Henson opens colloquium

By Kathy Roark
The people of Southwestern Virginia are constantly threatened by the possibility of mining disasters which have the potential to tragically rip families apart. Professor Edward L. "Buck" Henson delivered his paper, entitled "100 Years of Mining Disasters in Southwestern Virginia" to begin the '83-'84 Faculty Colloquium series.

The paper contained details of the major mining

Chancellorship?.... Alumni make resolution, faculty call meeting

By Debbie Shortridge
Diverse opinions are beginning to surface regarding the search for Clinch Valley College's new Chancellor.

Less than one week after the CVC Alumni Association Board of Directors' resolution was approved September 8, the Faculty Committee Memorandum was issued September 13, and the faculty meeting is scheduled for September 19, at 4:30 p.m., in A-100.

When notified of the faculty memorandum and recommendation, John Farmer, President of the CVC Alumni Association said, "We want Dr. Culbertson to be given special consideration. He is a local

Theft... Prevention demands cooperation

We all desire to believe man is basically good. An optimist might place his faith in the virtue of his fellow man. He may even go as far as to exhibit a faith in that belief, placing trust in that ideal.

The unsuspecting can be naive, or perhaps more descriptive, reckless. Proof that shatters the ideal of honor and trust rests in recent cases of theft on CVC's grounds.

At a recent Thursday night dance, a brown leather purse was left lying in a chair, the accepted home of such valuables during these occasions. The owner returned from the dance floor to find the purse missing. Included in the loss were driver's license and other ID, car and house keys, plus other cosmetic and sentimental items. The situation was most frustrating. The culprit had recognized the opportunity to seize an item of value, the purse itself, and apparently hoped to find a greater gain, perhaps monetary. Thankfully, the purse contained less than $2.00. But the extent of the loss is not the issue. The principle far outweighs the suspected motive.

To think someone had the nerve to take another's belonging, knowing the loss would cause the victim much anguish, is appalling. The victim wonders if he meets the person under the pretense of friend. Such acts dampen the optimistic ideal.

Other spirits are more than dampened. One fellow classmate is right sick after having a billfold containing about two hundred dollars lifted.

Is there a code of honor at CVC? Must one clutch zealously at his purse when at a social gathering? Must he anticipate that others will wrong him if given the opportunity? Is he reckless if he doesn't foresee this possibility?

Perhaps it is a combination of both. Opportunity is temptation. If the potential thief is not given the chance to wrong, or succumb to the temptation, then the act will not occur. Read this as a warning.

Then consider the type of society CVC should be. It should be one based upon respect for the property and rights of others.

Tolerance of theft and other crimes scar the purpose of the honor system and the justice system. Be a friend's eye. If you have knowledge of these or other crimes, you are as guilty the thief. Be a watchdog. That is not a link or mark. The link is the guy who ripped off that beloved purse. Have sympathy for the victim not fear for the punishment of the criminal. Realize the system demands cooperation. Feeling badly about a friend's loss doesn't cut it. Take action. If these and other actions can't be prevented by an appeal to some higher principle or code of honor, then let justice prevail. Who is CVC's thief or are there many thieves? Cooperation can and will provide that answer.

Voting explained

Well believe it or not, there is no poll tax anymore. Lists that jurors are picked from are obtained from other sources besides voter registration lists (such as DMV drivers license lists and others), and minorities, women and persons not owning property can now vote. With all that out of the way, what's YOUR excuse for not registering and voting? If we are to keep the democratic process strong, we must use our votes. Below is a list of the steps a person goes through to register and vote. I hope you find it informative and I hope it leads you to the polls on November 6th.

- Q. When do I register and vote?
A. Saturday October 6, 1984 is the last day to register for the November elections. It is best to go and register today while you are thinking about it.
- Q. How do I register to vote?
A. First go to the registrar's office at your local courthouse. (For a free ride, call The Ninth District Voter Education Coalition at 628-2018). The registrar will ask you for your: name and address, Social Security Number, date and place of birth.
- Q. When do I vote?
A. Tuesday November 6, 1984 any time from 6 a.m. to 7 p.m. at the place your registrar tells you.
- Q. How do I vote?

A. 1. Come to the polls. 2. There might be a short line, get in line. 3. Give your name. (You might be asked for identification). 4. Go into the voting booth. (You can take someone in to help if you want). 5. Pull the big red handle to the left and shut the curtains behind you. 6. Push the small bars down above the names of your choices for president and other offices. 7. Pull the big red handle to the right to enter your vote into the machine and open the curtain. YOUR VOTE HAS JUST BEEN COUNTED.

VOTE... but exercise that right conscientiously

By Robert McCure
Does politics bore you? Bother you? Seem like just a waste of time? Then perhaps you are living in the wrong time period. Now more than ever politics affect literally every breath you take. (If you think not, just look at the controversy that has arisen over the "Clean Air Act" and possible passage of legislation that will lessen the destructive effects of acid rain). We live in a society that has every nuance of our lives governed by legislation. Whether good or bad is for the beholder to discern, but the realization that this statement is true has to be made.

The other night in the Cavern I was talking to a fellow student about the forthcoming elections. As is custom in this society, we presented our choices for the presidency. Upon learning that his choice for this office was opposite of mine I tried to get him to explain his reasons. I was horribly dismayed when he responded "I am voting for — because my daddy is voting for —." I attempted to draw him out more and talk about the positions of his chosen candidate but he felt this was too much of a nuisance and basically told me that he didn't want to be bothered with learning the positions of the candidates. He then proceeded to espouse his fantasies of which country he would eventually like to settle in when he was older and wealthier.

If you don't use it, you lose it. I'm talking about your vote not your social life. If you intend to vote, and I strongly urge you to vote, you should be as familiar with the candidate(s) of your choice and her/his/their positions as you possibly can. To vote for a candidate just because someone else does is a pretty poor reason. Admittedly we are all influenced by our parents and our friends but they, just as we and everybody else, can be quite wrong. I have been working to register new voters for this election and am really disappointed that some folks take lightly a gift that people died to gain in this country. When I think of the people in other parts of the world who are dying this very minute to gain the right to vote and direct their own lives I consider it a tragedy that we don't appreciate the power we have over our own destiny.

Frank Finds... SGA budget analyzed

By Frank Pyance

The HIGHLAND CAVALIER asks: Are you satisfied or dissatisfied with the amount of funds allotted to your organization?

Daley Portuando, Pro Art
"I am very dissatisfied. Pro Art was cut 66% from last year. We will have to solicit other departments for more funds."

John Kilgore, SGA
"I'm very happy with what we ended up with."

Martha McDaniel, Cheerleaders
"Considering that we were in the red last year, I'm fairly satisfied. I realized we would be cut and when we received our share, it was not as bad as I expected."

Coach Dave Bentley, Athletics

"I'm not too happy with what the Athletic Department received. I do realize that what was allotted to us was within limitations imposed on the budget. I am dissatisfied, although the amount was not unreasonable."

Charlie Engle, Intramurals
"I'm very satisfied. We were given more than what we had last year. This was unexpected; so I'm happy."

Betty Farmer, HIGHLAND CAVALIER
"I'm not happy. I don't think we can put out a quality paper with what we've received, nor can we do some of the extras I had planned, like using color."

Tammy Kilgore, OUTPOST
"I'm very happy. We were given more this year."

Performing Arts has many aspects

By Mark Kilgore
 The Performing Arts department at CVC offers aesthetic training in: visual art, music, and theatre.

If you paint, draw or really love working with your hands, join the Art department. Mrs. Gilliam, CVC's Associate Professor of Art, feels the need is greater than ever for artistic expression in all forms. She believes that the personal satisfaction that comes from creation enhances life and meets that important human need.

Dr. Peake to present paper September 26

Professor Richard Peake will present a paper entitled "From Mother Goddess to Marilyn" at the CVC Faculty Colloquium at 4:30 p.m. on Wednesday, September 28

Michael Donathan offers a wide spectrum of musical possibilities. Piano, voice, pipe organ and guitar are possibilities while Broadway musicals and the College-Community are the performable aspects of the department.

Productions of current dramas or comedies is always a provider of high quality entertainment. The quality is the result of hard work and professionalism that is expected by Charles Lewis. In spite of the sacrifices, students who've had the experience realize a strong sense of accomplishment.

Although dance is not available for concentration, what is available is an opportunity for any student to experience an awareness and appreciation for creative movement and how it relates to the other arts. Students can experience it all under the instruction of Elaine Schneider-Schroil.

Take advantage of the aesthetic possibilities at CVC and be a part of the creative process. You may discover talents you never dreamed of.

In the Chapel of All Faiths on the college campus. Professor Peake teaches English at Clinch Valley College and serves as Chairman of the Humanities Division. The CVC Faculty Colloquium cordially invites students, staff and the public to Professor Peake's presentation on September 28.

Jamie Creech

By Dirk Davis

"It's tough to go from being a starter in high school to a nobody in college." He may be a nobody now, but 6' freshman point guard Jamie Creech from Whitesburg, Kentucky is on his way to being a real somebody here at CVC. Jamie knows the biggest obstacle he must overcome is making the team of fifteen. "There's a real good crop of freshmen here and it's going to be hard to make the team. There's one or two guys that are a small cut above the rest and everybody else is pretty much the same. We'll have to work real hard for what spots are available." Jamie feels its important that he improve his defensive skills and really work hard in practice.

Jamie gives a lot of credit to Hobby Stuart for his improvement since he got here and he feels Hobby is a big reason he's still at CVC. "At the first of the year I was real frustrated, but Hobby talked to me and encouraged me. Now I'm glad I stayed. I live CVC. It's real demanding here and hard to leave home, but friends like Hobby help you adjust a lot."

To be a good ball club Jamie feels that the Cavaliers will have to play good, strong, man-to-man defense and shoot well. Also, the team will have to have a lot of role players. "I feel role players can be as important as starters. It's gonna take more than five people to win in the KIAC. If everyone will just accept their role, we'll be a good ball club. Good luck to Jamie and to the rest of the Cavaliers. Let's get behind them and make this year the best ever for the Cavs."

Athletic insurance changed

Athletic Director, Bonnie Eloser announced September 7 that due to increased insurance costs and current budget cuts, the type of insurance coverage the athletic department will be using for the 1984-85 academic year will be changed. In past years, the athletic department has had an insurance policy which has served as primary coverage. This year, for economic reasons, we have had to change to a primary excess coverage.

This new coverage means simply that if a student-athlete and/or his family has hospitalization/accident insurance of their own, that insurance will be applied first. The athletic department insurance would then come in to play on any unpaid portion of the student-athlete's bill. If the student-athlete and/or his family does not have hospitalization/accident coverage, our insurance would be applied first in that case.

Athletes should be aware that it is extremely important to promptly notify the athletic department at the time of injury. If they fail to complete the necessary paperwork within the specified time, the athletic department will not be responsible for the incurred bill.
