Outpost staff members selected

By Betty Farmer
The Outpost leaders for the coming year were selected by the Publications Committee, Wednesday, after the members spent nearly two hours screening and interviewing a number of applicants.

Nancy Rasnick, a rising sophomore from Lebanon, Va., was named editor. "I really think I can do a good job, but I understand it's going to be tough," Rasnick has some ideas in mind for next year's book. "I would like to get more candid shots, more informative copy, and more captions with the pictures," Rasnick said she wants input. "I want more people working on it with different ideas. I am open to suggestions from anyone on campus," she concluded.

Christine Boyd, a rising junior, will serve as Assistant Editor for the second year in a row. Boyd said, "I think I am well qualified for the position. They need people with experience and I have that experience." Boyd feels the Outpost needs a larger staff. "I want to get more people working on the annual." Boyd said she would like to have a meeting sometime soon to hear from people who are interested in working on the publication.

Mike Darnell, a rising junior, said he was "pleased who is interested in selling advertisements on a commission basis to contact him as soon as possible.

Robb kicks off safety program

More than 100 small mine operators attended the mine safety program in Greer Gymnasium at Clinch Valley College on April 12, 1985. Virginia's governor, Charles Robb, began Friday's meeting, which was part of a new state project in mine safety.

The project was designed for operators who own underground mines which employ less than 50 workers. The campaign's goal is to reduce Virginia's

Letters to the editor

Kilgore hopes students realize Yearbook's value

To the Editor:
My compliments to Betty Farmer and associates for the fine article in last week's Highland Cavalier concerning the 1985 Outpost.

Apathy has plagued the yearbook for the last several years and finally it has been recognized and confronted. Hopefully, students will finally realize the importance of the yearbook and take a more active role in its publication. For too long, it has been assumed that the yearbook would always be there, but too few students have volunteered to do the work.

Thanks again for the excellent coverage and keep your fingers crossed that a miracle will happen and we'll see the 1985 Outpost in May!

Thankyou,
Tammy Kilgore, Editor

Heise feels education goes beyond the classroom

To the Editor:
Clinch Valley provides educational opportunity to each of its students; however, not all the education at CVC takes place in the classroom and not all the opportunities are realized as educational experiences.

This Saturday, April 27, from 10:00 am to 6:00 pm CVC students have a once-a-year opportunity to learn about the cultures of people around the world — in true liberal arts fashion — by attending the International Arts Festival.

Attending is good; participating is better. And student response this year has been the best ever. Nineteen student organizations and their members will be preparing international foods, offering games, blowing up balloons, and providing an art show; other students will be volunteering their help all over campus; the more dramatic of the lot will be dressed as clowns for the day. Sounds like fun, doesn't it?

And that's only the beginning. The day's entertainment will feature music and dance from Argentina, China, Ireland, the Appalachian Mountains and the Cherokee Indians. China and Argentina will again be featured in the exhibit area with a video presentation, slides, Chinese calligraphy and cut-out booths, along with numerous articles representing the culture of both countries. The Cherokee nation, Ecuador, France, Italy, Japan, Spain, and Mexico will complete the day's exhibits. And yet there's more; detailing it all would take a whole page of the Highland Cavalier rather than a column.

Months of preparation and the work of many people have gone into this year's festival. Won't you take the opportunity to be a part of it? Join us on Saturday. Support your fellow students, the college community, and in particular, the Humanities Division. You'll be better educated for your effort.

Sincerely,
Julia Heise

SGA elections

Do they really matter?

Officers for the Student Government Association should be selected by the administration. It is beyond the average student's level of intelligence to be able to consider the choices objectively and to then cast a vote based on that analysis. Why should any student have the privilege to select their ruling body?

After all, the SGA isn't that important. They only control the distribution process of your, of mine, of Joe's $120 activity-gripe fee. Who cares if Intramurals gets $500 and the Highland Cavalier gets $15,000? Life goes on.

And what of life? The SGA doesn't do much to affect your life. They only have a few events that everybody wants to attend. Hey maybe, if the administration had more control over the SGA, then we could get Little Davy Wilkins down here to play the Spring Formal instead of Xenon.

We urge you to stay away from those polls. Your vote won't make the least bit of difference. Really now, who cares what you think? Surely, you aren't concerned how the budget is appropriated? It won't affect you. Furthermore, forget that candidate who wants to plan for more activities. There is too much to do here as it is. Students need to be studious. All that extracurricular activity is for the birds. Let's fly right.

Your future isn't on the ballot Wednesday, April 24 so just pass those polls with a resounding "I don't give a damn." It's not a new attitude, so there's no need to change it now.

For those of you who don't agree with this opinion, you may wish to confer with Professor Sheldon or Professor Scolnick, you may be feverish!

Reasons for attending festival should include pure enjoyment

By Deborah S. Rouse
Director of Public Relations
Clinch Valley College

Highland Cavalier editor Betty Farmer posed a question the other day that made me stop and think. She asked why students should come to the International Arts Festival Saturday.

The question made me pause even though I have spent a great deal of time during the last two months writing things designed to entice people to the festival.

I have written about gifts, food, dancers, puppets, and the Reedy Creek Band. The prose has gone out to newspapers, radio and television stations and even to Willard Scott of the Today Show.

But it was all intended to make people want to come to the festival and frankly, I had not thought about attending the festival as something people "ought" to do.

Do Clinch Valley College students have a duty to fill some of the seats in the gym and watch the Gaithersburg Chinese Dance Ensemble or the Adams Elementary School Choir? What obligation might there be to leave a little change at the Judd Lewis Society wet spones toss?

It is certainly not the same as the duty students have to show up for class or the obligation to turn papers in on time.

But it may be something like the obligation a friend of mine calls "showing the flag." He is a free lance journalist who frequently gathers news by socializing with people in the industry he writes about. There are some parties he would not miss for anything because of what he will learn.

There are other gatherings at which he knows there will be no news and thus no practical reason, no real obligation, for him to go. He goes anyway.

He does so because he values his friendships, his long term relationships with the people who care about the event. He goes to show respect for and concern about what they are interested in even when he doesn't get anything out of it. And he usually has a good time.

That has happened to Clinch Valley College students at the International Arts Festival. Humanities Chairman Richard Peake tells me. Through the years, Peake says, there have been many students reluctant to come to the festival for various reasons. But those who went anyway ended up enjoying themselves.

"That's really the most important reason to come," he said. "It's a lot of fun."

There will be plenty of chances for students to help each other in a practical way at the festival. More than a dozen student groups will be raising money with games and food. That includes international dinners from Phi Beta Lambda, Circle K, Club, the International Club, Phi Upsilon Omega, and Chi Delta Rho. There will be diet busing sweets from the Baptist Student Union and the Wesley Foundation and beverages from Kappa Psi Iota. And that's just in the cafeteria.

Around the campus, the cheerleaders will be selling hot dogs, Sigma Zeta will offer hamburgers, and the Association for Black Culture will have barbecued ribs. For something to go with all that meat, Phi Upsilon Omega and the Athletic Department will offer popcorn and snacks.

Once you are full, you can enjoy the dart and ping pong toss with CVC intramurals, throw wet sponges at the Judd Lewis Society booth, or drape yourself in Phi Upsilon Omega Mardi Gras beads.

There will also be chances to learn something. Through the sponsorship of the Pro-Art Association, there will be a panel display in the library illustrating the history of women in Virginia and at 5 p.m. a lecture in the chapel by Kym Rice, curator of the Women's Cultural Project, which put together the display.

In the Zehmer Building the Clinch Valley College Art Guild will have an art exhibit. Groups from J.J. Kelly High School, Clintwood High School, the faculty, and the community will have exhibits representing 11 different nations. You just might see something you haven't seen before.

To get all that in, you will probably need to get off your feet for a while and the only seats may be in the gym where numerous groups will

Harding devoted to Arts Festival's purpose

By Darrin K. Sutherland
"Purely enjoyable" were the words of Arved Harding, Jr., describing the upcoming International Arts Festival here at CVC (April 27). Harding's overall stated purpose was that anyone who comes will find an entire world of things to do and experience right here on the campus of CVC.

"It (the International Arts Festival) brings people together," not only people from other countries into this area, it brings the people from this area together in a way few things do, according to Harding.

In describing why people come back year after year, he noted that 3,000 people were here for the 1982 festival. Why should any of them return to the festival? "Every year there's something different," was an immediate and very easy answer for him.

This year's festival will be the eighth that Arved has attended, and the fourth he has worked. "To me it brings different cultures into an isolated area," Harding said, and this seems to be the driving force that keeps him giving the festival so much of his time. The festival gives us a chance to see "things that we've never seen before, because of our isolation...to experience different dance troupes, different foods and the different exhibits," he said. Harding's main purpose is to help provide for an "international culture exchange on the CVC campus."

He is impressed with the number of students who give their time to help make the festival work. He stressed the "pains" that go into preparing the many varieties of food, and is proud of the fact that after it's all over, the profits each club and organization make go to help the individual club's own worthy causes. However, to Harding, the "Festival is a worthy cause," and thus that is where the International Club's money will go.

Harding's favorite part of the festival is simply the people who come from other countries. "They're presenting a message from their own country," Harding said, and that to him is of extreme importance.

The one thing that keeps

Arved Harding's mind fresh and excited about the festival every year are the rewards he gets from the experience. "I see it as a chance to grow in yourself, as well as a chance to better yourself as a whole. I think I've matured and grown a lot as a result solely of the organization. People see...that I am willing to give of myself and they recognize that as an achievement," Harding said. He feels that people should take time to come out to the festival: "I think every student should strive to see as many performances and exhibits as possible," he said.

"Everything we do is for the campus and for people of the community," according to Harding. "I think everyone on campus should try to experience it," he urged.

International Club President Arved Harding looks forward to upcoming Arts festival.

Peer counselors ready to help fellow students

By Chris Revilla and Christine Maness

Everyone has problems; but the transition from high school to college life often causes a student to feel overwhelmed by the pressures of his or her new lifestyle. Where can one turn for assistance?

For students at Clinch Valley College, the smart answer may well be Special Services' Peer Counselors, a group of fellow students who will listen to problems and try to help.

The program began as a part of Special Services in 1973, and over the years has undergone many changes. It has developed into a personal, yet effective agency devoted to the students and their needs.

According to Ms. Hope Hancock, Coordinator of Special Services, peer counselors are trained to deal with those students who come to them. Such dilemmas as troubled relationships in the college, family distress, and academic problems are encountered and dealt with, with the assistance of the peer counselors.

This semester there are two counselors available: Kathy Roark and Al Wallace and soon there may be two more, according to Hancock.

The program has, from its onset, maintained a policy of very strict confidentiality. Even Ms. Hancock hears of the clientele only in terms of numbers at consultation meetings. Should a student's agency ever be revealed outside the rigid structures set by Special Services, the counselor involved would be discharged at once. In other words, the program is worthy of students' full trust.

If someone has a problem, how do they get in touch with the counselors? If you know either Al or Kathy personally, ask them if they can spare some time to talk. If you are not acquainted with them, you can either write to them through campus mail, or see Ms. Hancock in her office in the Zehmer building. Her telephone number is available in the directory listings in the student Code.

Making contact with a peer counselor can only make things better, and they are willing to help. As Ms.

Hancock says of the program, it has "good people" in it. You can rest assured that all sessions will be kept completely confidential, and that the counselors will do their best to help you. Their main task is to make sure people can solve their own problems.

Prominent journalist to present speech at CVC

California journalist and short story writer William Rintoul will speak at Clinch Valley College April 23.

Rintoul has written newspaper and magazine articles about the west coast oil industry for 36 years and is the author of three books chronicling the history of the industry's development in California's oil rich San Joaquin Valley. He is widely recognized as a leading expert on oil and natural gas exploration and development in California.

Combining technical expertise about the oil industry and personal experiences in the oil fields, Rintoul also writes successful fiction and has published short stories in more than a dozen distinguished periodicals.

In addition to his fiction, newspaper and oil industry writing, Rintoul has contributed general interest articles to Sports Illustrated, Popular Mechanics, Flying and Westways.

Rintoul holds a B.A. degree in journalism from the University of California at Berkeley and an M.A. degree in journalism from Stanford University.

He writes a daily newspaper column on oil production for The Bakersfield Californian and regular articles for the oil industry trade journal Pacific Oil World.

Rintoul's April 23 address will be at 11:30 a.m. in the Chapel of All Faiths at Clinch Valley College.

Third annual Law Day dinner May 4

Clinch Valley College's third annual Law Day Dinner will be held Saturday night, May 4 at the College. Federal Judge Glen M. Williams will be the guest speaker. This year's Law Day theme is "Liberty and Justice For All."

The dinner, part of an annual nationwide commemoration of the nation's legal system, is sponsored by the CVC Alumni Association and the Wise County Bar Association.

A reception will be held at 6:00 p.m., and the dinner at 7:00 p.m. Tickets are available for a $15 donation by calling 679-0777 or 328-2431, or by writing P.O. Box 625, Norton, Virginia. The public is cordially invited to attend.

secretary while Chuck Banner is unopposed in the race for treasurer.

For President

John H. Brickley III: John is a junior. His main objectives are to improve weekend activities, to help alleviate parking problems, and to find better use for students' activity fees. John also plans to work closely with Chancellor-elect Moomaw "on school and student policies," he said.

Rusty Necessary: Rusty is a sophomore. He said he will strive to work more in depth with the SGA representatives, getting them more involved. As a commuter, he said he experiences CVC's parking problems and will try to find a solution; and Rusty plans to have a good working relationship with Edmund Moomaw: "I want him to know that we care," he said.

Robb Stoss: Robb is a sophomore. Robb said he wants "to make sure the SGA functions as an organization that expresses the wishes of all of the students." Stoss said he felt the SGA could "play a powerful role in the future of the school." With the coming of the Moomaw, Stoss feels "next year is the time to make things happen."

For Vice-President

Greg Marshall: Greg is a junior. He plans to initiate an SGA-sponsored book exchange program, and support the President. He is currently Treasurer of the Wesley Foundation. Junior SGA Representative, Honor Court Chairman, Activities Editor of the Annual, and a member of Alpha Delta Chi.

Marla E. Portuondo: Marla is a sophomore. She plans to "definitely make sure students get more out of their activity fees," and support things that are student-oriented, such as the arts and the Highland Cavalier. She plans to work for clubs' fair representation on the Inter-Club Council.

Stephanie Slomp:

Stephanie is a sophomore. She said she wants the Inter-Club Council to be more active. She also said, "I want to be the mediator between the SGA, the student body, and the clubs."

For Secretary

Lynn Gilbert: Lynn is a senior. "Because I served on the SGA for three years, and because I've been a reporter for The Highland Cavalier, I can write weekly articles about SGA activities so the students will be informed of what the SGA is doing," she said.

Kim Ponders:

Kim is a junior. She said that she plans to "help the President."

Tina White: Tina is a sophomore. She stated, "I am interested in the school. I want to learn more about it and become more involved."

Rebecca Wells:

Rebecca is a sophomore. Becky stated that she "wanted to be a part of the school and help the SGA in any way I can."

For Treasurer:

Chuck Banner: Chuck is a junior. He is unopposed. He could not be reached by the HC for an interview.

underground mine fatality record. The program was brought about after the McClure mine disaster, which took place in Dickenson County in June 1983. In this accident, seven miners were killed and three others were injured.

The program is being funded by a $242,000 grant from the Mine Safety and Health Administration, and a $50,000 grant from the state. Joseph A. Lamonica, (NSHA) administrator, said that Virginia's grant is the largest ever made to a state for a special mine safety program. NSHA made 40 grants in 22 states for mine safety education.

Annual eight-hour mine safety refresher sessions are to be held at or near those mine sites which will be involved. These sessions will be undertaken by Mountain Empire and Southwest Virginia Community Colleges. Training will also be provided for three supervisors from each mine. The first 120 mines to sign up will be eligible.

Nine "topic of the month" presentations will also be given on safety subjects such as proper mine ventilation and the proper use of explosives.

provide sparkling, varied, and truly international entertainment.

Does that sound like I've slid back into touting the festival? Perhaps I have. That is, after all, part of my job.

But I don't apologize for promoting this event. During the last two months, as the plans for the festival have come together, sometimes easily but for the most part with a lot of painstaking detail work by Peake, his co-chair for the festival, Julia Heise, and the many others who have put in long hours of preparation, I have gotten excited.

For one day, the usually sedate if not sleepy Clinch Valley Campus will be full of people - kids in funny hats waving the free balloons, parents trying to keep track of them and figure out which building has which activity, perhaps some out-of-towners gathering courage to try the steep steps up to Zehmer and the library.

There will be color and music and dancing and a chance to buy a baby bird or a letter opener from half way around the world.

Does all that add up to a reason why students "should" come to the festival? Perhaps. Perhaps not. But it would be a shame to miss it.

What's ahead? Is it good?

By Warren H. Wattenbarger
Wesley Foundation Campus Minister

Have you ever wished what you could be sure that what is ahead of you will be essentially good? In other words, you want to know for certain what is ahead and if it will be the best and fulfill your greatest expectations. You desire a clue that that is ahead?

If these are your feelings, then you are in excellent company. One of the greatest souls who wanted to be sure that we are not "going it blind" in our existence on this planet was the Quaker poet, John Greenleaf Whittier. He asked, "Why?" and "How?" and "Where do we go from here?" Evidently, he knew that one of the certainties in life is the factor of uncertainty. So he wrote that he knew not what the future held of marvel or surprise. We say, you are right. You could not, nor can we. We never know what today will bring to us, to those that we love, to those around us. Carefully built plans can be wrecked in a moment. You never know what the future has of marvel or surprise.

Surprises are not all cruel or mocking tricks. Around the corner on the next street of our lives may be a glorious surprise to set our spirits glowing, an experience that will set our hearts aglow and add meaning and richness to our lives.

While we may not know what lies ahead, or "what the future holds of marvel or surprise," we can be, as Whittier was, "assured alone that life and death God's mercy underlies."

We cannot be sure of what today and tomorrow holds for us. But we can be assured that there is One who holds the future, and that God's nature is such that we can trust Him to bring the best out of even the worst.

Today, practice faith. Test this assurance: "We know that in everything God works for good with those who love Him..." Romans 8:28 RSV

Women's exhibit to be at CVC

Little known contributions of Virginia women to the history and traditions of the state are brought to light in a touring exhibit which will be on display at Clinch Valley College April 19 through May 3.

The exhibit contains a variety of documents and artifacts that illustrate the contributions Virginia women have made to history.

Titled "A Share of Honour: Virginia Women 1800-1945," the exhibit is part of the Virginia Women's Cultural History Project initiated by Lynda Johnson Robb. "A Share of Honour" is presented by the Virginia Museum with funding by the National Endowment for the Arts. It has been on display at locations throughout the state and is presented in Wise under the auspices of the Pro-Art Association.

In connection with the display, Virginia Museum lecturer Kym Rice will make a public address at Clinch Valley College April 27 at 5:00 p.m. in the Chapel of All Faiths. She is curator of the Virginia Women's Cultural History Project, which organized "A Share of Honour."

Her presentation is one event in the day-long International Arts Festival which will be held at Clinch Valley College April 27. Other events include entertainment and craft demonstrations representing nations around the world.

Miss Rice, a resident of Washington, D.C., holds a B.A. in art history from Sophie Newcomb College of Tulane University and an M.A. in American Studies from the University of Hawaii. She served as guest curator for exhibits at the Frances Tavern Museum in New York City and at the Library of Congress.

Arts Festival posters need distributing

Posters advertising the International Arts Festival on April 27 need to be distributed throughout the Southwest Virginia area. If you would be willing to take some posters to your home area and see that they get displayed in stores, businesses, malls, etc., please see Julia Heise in Z118 or Anna Breeding in A244.

Application deadline extended

The deadline for applications for the 1985 Summer Program for Undergraduate Virginians and the 1985 Summer Program for Undergraduate Minority Virginians has been extended from April 1 to May 1, 1985. Virginia Polytechnic Institute and State University will host the Summer Program for Undergraduate Minority Virginians and Virginia State University will host the Summer Program for Undergraduate Virginians.

To be eligible for the Summer Programs, a student must be enrolled in the final semester of his or her junior year and must be a domiciliary resident of Virginia.

Materials and applications may be obtained in the Office of the Dean of Students. Please note that the deadline is now May 1, 1985.

Financial aid deadline May 1

Financial Aid forms should be mailed very soon. The Virginia deadline is April 15 and Clinch Valley College's is May 1. These deadlines are for receiving the completed forms. Since processing the application takes 4 to 6 weeks, mailing the application on March 1 will insure your meeting all deadlines.

If you miss the deadlines, you will be considered on a first-come, first-served basis.

O'Donnell to present esquisse on Irish politics on Wednesday, April 24

Clinch Valley College Professor Michael O'Donnell will present "A Northern Irish Esquisse" April 24. An "esquisse" is a sketch, O'Donnell said, and his presentation will provide general background for understanding the current political conflicts in Northern Ireland.

The presentation will be at 4:30 p.m. in the Chapel of All Faiths on the Clinch Valley College campus. It is part of the Faculty Colloquium series, in which students and the general public are invited to hear presentations of, and participate in discussion of studies, research and creative work by Clinch Valley College faculty members.

Galbraith to speak

Economist John Kenneth Galbraith will speak at 10:00 a.m., April 29 in the Chapel of All Faiths.

Galbraith is one of the best known American economists of the last 40 years and we expect a large number of people will want to hear his address.

The speech will be broadcast to Cantrell Hall via closed circuit television to accommodate as many people as possible.

Blocks of seats in the Chapel have been set aside for students, faculty, administrators and staff. Tickets for Chapel seats were issued on a first come, first served basis. The last day to make reservations was April 19.

Galbraith will present the first John F. Kennedy Lecture on the American Economic Condition. This is part of the Chapel Lecture Series, a privately endowed lecture series which brings nationally prominent speakers to the Clinch Valley College campus.

New officers announced

The Sisters of Kappa Psi Iota would like to congratulate their newly elected officers for the Fall semester: Nancy Rasnake, President; Barbara Street, Vice-President; Donna Austin, Treasurer; Robin Phipps, Secretary; Anna-Maria Gill, Chaplain; Marlene Ratliff, Historian; Amy Clark, Pledge Mistress.

Kappa Psi Iota had another successful RUSH, and at this time would like to congratulate our new sisters: Mary Beth Merricks; Judy Rose; and Tammy Kirk. Also, the Sisters would like to thank Amy Smith for accepting the invitation to become our new adviser.

Air Band Contest to be held

The International Club will be sponsoring this semester's Air Band Contest. It will be held on Thursday, May 2. First prize will be $15, second will be $10, and third will be $5. So, get your groups together to compete for the honor of "Best Air Band at CVC." Check next week's paper for more information. We would also like to encourage everyone to attend the International Arts Festival on April 27.

Bookstore can now order records and tapes

CVC Bookstore will now be ordering records and tapes directly from a distributor. Orders will be called in on Monday and received on Wednesday. If you wish to place an order, a $1.00 deposit will be required upon placing your order.

Phi Sigs congratulate Brothers, Little Sister

Phi Sigma Kappa would like to recognize and congratulate its members of the graduating class. They are: Alex Modaber, Kevin McKee, and Eddie Whitaker.

We would also like to congratulate brothers Greg Taylor and Jamie Culbertson, who were both accepted to Virginia Tech to advance their studies.

We would like to welcome Little Sister Associate Lisa Webb to our fraternal organization.

We would like to congratulate Homer Lindsay Lafon for being named representative of the CVC chapter of Phi Sigma Kappa to the colony's executive committee.

Address change deadline May 9

The last date for requesting a change in address for receiving grades for the Spring 1985 Semester is Thursday, May 9, 1985.

Change of address requests must be made in the Registrar's Office.

Sig Sisters congratulate new associates

The sisters of Phi Sigma Kappa would like to congratulate the new associates: Sherry Brooks, Lynn Gilbert, Lisa Webb, Martha Hines, and Kathy Foy. We would like to thank Diana Cooper for taking the time to help the Associates learn more about the Fraternity, Phi Sigma Kappa.

As you all know, the International Arts Festival is coming up on the 27th of this month and the Little Sisters will be having their annual Goldfish Game. We will also be having a booth with home-made candy and soft drinks. Everyone come out to the festival and have a good time!

The present members of Phi Sigma Kappa Little Sisters are: Maria De La Torre, President; Cathy Kalina, Vice-President; Kary Kish, Treasurer; Billie Jean Damron, Secretary; Diana Cooper; Lani Trent; Becky Wells; and Missy Looney.

You're invited to Galbraith reception

Chancellor Smiddy invites students, faculty, staff and their families to a reception with John Kenneth Galbraith Sunday, April 28 at 8:30 p.m. in Cantrell Hall.

Men's tennis team improves overall season record to 3-4

By Betty Farmer

The Men's Tennis Team upped their overall record to 3-4 with two match victories over Berea and Union April 12 and 13.

CVC's number one seed, Tom Baker, led the team to a 6-3 match win over Berea by defeating Darrin Thomas 6-4, 6-3. Rusty Necessary, in the second position, beat Mark Jennings 1-6, 6-4, 6-0. Number three player, D.A. Combs defeated Joe Smith 6-1, 6-1. Greg Lawson won a three set battle over Berea's fourth seed, Kevin Martin 3-6, 6-2, 6-3.

Chris Stidham was defeated by Heikki Niskala 4-6, 0-6 and it was Berea's Mark Beard over Todd Breeding 6-4, 7-5 in the sixth position.

CVC captured two doubles matches. It was Baker and Necessary over Smith and Niskala 6-3, 6-2; and Combs and Lawson over Jennings and Bagnoll 2-6, 7-6, 6-1. Stidham and Breeding lost to Thomas and Martin 6-0, 1-6, 1-6.

Commenting on the win, Daniels said the team as a whole played well that day.

"Everybody was intent on their matches," he said.

On April 13, CVC lost to Transylvania 0-9 at home.

Baker lost to Mark Kyker 1-6, 0-6; Necessary to John Backer 0-6, 2-6; Combs to Chad Kelly 2-6, 2-6; Chris Stidham to Mike Lucas 3-6, 6-7; and Todd Breeding was defeated by David Richards 1-6, 1-6.

In doubles competition,

Baseball team wins 8-7 in 10 innings

By Allan K. Lovelace

A long-awaited victory was earned the hard way by the Clinch Valley College Cavalier baseball team at home on Sunday, April 14, in the second game of a doubleheader against Alice Lloyd.

The Cavs' victory resulted from a "suicide squeeze" play. With the score tied 7-7 in extra innings, Andy Jones put down a bunt that allowed Tim Owens to steal home from third base. The run secured the victory for winning pitcher Tim Owens, with the final score 8-7. The Cavs lost the first game of the doubleheader, with Les Baker and Necessary fell to Kyker and Backer 2-6, 0-6; Combs and Lawson lost to Kelly and Richards 4-6, 1-6; and Stidham and Breeding were defeated by Smith and Lucas 1-6, 3-6.

Daniels said Transylvania was "one of the strongest teams we have to play."

The Cavs captured their second season win over Union at home April 13 defeating the Bulldogs 6-3.

In singles competition, Tom Baker lost to Chris Ensillin 1-6, 0-6; Rusty Necessary beat Keith Love 7-5, 6-4; D.A. Combs defeated Tim Hoskins 6-1, 6-3; Chris Stidham beat Tim Gurren 6-3, 6-1; and Todd Breeding lost to Suji Ogiwara 3-6, 3-6.

In doubles competition, Baker and Necessary lost a three set contest to Ensillin and Ogiwara 3-6, 6-4, 3-6. Combs and Necessary beat Gurren and Hoskins 6-0, 6-2. And, Stidham and Breeding came back to defeat Lowe and Powell 3-6, 6-4, 6-2 after dropping the first set.

Referring to a 9-0 loss to Emory and Henry on April 17, Daniels said, "I expect the team played better than the scores reflect."

Bruce Lowe confers with Tim Owens and Chris Russell in last weekend's doubleheader.

Dick Davis concludes a picture book on getting a practice shot at the CVC Golf course, the Cavs.

Sports Spotlight

Davis: 'You've got to believe...'

By Dick Williams

"You've got to believe you can win," said Dick Davis, and he believes that. In fact, Coach Williams described him as probably the best athlete in the sport that Clinch Valley College has ever had.

Dick has played golf since he was five years old, and he has been playing it for the rest of his life. "I had a dad who was a golfer, and he taught me how to play. I had a dad who was a golfer, and he taught me how to play. I had a dad who was a golfer, and he taught me how to play."

Coach Davis continued to help Dick improve his golf game in college. On Saturday, April 12, Dick played at Hot Springs with the rest of CVC's golf team. He defeated Berea's number one seed, a disappointing loss because he was playing his best until he got help from Gary. He defeated him and in about five minutes, Dick said, he described his performance in the second round of the Hot Springs tournament played on Sunday, April 13. "I had a bad day, but I had a bad day in a tournament."

On Monday, April 14, the golf team played in the Cumberland Spring Invitational, probably the best tournament ever held at CVC, and the most disappointing loss in the year, Dick explained. He finished seventh and his team score was 335. "I'm disappointed. The golf team has been improving the entire year," Dick concluded about his team's progress.
