadequately informed?

Looking at past issues of the Highland Cavalier (starting with Fall semester of 1973), the manner of election coverage is quite revealing. In the nine years previous to this year's election, notice of election was both prominently displayed and given well in advance. In six of the nine years a front page article announced the upcoming election and detailed the procedures for candidacy. The other three years saw the notice announced twice in the Notice section and once on the back page, each time prominently displayed in large headlines. Also, notice of application solicitations for membership of the paper was almost always on the front page.

This year, notice of the upcoming election appeared in only two issues prior to the issue of election week. The notice and procedures for candidacy were in the "Campus Info" section. No headline or article announced this important event. The notice was treated the same as lesser announcements, not even appearing first. Notice of editorship application solicitations was treated in the same way.

Is it surprising then that three of the four officer positions were uncontested? Is this apathy on the part of students or simply lack of knowledge?

The editor of the newspaper is Jerry Kilgore. His brother, Terry, ran uncontested in Wednesday's election.

(2) As many of you know, I was denied eligibility for candidacy because of an article in the CVC constitution that in part reads that an officer "shall have been enrolled as full-time students for two (2) full semesters of the College."

The article is ambiguous at the very least. As a transfer student, I have been enrolled in Those Boring Lectures.....

Every student has known the experience of staring at the front of a room where the professor is lecturing, while simultaneously having one's mind on a riverside or other relaxing spot. This can be educational, for in my own case it has led to the discovery of one hundred and one ways to sleep while keeping the eyes wide open. However, college should be more beneficial than simply aiding in methods of appearing conscious. The problem is that some instructor's lectures are almost as exciting as a two hundred yard backstroke race for nonswimmers. The time has clearly arrived for students to defend their rights. By constructive criticism and a punishment system I feel that it is possible to enhance the quality of college lectures.

One of the first rules that should be instituted to improve lectures, is to require professors to change the tone of their voice at least twice during a lecture to avoid contracting the monotone syndrome. A monotone voice has been found to be highly hypnotic, and students have often been found taking notes in classrooms several hours after a class has ended. There are several ways this problem could be avoided. Perhaps the easiest method would be to supply students with printed cards such as the ones used at halftime during football games. When held up together these could be used to spell out words such as boring or pitiful and thereby give the teacher subtle hints. If this method fails then shock treatment would be the next solution to try. In this process instructors would receive an electric shock each time they failed to change their voices within a twenty minute period. The final and most drastic measure in this area would be to perform surgery on the professor. This surgery could chemically alter the body until it was much the same as it was at the onset of puberty. Then if the specimen was a male the voice would at least squeak occasionally, as is accustomed in lads being influenced by hormonal changes.

To avoid boring lectures teachers should also be required to allow students to disagree with their own opinions. All too often classes have the atmosphere of a dictatorship where agreement is absolutely essential to survival. However, agreeing is difficult especially when you have the distinct feeling that the lecturer has no idea what he is talking about. Some teachers obviously need to be reeducated, or perhaps a mail correspondence course could be beneficial. In this way teachers could be taught to be appear intelligent, when actually they are out in left field behind a big tree, because their elevator doesn't quite go all the way to the top. If this system of correspondence courses failed to work, then classrooms would be installed with ejection seats and teachers could be sent into orbit whenever they said something totally ridiculous.

Perhaps the most important part in reducing boring lectures will be to require that no teacher can tell the same joke or story more than thirty times in a semester. There are numerous ways in which teachers could be punished for exceeding the limit on joke and story telling. First they would be required to read ten Harlequin romance novels and also watch a Leonard Nimoy television special called, In Search Of Obese Sex Symbols. If this method proved unfruitful then all students would be issued rubber stopper guns. These could be fired at the professor whenever he began an outdated story or joke. Connected to the stoppers would be bright red and yellow flags with statements such as who cares, this is the four hundredth time you've told that joke, and did you know that you can't bend a cracker. Finally, if all steps attempted proved unsuccessful the professor would be subjected to the ultimate punishment. Although it seem inhuman, I think this method will prove to be most effective. If all else fails the teacher will be required to listen to a tape of his own lecture twenty-five times in succession, or until he begs for mercy and signs a treaty promising to give no more boring lectures.

There are, of course, other alternatives to this problem, and my plan may receive much criticism. I have already been asked why students do not simply confront their teachers with their complaints. However, as others and I know, teachers are totally unreasonable. I remember just the other day when I told a professor I didn't feel deserving of a seventy on his test. He promptly agreed with me, marked my old grade out, and handed it back with a fifty-five at the top. This proves that the only alternative is brute force.

In conclusion, let me urge you to take action in this matter promptly. As you can probably tell from my writing, I am trustworthy and would not deceive you in my plan. My list of credentials is long and includes a perfect attendance award for the second grade and a certificate for having no cavities in 1972. Therefore, I encourage you to accept my plan and begin working today with our motto in mind. "We the students of the United States of America, in order to abolish boring lectures do hereby resolve to punish the culprits until they get their act together."

Sincerely,
Jim Begley, President of complaining students who are habitually late and have to park on the knob or as Bill Hose- USMC likes to call it, Mt. Fuji.
P.S.: If I have you for a class, remember that this was originally done for an assignment and that I, of course, was only kidding. After all, teachers are my favorite people, coming right behind Wayne Williams, Hitler, and the Ayatollah Khomeini.

Barbaric Behavior

Dear Editor:
I have been a student at Clinch Valley College for the past three years, and I have heard innumerable complaints regarding CVC from students. I am forced to take this opportunity to express my discontent with regard to another aspect of college life. Unfortunately, my complaint is about student behavior on campus. I went home this past weekend (April 16 - 18), and while I was gone someone felt it necessary to do damage to my car. The side-view mirror was maliciously snapped off its mount, and I have found a scratch spreading down the entire length of the passenger side. The car is brand new, and I am sure that everyone is well aware of the cost of quality repair work. Needless to say, I have more to worry about here at CVC than where I'm going to come up with the funds to have this damage repaired. I feel there is no justification for this type of primitive and irresponsible, even barbaric behavior.

We are young adults (at least some of us are). Actions of this nature indicate a lack of responsibility, maturity, and above all, a lack of respect for someone else's property. Until the students of CVC who are enjoying this destructive behavior grow up and learn to appreciate the value of someone else's property this type of event will continue to happen. We all have to live here together... it's a... same we can't do it peaceable. At this time, I would like to make an appeal to the student body to seriously think about actions of this nature and their inevitable consequences. We are the only ones who are truly capable of improving the quality of life at CVC. There is absolutely no reason why any of us should suffer material loss at the hands of our fellow students. Think about it, next time it could be you.

Thanks Extended

Dear Editor:
I would like to thank everyone who voted for and supported me in the past election. I am greatly appreciative. I am hopeful that the SGA will play a leading role in student life at CVC and I am looking forward to working for the student body in the coming year.

Sincerely, Vernon M. Williams

Chapman Appreciates Votes

Dear Editor,
I would like to take this opportunity to thank all of the students who supported me in this year's SGA election.

by: Cindy Saylor
The sisters of Phi Upsilon Omega were hostesses for the secretaries of CVC on Secretary's Day, April 21. Assorted salads and desserts were served as well as punch and coffee. Anita Hubbard was the recipient of the door prize. a hanging plant.

On April 22, the Sisters also held a spaghetti dinner as a fund raising event. Spaghetti, garlic bread, desserts, and drinks were served. Phi Upsilon Omega also participated in the breakfast cateries of the International Arts Festival.

Pi Kappa Phi Little Sister News

By Marti Libby
The Pi Kappa Phi Little Sisters would like to thank everyone for attending our dance that featured the Heavenly Bodies. Hope everyone enjoyed themselves. Last Saturday, April 24th at the International Arts Festival, the Sisters helped the Women's Club paint clown makeup on children. Also, the Brothers blew up helium balloons to give away.

This past Sunday the Brothers participated in the Mountain Empire Older Citizens' Walkathon. Thanks to all those who supported them. Also, our sponsor, Sharon Daniels, participated in the event. Three cheers for her.
Please come out and support the Brothers' and the Sisters' softball teams this spring.

The Phi Upsilon Omega Little Sisters sponsored the Secretaries' Day reception at CVC. Elaine Wombie is shown surveying all the goodies that were served.

Questions....

two full semesters. I simply have not completed them. The Dean of Students interprets the article as requiring completion of two semesters based on the word "full".

Many students feel that the article is vague in meaning. They feel the word "enrolled" is the operative word in the clause and recognize that "enrolled" does not mean "completed."

A petition was signed by 144 students and was submitted to the Dean of Students. It stated that the clause was vague in meaning and, as such, it should not be allowed to disqualify me from candidacy. The Dean of Students called the petitions meaningless and would not have been swayed if "all 800 students had signed it." She had made her decision and was not going to change it. The petition was thrown out.

The Dean of Students was basing her interpretation on the clause on the meaning intended, which is to bar freshmen and transfer students (whose first year here is as a Junior) from holding office. However, the clause should be interpreted not by intent but by what it says and in no places does it use the word "completed."

It is clear to many students that this matter has revealed the need for two changes.

First, the SGA needs to amend the article so that it is not ambiguous. Second, a Constitutional Appeals Board should be established with its members acting as interpreters of the Constitution. One day even the reign of the current Dean of Students shall end, and no one will be here to explain what was meant or what was intended by the Constitutional articles. The Constitution belongs to the students, and therefore the Dean of Students should at least consider the opinions of the 144 students who signed the petition. Interpretation of the Constitution should not be monopolized by one who shows such blatant disregard for the opinions of so large a number of students.

I would like to thank everyone who voted for me last Wednesday. And to the victors there are indications that your term will be neither easy nor pleasant.

Sincerely yours,
Frank Lottio

Joffrey Concert Group

Tickets On Sale For Joffrey Concert Group

Co-sponsored by Pro-Art and the Cohen Foundation, the Joffrey Concert Group ballet dancers will perform at Wise's J.J. Kelly Auditorium on Friday, April 30th at 7:30 p.m. Freshness and energy characterize the artistry of this company of eight male and female dancers who have been rigorously trained at the Joffrey Ballet Center on Sixth Avenue and Tenth Street in New York.

After achieving the professional level and passing demanding auditions, these dancers were admitted to the youngest of the Joffrey companies, the Concert Group. This company, directed by Edith D'Addario, was formed two years ago to give performances at schools and colleges, in parks, and for civic organizations. On national tour for the 1981-82 season, the Joffrey Concert Group will make its first European tour next year.

Critics are unanimous in their praise of the company's energy, vivacity and original choreography. Reviewer Donald Ray Schwartz of the Mansfield News Journal finds the troupe's major strength in its choreography, and especially, the pas de deux. "Generally expressed in male female combinations, the dazzling lifts and throws seen in the Ostinato movement of the opening, 'holst Suite,' Singleton's sensual 'Awakening'... and the several vignettes of Prokofiev's 'Visions Fugitives' electrified the appreciative audience, and the more subtle and gentle steps, arm and hand movements... provided enchanting stage pictures."

Tickets for the Wise performance, $2 for students and $4 for adults, are available at the door or, they can be purchased in advance at the Wise County Public Library, the Clinch Valley College Post Office, Dave's in Norton and Coeburn, Judy's Hallmark in Big Stone Gap, or His and Hers in Pound. CVC students with I.D.'s will be admitted free of charge.

Decisions, Decisions, Decisions!!

by Warren H. Wattenbarger
Campus Minister
Wesley Foundation

One of the most difficult things you will face in life is the matter of always making decisions.

You will have to decide to attend early classes while in school, you will have to select friends, change jobs. Select a marriage partner, decide where you will live, what additional education you will get, what automobile you will buy, where you will go on vacation, what type of charities you will support with your monies, time and talents. Decisions, Decisions, Decisions! And it is easy to make wrong ones... especially if you have not had experiences to guide you. In so many situations there is no one really to help you out. You are on your own and a lot of voices would beckon you to turn their way. You have to make the right decisions... all by ourself! There is obvious a wrong way. There is also an obvious right way. The road we take depends entirely on the decisions we make. We can blame only ourselves if we end in tragedy through deliberate wrong decisions. And it is not worth it just to prove we can make decisions against what some one advised us. It is good to have signs along the way to help us make good decisions.

Although you have to make the final leap all by yourself, be thankful for indications which help. That is a mark of maturing.

The Psalmist made it quite clear in the first sentence of his book. He put up some clearly printed "Wrong Way" signs long before the great network of super-highways. He said "Happy is the man who does not take advice from the wicked people" and decides not to go along with the wrong crowd. The writer of Proverbs also gave some good directions when he wrote "Trust in the Lord with all your heart and lean not on your own understanding. In all your ways acknowledge him and he shall direct your path". You cannot get the "wrong way" if you follow that advice.

Why?/Because!

By Jim Coile
Baptist Campus Minister

"Why?" "Because!" So went the exchange between two CVC philosophers recently on the blackboard outside the Jefferson Lounge. Now, "why?" has always been a very good question. It is a radical question. It goes to the very root of all knowledge. Much of what we know we know because someone asked "Why?"

"But have reverence for Christ in your hearts, and make him your Lord. Be ready at all times to answer anyone who asks you to explain the hope you have in you." (1 Peter 3:15. Today's English Version.) Just this past week Dr. Peter Yun spoke to a group of student about his very practical faith that began for him as a youngster in war-torn Korea. Peter Yun's faith has an answer for "Why?"

"Why?" is a good question in the realm of faith, too. The Apostle Peter knew this. In the first of the short New Testament letters that bear his name he

"Why?" is a good question. But "Because" has never been an adequate or acceptable answer.

The brothers of Pi Kappa Phi would like to mention that they are going to be "pushing" their National Project, P.U.S.H., (Play Uaits For the Severely Handicapped). The brothers have planned many fund raising projects which will hopefully be successful. We need the support of anyone who cares to contribute for a very good cause. The brothers have set their goal and they would very much like to reach that goal. If anyone would like to ask any questions about P.U.S.H., you can contact any of the brothers. Help us help others!

Anonymous Poem

There are still only fragments. So much of this living is fragments. Nails truth surfaces (though it was thought to have drowned or was deeply submerged). Anxieties over facts confront and startle, and at any given moment it could all end. Oh, to be so unprepared for it! And, if it ceases to be and isn't anything more than cosmic vapors... all of this has been such a neurotic waste.

Pi Kapps First Out

Of Gate In Softball

by Barry Bellamy
Softball season opened last Sunday or it supposedly did. Of four games scheduled, only the Pi Kapps vs. Taste Buds II affair was played. Winners via the forfeit route were the Padres,

S.D. Barbarians, and the Phi Sigs. Now let's take a look at the games that were played during the week.
Pi Kapps 10 Taste Buds II 0
The Kapps looked a bit shaky at times, but still showed enough character to come up with the key hit, a defensive gem, at the right moment to put away a stubborn Taste Bud Team. For the Kapps, it was a team effort with numerous players coming through. For the Taste Buds, they proved that they are a team to be taken seriously.

Padres 8 Taste Buds II 1
Greg Wymer had a big day at the plate as the defending champions easily defeated the Taste Buds. The Padres proved that despite their low preseason rating that they could be the team to beat.

Pi Kapps 11 Enforcers 10
The Kapps roll on, this time with a big win in a game shortened by darkness over the powerful Enforcers. In their first outing the Enforcers showed they could stroke the ball but defense could be a problem. Again, the Kapps made the right plays at the right time to preserve the victory.

S.D. Barbarians 13 Padres 0
In a rematch of last fall's championship game, the S.D. Barbarians held nothing back as they routed the Padres in five innings. Claude Crigger had a big day at the plate and the Barbarian defense was superb. For the Padres, well it was just one of those days when nothing went right. But, I have a feeling they'll bounce back.

1st Floor Predicted In Women's Intramural Softball

by Barry Bellamy
First of all, let me offer an explanation. I've had so many young ladies ask me why Rick and I didn't predict the women's softball. The reason is simple. The men's season started sooner so we felt that it was only fair to put our predictions on them in first. But neither the Highland Cavalier nor I are sexist, so without any further ado, here are my picks for the upcoming women's intramural softball tournament.

(1) 1st Floor. I know people will say I'm being prejudiced, but I think this team has what it takes to win it all. A good shortstop in Jennifer McGee, good power hitting in Ginnie Grove and Shirley Kegley, plus probably the best defense. With all this in mind, look for 1st floor to win it all.

(2) Angels. If hard work and practice wins games, then the Angels could win it all. Under the watchful eye of Charlie Engle and Farley Lockhart, they could mold this team into a winner. Having seen them play, I can testify to the fact that this team hits well. Defense could be a problem. Alice Miller could be the best all around player in the league.

(3) Phi Sig Little Sisters. This team may be better than the Angels, but the way the tournament is set up, they could find themselves in the losers bracket early. If they can field a team, and they get some defense, watch out. The rule not allowing CVC softball team members to play will hurt. Suzy McMillan and Michelle Perry must have big years for them to win it all.

(4) Pi Kapp Phi Little Sisters. Last year the sisters made up for the brothers poor showing in softball by reaching the finals before bowing to a tough Randolph team. This year the roles could be reversed. The brothers are playing well, while the sisters could find themselves in the cellar. The softball team rule will also hurt this team. Can Sheila Dougherty find the right combination to make this team competitive? I doubt it. But if anybody could, then Sheila's the one. Until then, give the Kapp sisters the cellar.

Baseball Team Finished Red Hot

The CVC baseball team is red hot. After sweeping a doubleheader at King, the Cavs returned home to face Bristol College. Going into the bottom half of the last inning, the score was tied 8-8. Randy Hodnett led off with a Texas league single to right. Billy Woods laid down a nifty bunt that the Bristol pitcher mishandled and both runners were safe. Frank Hodges bunted and in attempting to get Woods at second, the ball ended up in center as Hodnett dashed home with the winning run. Final score: CVC 10, Bristol 9.

In the second game, Bristol held a precarious 9-7 lead going into the sixth when CVC exploded for 4 runs to take an 11-9 lead. Scott Morgan shut down the Bristol team by facing only three batters in the seventh. Final: CVC 11, Bristol 9.

The Cavs were having a doubleheader with Cumberland Thursday. At press time, scores were unavailable.

Men's Tennis Team Win Two

The CVC Men's tennis team traveled to Berea on April 16 in hopes of playing three matches, but came home with only one match on their record due to bad weather. CVC narrowly defeated Berea, 6-4. On Monday, the Cavs embarrassed King, 7-2.
