Orby Cantrell "Friend Of CVC" Dies At 75

"Clinch Valley College has lost a very dear friend," was the comment of Chancellor Joseph Smiddy, hours after the sudden death of Delegate Orby L.

Cantrell. Delegate Cantrell suffered a heart attack on Tuesday and died Thursday morning, April 29, at the age of 75. He had served 39 years, the longest tenure of anyone in the General Assembly, beginning with his first term in 1922. The First District which he served included the counties of Dickson, Lee, Wise and Scott, and the City of Norton.

According to Chancellor Smiddy, Orby Cantrell "was the guiding force behind the founding and development of Clinch Valley College." He was a member of the General Assembly when the bill was passed that established the College in 1944, and had a leadership role in getting approval of an amendment to a budget bill that founded a college at Wise. He also introduced the bill that made Clinch Valley a four-year college. He was the ranking member of the House Appropriations Committee and had aided the College in many other ways.

Cantrell, born November 10, 1906 at Pound, attended Pound High School and Radford College. He was a local merchant, former mayor of Pound, and served on the advisory committees of many local groups. In 1946 he was named "Wise County's Citizen Of The Year." He had been a member of the Advisory Committee at Clinch Valley College since 1973, and was in the third year of his second term at the time of his death.

Cantrell is survived by two daughters, Imogene Sturgill and Carolyn Baker. Two of his grandsons, Robbie Sturgill and Danny Hopkins, are graduates of Clinch Valley College.

Smiddy said, "The students, faculty and staff express their appreciation for the many contributions which Orby Cantrell made to Clinch Valley College and to the people of the state of Virginia."

Spring Formal Set For May 8

The Student Government Association of Clinch Valley College has announced the date of the 1962 Spring Formal as May 8. The dance will begin at 9:00 p.m. in the Fred B. Greener Gymnasium and last until 1:00 a.m., with entertainment being provided by Johnny White and the Elite Band, from East Coast Entertainment.

"The theme for this year's formal is 'Sweet Dreams,'" said Terry Kilgore, SGA President. The gym will be decorated in pastel colors to provide a light and sprightly atmosphere.

Students are requested to provide their own refreshments for the dance. Tickets will not be sold prior to the night of the formal; they can be obtained at the door, beginning at 9:00 p.m. Ticket prices will range from $3 stag to $5 per couple. CVC students, faculty, and alumni are invited to attend.

The SGA will be decorating the gym for the formal on Saturday and possibly Friday night. All students wishing to help are encouraged to participate. See any SGA member for details.

Highland Cavalier, Outpost Staffs Announced

The Publications Committee of Clinch Valley College has chosen the staffs for the Highland Cavalier and the Outpost for the 1962-63 year.

Bruce Gibson, an upcoming senior, was chosen to be the editor of the student yearbook, the Outpost. Vicki Scarberry, an upcoming junior, and Vicki Johnson, an upcoming junior, will serve as co-assistant editors of the publication. Lisa Wilson, an upcoming junior, will serve as the Outpost Business Manager.

All students are urged to work on this publication, whether directly with the layouts or with advertisement sales. Anyone who is interested should see Bruce Gibson.

For the Highland Cavalier, the position of editor was split between of the applicants; resulting in co-editors. Jerry Kilgore, an upcoming senior who has been the editor of the Highland Cavalier both his sophomore and junior years and assistant editor of the Highland Cavalier his freshman year, and Karen Green, an upcoming junior and a Chemistry major, will be the co-editors for 1962-63. Rick Whitner, a sports writer this past year, will hold the position of assistant editor. The position of Business Manager will be held by Valerie Jones, a rising senior, who was assistant editor for the Highland Cavalier both her sophomore and junior years at CVC. Any student interested in writing for next year's staff is invited to participate.

"Lefties" Featured In Faculty Forum

Dr. Terry Newland, member of the Education faculty, spoke in the Faculty Forum on April 28. His topic was "Left-handedness."

According to Newland, 8-10 percent of the population is left-handed, with 80 percent of them born to right-handed parents. Children usually do not become left- or right-handed until after age three to six.

Left-handed people experience discrimination against them in their jobs, and there is definitely a cultural bias. However, left-handedness is linked to creativity. Current information supports the idea that more left-handed people enter creative occupations such as architecture.

It is difficult to define the trait which is more like a handedness preference than a handedness. Everyone really uses both hands but we all favor one over the other. The test for determining handedness preference consists of various activities with a recording of the strength when using right and then left hand. An example is making note of how often you use your left hand to open a jar: almost always, seldom, or almost never.

Theories include left-handedness being a result of a slow, difficult birth, in which the baby suffers from a lack of oxygen. This causes minor brain damage which affects the lateralities.

Each of us has a dominant side of the brain (cerebral dominance). The left side usually is dominant in a right-handed person, but left-handed people are unpredictable group, and dominance is unpredictable. They either do not have a dominant side or the dominance is shared by both.

Another interesting fact is that a left-handed person who had a stroke has a better chance of recovering.

Catfish Gray Offers Cures

Do you have arthritis, emphysema, gallstones, ulcers, or sexual problems? Are you overweight? If the answer to either of these questions is yes, Catfish (Man of the Woods) Gray can help.

Catfish Gray spoke to the CVC community last Monday and offered cures to these and many other ailments. Gray's major medicine is "bitters" which is a mixture of twenty herbs that Catfish gathers himself. "Bitters" contain everything from Ginseng to May Apple and Sassafras to Farnon. Some of the herbs' used were handed down from the Indians according to Catfish.

Besides "bitters" Catfish also suggests Soda Water which is a mixture of baking soda in mineral water. According to Catfish, baking soda will cure everything with the exception of cancer. For overweight people, Catfish suggests making 1 teaspoon of baking soda in a eight ounce glass of water three times a day for one week, then once at bedtime for two weeks.

However, Catfish stated that the first things to do was to avoid certain types of food. Examples include tomatoes, potatoes, pork, cabbage, carbonated beverages, instant coffee and fish that don't have scales. The reason to avoid these foods is that our stomach cannot digest them. The food then finds your weak spot and works to make you sick.

Continuing, certain types of food should be eaten to stay well. They include beef, peas, green beans, milk, cheese, whole wheat bread, and asparagus.

Some may find this all unbelievable, but for non-believers Catfish presented the audience with numerous letters from those that had been cured by his "bitters". One woman wrote in to tell him about the considerable weight loss she had experienced while another thanked him because she was no longer bed-ridden.

Everyone is welcome to visit Catfish's West Virginia home from Thursdays through Sunday. Here, visitors may purchase the famous "bitters" which are priced at $3.60 for four bags.

Five pages of Catfish's words of wisdom and cures may be purchased by sending $2.50 to C.F. Gray, Glenwood, West Virginia 25520.

A Little Story

Dear Editor:
Let me tell you a little story...
The Grand Council met in somber silence. The offenders stood cowed and prepared. Their offense was rank with insubordination, and everyone knew it. As Billy Bad-Boy awaited the verdict the heavy atmosphere of the room pressed down upon him. As his head began to swim the stoney faces of the Grand Council divided and fractured casting a Janus-like appearance on the personages in front of him.
What had brought Billy to such levels of shame? Arson? Rape? No! The true crimes flitted around him like insubstantial shadows in the night. Rumors and half-truths now become concrete realities as various council members waved sheafs of purported crimes in front of Billy and other offenders.
"We know you did everything herein contained," roared stern Endicott as he pointed to the stack of "witness" reports in front of him (As true an indictment as ever was assembled).
Endicott continued, his beard quivering in rage, "We'll not be crossed here; my job depends upon it!"
There was a nodding of heads signaling affirmation. The High Priests of Babel, head of the Grand Council, began intoning the sacred chant: "Social probations... Social probations... Social probations..."

The chant rolled up and down the walls of the Star Chamber. The offenders sweated awaiting the inevitable. Mrs. Stoneface, hostess of the pillory, restainer of the Book of Hypocrites now entered, locked by the feared, and rotund Wyatt Earp.
"You are banished from these stripped hills till next semester," pronounced the Grand Priests of Babel.
"So what!"
Billy jerked his head over to check out the other offender. His name was Feste, that's all Billy knew.
"How dare you," thundered Endicott (as he hoped, convincingly).
"Several expletives?" shouted Wyatt Earp.
"I'll get you," hissed Mrs. Stoneface.
Feste hoisted himself up on the Grand Council's table, and in the process of knocking off each member's hat of authority with a quick flick of his hand.
"I've had it with you!" said Feste as he laughed out loud, jumped out the grasp of Wyatt Earp and dove out the window. Billy felt vindicated.
Hope you liked it.
Arise!

Behind The Games...CVC Sports Editorial

To Play Or Not To Play.....

What started out as an innocent enough women's intramural softball season has exploded into a very hot issue. The source of the controversy is this: Should members of the CVC women's softball team be allowed to participate in this spring's intramurals? As I scanned through the various rosters, I noticed that two teams—the Pi Kappa Phi Little Sisters and the Phi Sigma Kappa Little Sisters—had a number of CVC softball players on them. Under Charlie Engle's assurance these players would not be allowed to play—the fact was clearly stated in a memorandum sent to team captains weeks ago—I made my preseason picks.

Recent events have changed the situation. Certain team coaches and CVC women's team representatives met with Mr. Engle at the softball field last Monday to lobby for the CVC team members' eligibility to participate. Apparently certain people had gone over Mr. Engle's head to a higher authority in the administration and had gained their support. Reluctantly, Mr. Engle agreed to allow the team members to play, with the condition the players be divided among all the teams as evenly as possible. With this new policy imposed, the Angels and the Phi Sigma Kappa Little Sisters teams withdrew from competition. The First-Floor team followed suit shortly thereafter, thus eliminating any season of any sort for the women.

The whole issue raises a number of questions. Obviously, the Pi Kappa Phi Little Sisters stood to gain more by letting team members play (they had the most team members on their roster). Provided team members were distributed evenly, would they play as hard for another team less to their liking? It was always my idea that intramurals were for those people who don't participate in intercollegiate athletics. Basketball players were not allowed to participate in intramural basketball, and while many may argue that baseball players are allowed to play intramural softball, it must be pointed out that the two are very different games. Anyone who has played both will tell you so.

I think the issue leads to a re-evaluation of the whole system of CVC intramurals. I am in no way implying the problem lies within Charlie Engle's office; quite contrary, Mr. Engle does an excellent job. Apparently some people forgot that as Director of Housing and Student Activities, intramural sports is his job. It makes you wonder about the Administration when pressure is put on a man just for trying to do his job to the best of his ability.
Sincerely,
Barry Bellamy
Sports Writer

Still Quotes Own Thoughts

To the Editor,
Normally, I am not extremely vocal in my opinions on campus issues. The letter by Frank Lotito GS April, 1983, however, did provoke my interest in student-administration relations. I was one of the 144 signers of Mr. Lotito's petition. I signed, not because I wanted to be a "fad" supporter of an "underdog" but because I felt that some vagueness, as illustrated to me by Mr. Lotito and his supporters, did exist in the C.V.C. Constitution. Many of us might realize that vagueness in any document or code can result in misunderstanding, incorrect procedures, and/or unfair manipulation of procedures. This position is, however, secondary to this letter's intent.
In Mr. Lotito's letter, a statement appeared which particularly disturbed me. Specifically, the statement read, "The Dean of Students called the petition meaningless and would not have been awayed if 'all 800 students had signed it.'" If this statement is essentially correct, then am I to understand that my opinions are subject to an automatic overrule by the Dean of Students, no matter what merit, or lack thereof, that they might hold?

I am not going to quote Voltaire, Patrick Henry, Thomas Jefferson or any other defenders of free thought and speech. To use their words might indicate a reluctance to use my own thoughts. I was led, however, to believe that Clinch Valley College was enlightened enough to allow students to present their opinions in a rational, reasonable manner and be assured of due consideration based on rational, reasonable evaluation. To see that an opinion that I supported, if such was the case, was pre-judged before said opinion was even presented to the Dean of Students does tend to disturb my views on the value of free opinion on campus. If, indeed, Dean Blosser had already decided the issue of the vagueness in the C.V.C. Constitution before Mr. Lotito's dissent in formal petition, then I am afraid that I must express a lack of confidence that my opinions and feelings will not be given due consideration by the Dean of Students. I can only hope that this is not indicative of other C.V.C. administrators.

Respectfully,
Michael Gill

Let's Play Ball

Dear Editor:
I would like to address my attention to Mr. Barry Bellamy and the women's intramural teams: 1st Floor, Angels II, and Phi Sig Little Sisters.
Mr. Bellamy, first, I agree with you that prejudice is very evident in your softball picks, but I'll overlook that one. Second how you came to the conclusion that last year's Randolph team was "tough". I'll never conceive in my mind; all I do know about the championship game is that recruiting for their team grew 99 percent. Third, I couldn't care less about the comments you take liberty to write about the other teams in this women's season, (although I could say a great deal about it), but what you do say about the team for which I play does matter. Just how qualified are you to predict the season's winner? Have you ever seen us play? We haven't either; so just how did you come up with placing Pi Kapp Sisters in the

No. 4 slot? Next, where did you get that so called "collar" word, is that new sports lingo or were you at a loss for words?
Well, then that said I feel another analysis, unbiased and more in-depth is due, which brings me to addressing the other parties to whom this letter concerns:
Another article about women's intramural softball would only entail how Mr. Bellamy is disturbed because you withdrew. This withdrawal is seemingly due to the softball ruling changed, allowing CVC women's softball players to play intramurals. Personally, I understood the rule and had nothing to do with its changing. What I do not understand is the full over the stupid rule. Just because two of the Pi Kappa Phi Little Sisters are now eligible to play is no reason to withdraw from the season. Hey, from the way Mr. Bellamy sounded, the Los Angeles Dodgers and the

New York Yankees couldn't help us. But did you ever think that maybe that's an advantage to you also?
Listen, each of us paid $50 to be eligible to participate in intramurals; for one flaw you're going to give it up? No wonder women's intramurals are as they are, never recognized and so hard to get going.
But seriously though, I think the real reason the Pi Kappa Phi Little Sisters were picked last, and the real reason why everyone withdrew is because everyone knows we're too good to be beaten.
Cindy Saylor
Member of Pi Kappa Phi Little Sisters Team
P.S. Hopefully, I made all of you disturbed and perturbed enough to withdraw your withdrawal and get on with (what I hope) an enjoyable softball season, which is the intentions of intramurals.

Where To From Here

By: Warren H. Wattenbarger
Wesley Foundation
Campus Minister

Which way shall you go from here? There are all kinds of possibilities. You have to make up your mind which way you will go! And it all depends on your purpose.

Going down life's highway is before you. Sometimes it appears easy. Some people in school have given you that impression, and if you have already set some goals for yourself, you will find some kill joy who will try to tell you that you cannot get there from here.

Besides, who wants goals as early in life anyway?

Once in a while you will discover you have been going the wrong way. Sometimes it will be soon enough to make a correction before you encounter a catastrophe. Sometimes someone else will be smart enough to flash a red light and warn you that you have made a mistake. But sometimes you are left all to yourself. You know you have set goals, definite goals: More education... marriage... good job... service to others... special enjoyment. Since you can travel many ways, you have to make wise decisions. They are thrust upon you throughout life. No one can make the decisions for you. The choice is yours.

Where shall I go - probably the most assuring words of direction are found in the Bible. The most proven way is God's way. Isaiah 30:21 proclaims "this is the way, walk in it". Not bad advice for one just starting out on life's great journey.

When it comes to getting aligned with God here is what Jesus said, about going in the right direction. "I am the way, the truth and the life. No man comes unto the Father but through me". That is a proven way - a one way street. This is the road that leads to life - real life! Stick to it. It is the world's only way street to a better life.

Some More Thoughts On Finishing Up

By Jim Colie,
Baptist Campus Minister

It's that time again! The semester, the year, the years... went so fast. Once again it is time to draw things to a conclusion. And again it is good to hear that it is not too late to determine the outcome of the conclusion.

One of the beautiful tenets of the Christian way of doing life is that what's happened in the past... what's happened so far... does not have to determine the present and future. Day to day, in flight corrections count. It is important to take stock of where we are and what needs to be corrected. The little book of First John gives some good approaches to correcting our course. In chapter 1, verses five through ten, John reminds us of what we know too well. None of us is perfect. All semester, indeed all year or through the four years, we've been getting feedback along those lines. Grades, reactions to our peers, gut-level feelings about ourselves, conscience all provide some information about who we are and where we are.

The important thing now is what to do with the feedback. Forgiveness is the name for a healthy attitude toward what is as we recognize that we fall short of what should be. John tells us that the process begins with God. We have God's promise on that. The next step is forgiving ourselves. In reality that may be accepting God's forgiveness. The step beyond that is to make positive corrections in our course, study habits, work patterns, personal lives....

Soccer Club Sunk

Clinch Valley College Soccer Club journeyed to Bluefield State College, in West Virginia, on Tuesday, April 27. Earlier this year, the club had controlled Bluefield in indoor competition, 6-3 and 5-3. This time the roles reversed, Bluefield coming up winner 5-2.

The game was played about halfway through in a downpour and the rest in a sea of mud, thus neutralizing the advantage of speed that would have been CVC's. First half scoring was all Bluefield with the tally 3-0 after the first 45 minutes, although the time again CVC would break the goal, only to be frustrated. Miss Krachala hit the goal post three times from the win.

CVC applied pressure in the second half and finally Ken Mygatt scored on a pass from Alonzo Green, from about 20 yards out. Later in the second half, Bluefield was called for a hand ball in the penalty area. George Vulcan, who played an outstanding game for CVC, was called in to shoot it and scored, evening the game at 3-3.

From that time on, although the games were evenly played, and CVC had many opportunities to score, Bluefield's excellent ball control game and their capitalizing on CVC's mistakes tipped the balance of the game, with three goals; the game ending finally 5-3 in their favor.

This coming week, the CVC Soccer Club will be holding a raffle to raise money for the team. A number of prizes will be offered. Please aid them in this effort.

Softball Winds Down

Intramural softball began to wind down this week. The week saw many exciting games and many heroes. As things stand right now, it appears that the S.D. Barbarians will take their third consecutive regular season title. The Barbarians need only beat the perfect Taste Buds to cap off a winless regular season. As for second, it appears that either the defending champs, the Padres, or the Phi Sigs will pull through. As for the tournament coming up, I rate the Barbarians, Padres, and the Sigs as the favorites with the Enforcers, Kapps, and Ball Busters as darkhorses. I feel only the Kings and Taste Buds have no chance at all, but I have been known to be wrong. Here is a brief summary of this week's games. Thursday game scores were unavailable at press time. Sunday's Games:

 Barbarians 11 Ball Busters 6. In this contest, the Ball Busters proved that by tournament time, they could be a dominant force. The Ball Busters made a few mental mistakes which may have cost them the victory. For the Barbarians, they got the runs when they needed them to remain undefeated.

Phi Sigs 12 Kings III 10. The Sigs used a nine run first inning and then coasted to the victory. The Kings mounted a valiant comeback and almost pulled off the comeback of the year. With the victory, the Sigs remained undefeated.

Padres 16 Phi Kapps 15. In a game that may have set an all-time record for the most walks, the Padres came back from a shaky start to ek out the win. The Kapps recorded their first loss of the year, while as predicted, the Padres bounced back from their lone loss of the year.

Monday's Games:
 Barbarians 4 Phi Kapps 3. The Barbarians got just enough offense to hold off a determined Kapp team. The SGA Olympics may have hurt the Kapps as many of their players appeared tired. For the Kapps, Mike Hoskins belted a long home run to account for two of their three runs. For the opportunistic Barbarians, Wayne Rasmick collected a pair of hits.

Padres 10 Kings III 0. The Padres, playing excellent ball, held the Kings to a mere four hits in recording the shutout.

For The Padres, everyone seemed to be on base, while for the Kings, it just seemed that nobody was on base.

Tuesday's Games:
 Barbarians 4 Enforcers 1. Richard Hess, playing perhaps the best defensive outfield every played in CVC intramurals, led the Barbarians to a hard fought win over the Enforcers. Hess had nine put out and also collected a pair of hits. With the win, the Barbarians remained undefeated and set up the Wednesday showdown with the Phi Sigs, also undefeated.

Kings III 9 Ball Busters 5. After a fairly impressive outing Sunday, the Ball Busters looked impressive as they fell to the Kings. With the win, the Kings recorded their first victory of the season.

Wednesday's Games:

Barbarians 5 Phi Sigs 3. In a battle of unbeaten, the Barbarians defeated the Phi Sigs in one of the most exciting game of the season. The game was nip and tuck until the fifth inning when the Barbarians broke a 2-2 deadlock by scoring three runs. The Barbarians then somehow managed to hold off the Sigs and preserve the win. With the win, the Barbarians clinched at least a share of the regular season crown.

Kings III 14 Taste Buds II 11. The Kings showed an abundance of offensive fireworks and enough defense to hold off the Taste Buds. For the Kings, it was their second straight victory of the season. The Taste Buds, on the other hand, remained winless.

Lady Cav's Runner-Up

CVC's Women's Softball Team was on the verge of an embarrassing season, that is, until they hosted the State Softball Tournament. The Lady Cavs entered the tournament with a 1-9 record and no one expected them to get past the first two games of the double elimination tournament. But, the ladies' desire to win prevailed and a second place finish was brought to Clinch Valley.

In order to reach the finals, the Lady Cavs defeated Southern Seminary and Christopher Newport before Virginia Commonwealth University soundly defeated them 20-2 for the championship.
