WISE — About the only thing not moving quickly at the International Arts Festival Saturday was the wheelchair a CBS film crew used to push a cameraman around in for crowd shots.

Most of the day was filled with fast dance steps, flashy tumbling and folks with curious tastebuds moving from table to table in the International-foods room.

An estimated crowd of 4,000 spread across the Clinch Valley College campus came out for the 8th annual festival, which is presented yearly by the college's Humanities Division.

"This is fantastic, and we're here to see it all," said Mable Estep, a graduate of the former Wise High School who drove with a friend from her Bristol home to attend the festival. "We want to see the cloggers most of all, but we don't want to miss anything."

Elizabeth Cooper, who accompanied Mrs. Estep to the festival, said the two

Teacher education policy updated

By Susan Mullins

A policy for admissions to the Teacher Education Program and the addition of Computer Science Major to the CVC curriculum were both approved by the faculty at their monthly meeting held last Wednesday.

The new admissions policy is part of Clinch Valley's attempt to update and improve the quality of their Teacher Education Program.

Students now entering the program must fulfill twelve requirements before he or she can be considered eligible for admission.

After a student has completed 45 semester hours, he must submit a written statement of his intention to enter the program.

• He must also submit a signed statement of his participation in an orientation session for the T.E.P.

• The student must complete at least sixty semester hours of academic credit from a college or university.

• An applying student must achieve at least a 2.50 grade point average which is an increase from the old required 2.0 grade point average. This average will be checked periodically by the Registrar's Office.

• The student will need a recommendation from his major department(s) for the specific teaching area he is requesting.

• And recommendations from four faculty members are also required.

• An applying student must complete the core battery tests of the National Teacher Examination.

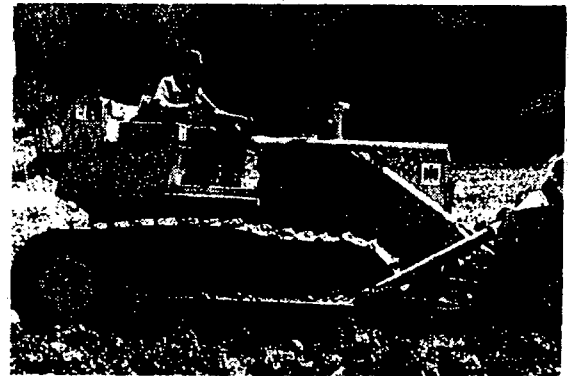

• And must be proficient in oral and written English and other basic skills.

• He should be free from any condition which would impede effectiveness as a teacher.

• He should establish and continue to maintain a pattern of effective work habits.

• And both the elementary and secondary education majors must complete certain courses prescribed by the policy and earn at least a grade of "C" in those courses.

The new policy also requires students to submit See Teacher Education Page 5

Campus parking problem

Enforce the established rules

Parking problems. Commuters have it. Residents have it. Faculty members have it. Everybody has it!

Let's face it, despite the fact that a Parking Committee was formed to combat the parking problem, the problem has not left us. The solution is not simple-so we have heard. In reality, the solution is simple. Enforce the rules. Residents deserve a place to park, as do faculty members, as do commuters. Places are set aside for people to park. CVC has ample parking for everyone if it is used correctly. Commuters have a nice smooth parking lot on top of the hill. Have you been up there lately? We daresay many haven't judging by the number of cars jumbled up around Crockett Hall. There aren't that many residents in Crockett. Don't get cocky residents! You're guilty too.

How many times do you see a resident parked in the faculty lot on the hill? Pretty often. In our opinion, it is the epitome of laziness for a resident to be too lazy to walk from the dorms to classes. Even commuters will do that!

The basic problem all goes back to enforcement. Everybody knows you won't get a ticket on a rainy day. So go ahead and pull that car into a faculty space if its raining. Nothing will happen. Of course it's also okay for a commuter to park right in front of that sign that says "Parking for Dorm Residents" or anywhere else their car will fit in the Crockett Lot. Sometimes enforcement gets down right comical. Some women in Crockett have received tickets for blocking the driveway between Crockett and the little building (what is its purpose anyway?) while unloading on Sunday afternoon! Is this consistency? Coal is not delivered on Sunday!

Our solution is this. Let's give the Crockett residents their lot. Give McCrarry theirs. Let's put the commuters on the hill where they belong. Going one step further, let's get tough. Let's have our "boys in blue" get out when its raining and write a few tickets. Better yet, let's tow away a couple of cars (at owner's expense, of course). We daresay the problem will disappear completely.

Before closing, we would like to emphasize two facts. (1) We are not anti-commuter. We merely feel that they should park where they are supposed to. (2) There is a handicapped lady at CVC who needs the use of the handicapped ramps. Please do not block them. Parking should not be a problem at CVC. We have two many other ones. Let's all do our share to eliminate this problem once and for all.

Point Blank Point Blank is a weekly guest column on topics of interest to CVC.

Rogers explains his thoughts on CVC and his upcoming graduation

By Jimmy Rogers
Class of 1984

When I first entered Clinch Valley College, I must admit that I found it quite different from high school. I found the classes to be harder, the expectations higher, and the game being played under an entirely new set of rules. Now four years later, I still find the classes hard, but now I have set my expectations higher and have learned the rules of the game.

My first semester at CVC, I was a commuter. Being from Big Stone Gap, I felt it was probably more economical to drive than to rent a dorm room. I feel it helped ease the transition from high school to college by living at home, but the disadvantages of being a commuter far outweighed the cost incentives. First of all, it could be quite boring waiting two hours between classes in the Jefferson Lounge. But, mostly, I feel that it is hard to really get a "feel" of the collegiate life if you live at home. Therefore, I moved on-campus after my first semester.

Since I have been at CVC, I have had the opportunity to participate in many activities. I played baseball my first two years, and I played golf my freshman year as well as this year. Inter collegiate sports are great. You get the chance to test yourself against your peers at other schools. You get to see different parts of the country and new friendships are made. Athletically, though, I feel my biggest thrills at CVC have come not through intercollegiate sports, but rather through intramural sports sponsored by the college. As one who has participated in every intramural sport the college offers, I can honestly say that I feel these events are the college's number one social activity. Many would argue the dances are, but I feel that intramurals fulfill a most important desire in most people-the need to compete. Having been on a number of championship teams, I know how good it feels to win, but I also know how it feels to lose. Yet, regardless of victory or defeat, you always look back on an intramural season with fond memories.

"ups and downs" academically. I feel in my last two years I have realized the importance of education. I have improved my G.P.A. In the last two years tremendously.

Looking into the future, I hope to secure a job in the tri-cities area. I will graduate with a B.S. degree in Business and Public Administration with concentrations in Financial and Marketing Management. I hope to put the skills I have learned at CVC to work in a tight job market.

I will be very proud on May 27, 1984 when I become a graduate of Clinch Valley College. As my fellows graduates can vouch for, college is a time of important choices and decisions. It is often difficult to make the right choices. Sometimes you need a friend to help you. I can honestly say that the students, faculty, and administration of CVC have been super in helping me deal with my problems. To all of you, I extend my thanks.

When I leave CVC, I'm sure I'll find the game once again being played under a new set of rules. Hopefully I can once more adapt.

Creative Consuming

Awareness key to profitable banking

By Debbie Shortridge

(Editor's Note: Creative Consuming has been established as a weekly column in the interest of conserving student dollars. The Highland Cavalier will attempt to present objective investigative reporting concerning consumer topics of interest to CVC students. The Highland Cavalier welcomes any suggestions about which topics are of interest to students.)

Money. You receive it, deposit it in the bank, and then give it to other people, one check at a time. Sounds easy enough, right? Wrong. There's more to banking than making deposits and writing checks.

An awareness of the different services offered by different banks is the first step towards profitable personal banking. If, for example, you have a large sum of money-let's say $800-to last for the entire semester, at $200 per month, you may want to open a checking account with a bank that offers free checking services. Since there is no minimum balance on this type of account, you may want to deposit $200, and use the other $600 to open a savings account that pays interest monthly. Then at the beginning of each succeeding month, you could withdraw a portion of the $600 from savings, and deposit it into checking. This, of course, is only an example; there are many ways to be a creative banker. The key is to be aware of the available possibilities.

There are now four banks in Wise to choose from for your banking pleasure. The following chart outlines some of the services offered by Sovran Bank, First Commonwealth Bank, Dominion Bank, and Peoples Bank of Pound.

an application for admission during the semester in which the student will have completed at least 60 semester hours. This is to prevent students from waiting till their last year to apply.

Admission to the Teacher Education Program is required for entering the Intern Teaching Program.

The faculty also approved a new Computer Science Major which is now offered by the CVC Mathematics Department.

A Computer Science Major must complete the general education requirements in addition to 29 hours in Computer Science, Core Requirements, 3 hours in Computer Science Electives and 21 or 22 hours in Mathematics Requirements.

Because of past problems with students who wait until their last semester to declare a major, the faculty also discussed a proposal that would require a student to declare a major when he is classified as a third year student and has completed 54 hours of academic credit.

Dean Lowe said "A student who waits until his fourth year of college to declare his major field of study is hard to advise and administer to properly." Even though it is mandatory for students to submit a major by their third year at CVC, they are still free to change their major at any point.

The proposal was passed by the faculty and will be put into effect in the near future.

Mercure ten year veteran of benefit Walk-a-thon

By Pamela Mullins

WANTED: Walkers and joggers interested in helping area older citizens!

The Mountain Empire Older Citizens Agency need YOU to help raise money for heating costs of the elderly by participating in the 10th Annual Walkathon for Emergency Fuel Fund!

Rosemary Mercure on her daily walk to work. By Fletcher Dean

Peggy Hall, co-ordinator of the event, hopes the 10 kilometer trek will raise $12,500 this year for senior citizens in Lee, Wise, and Scott Counties, and the City of Norton. "The money is raised locally and distributed locally. We are hoping for a lot of participation from the college."

Several CVC faculty, staff, and students have already signed up for this year's race. Rosemary Mercure, Bill Maxwell, Roger Irie, Mike Donathon, and Sharon Daniels all have agreed to donate "sweats and tennies" to help the Mountain Empire elderly.

Mercure, a 10-year veteran of the event, feels that a great sense of personal achievement is gained by "finishing the race and helping out the older people." Mercure added that what she likes best about the walkathon is "the happy participation. Even though the race has grown, more students and faculty should participate."

If you would like to take Mercure's advice, contact Peggy Hall at 328-2302, get someone to sponsor you per kilometer, and be at the Wise Fairgrounds at 1:00 p.m. on Sunday, May 6.

If sponsors seem to be the problem, Mercure suggest asking "faculty, CVC clubs and organizations, and even fellow students. It's a great way to make alot of friends."

As an added incentive, refreshments will be provided along the route, and T-shirts will be given to anyone raising $50.00 for the agency!

Spiritually Speaking

Man can build his own environment

By Warren H. Wattenbarger
Wesley Foundation
Campus Minister

The book of Genesis is correct in saying, "In the beginning God created the heaven and the earth." Genesis 1:1. But there is a sense in which it can be said that we make the world in which we actually live. The ancient argument concerning the relative importance of heredity and environment has lost much of its interest for the modern person, for he has discovered that he can do a very great deal about his environment, and that he can outwit almost every evil ancestor he ever had. Mark Twain's classic remark to the effect that everyone talks about the weather and no one ever does anything about it sounds strange to a generation accustomed to thermostat heat control and air conditioning.

The ancient book of Proverbs is entirely scientific, even in the modern sense, when it says: "Keep thy heart with all diligence for out of it are the issues of life. (4:23, and: "As he thinketh in his heart, so is he" (23:7)

God has furnished us with raw material out of which we are at liberty to build the world we prefer, but having built it, we must live in it. We can populate it with fears or with faith, but we must live with whichever we decide upon. We can fill it with unbridled appetites, or we can keep it clean and live in decency and self respect. We can turn emotions and desires loose in it to run wild, or we can police it with holy purposes and make it a safe place in which to develop character. In every case we make the decision!

Williams stresses need for black student groups

By Marnita Zander

On April 18th, Mr. Ray Williams spoke to the members of the Alliance for Black Culture on the importance of having black organizations on predominantly white campuses. Mr. Williams went on to say that the need to have black organizations was important for the reasons: (1) It helps bring black people together. (2) It helps us to fit into the mainstream of life; and (3) It helps us to educate ourselves as well as others.

Mr. Williams is a native of Hampton, Virginia, currently over admissions of transfer students and minority recruitment at Radford University.

Mr. Williams has an undergraduate degree in psychology and is continuing his education in the Master's Program to receive a degree in industrial psychology.

The members of the Alliance for Black Culture would like to thank Mr. Williams for his visit to the college and would also like to thank everyone who attended.

Cav Baseball team sets new record for victories

By Barry Bellamy
Despite a weak sounding 11-21 record, the CVC baseball team has already set a school record for victories and is on solid ground for the future, at least according to assistant Coach Joe Hoskins. "The boys have really worked hard this year," stated Hoskins, once a CVC player as well as a member of the Montreal farm system. "The record is deceiving," stated Hoskins. Going further, Hoskins said that he felt the team had played well over their heads in the conference and their non-conference schedule was a major factor in the below .500 record. "We played a tough non-conference schedule. We played East Tennessee State twice as well as LMU," observed Hoskins.

Frank Hodges, a senior second baseman for the team, felt that with a little more luck, the team's record could really be outstanding. "How many games did we lose by one run? I'll bet it was ten. With a break here or there, we could be 21-11 instead of 11-21," Hodges said.

What's next for the Cavs? Well, probably nothing. According to Coach Hoskins, only three teams from the region and only one from the KIAC get to participate in the upcoming tournament. CVC is currently in fourth place in the conference. Barring a "miracle" according to Hoskins, the team will probably finish no higher than third in the KIAC, not high enough for a tournament berth.

Nonetheless, eleven victories is a milestone for the Cavalier baseball team. The team will have a few more games this season. With each victory, the record is shattered once again. So go out and support the CVC baseball team. You may see a record broken.

The Men's Intramural Volleyball Championship Wednesday night saw the Kapps easily defeat the undefeated Panthers.

Joe Hoskins, an outstanding player for the Kapps, termed the victory as, "Another great Pi Kappa Phi team effort."

The Kapps easily took the first set, winning two games in a row 15-2, and 15-6.

The second set was much the same. The Kapps rolled over the Panthers with scores of 15-6, and 15-5.

Brian "Enos" Riley said, "Before this season started, I said that we would take intramural volleyball, and we did!"

In the women's volleyball championship, Gibson's Gang sild by the Bombers in a three-game set.

The first game was won by the Bombers, with the close score of 15-12.

Gibson's Gang rallied in the second game, easily defeating the Bombers 15-8.

The final game of the set was a close one, the teams being tied at 13. Gibson's Gang, however, won out in the end with a score of 15-13 over the Bombers.

Inclimate winter weather takes toll on tennis teams

The winter weather hurt the women's tennis team in a different way. According to women's tennis coach Carol Almond, the weather was poor on many of the days on which the team played, half of the team's games were rained-out or postponed because of rain. Two of their matches were postponed, one rained-out and one match canceled.

The men's tennis team had fared fairly well so far this season, with a current record of 7-8. Coach Van Daniel is optimistic for the team this season.
