Only a few adjustments were made in the Student Government Association's proposed budget for the 1985 academic year before that body passed it unanimously.

Intramural Director Charlie Engle returned $150 of the amount the SGA had initially allotted for Intramural activities. Enle said he had made an arrangement with the basketball coaches that would allow Intramurals to use some of the athletic department's basketballs. He said that $150 of the funds recommended to Intramurals could be redistributed for that reason.

Anne Varner representing Student Health told the SGA that their initial offer of $5,000 was not enough to even cover the doctor's fee. That fee is $5,400 for the year. An ion was made and carried to give Varner the $150 Engle had placed back into circulation, but that still did not meet Varner's request.

Looking for funds to give Student Health, members of the SGA began to question the proposed recommendation of $1500 for Cultural Activities. A SGA vice-president Maria Portuondo and Ighland Valley College President Betty Farmer fought to keep the initial $150 intact. But several SGA representatives pointed out that department had made no formal request and that any funds the SGA would give Cultural Activities would be considered a "token amount." After further discussion, Portuondo conceded and made a motion that carried to give $500 from Cultural Activities.

Several organizations participated in a 1985 Annual Club Fair held in Claxton Hall Sept. 11 and 12. Pictured here are Joe Evans, Culierson and John Briskey members of Alpha Delta Chi.

The need to insert some advertisements, and the proposed removal of several unauthorized pictures have delayed the distribution of the 1984-85 Yearbook.

Dean of Students Mike O'Donnell stated that the student body involved in the distribution of the Yearbook.

Former Chairman of the Publications Committee, Professor Richard Peake, stated that these ads were included in this year's budget after the distribution of the book. Catherine Mahony, former faculty advisor, stated that these ads were printed with the permission of all businesses involved. Mahony said that last year a student from year's budget had submitted pictures for publication in the Yearbook without getting proper permission. Mahony stated that neither the SGA nor the Pictures submitted were unauthorized. After the error was discovered, Mahony and Peake conducted discussion the pictures included in this year's budget. They agreed that the Yearbook should be distributed without these pictures included. The pictures included in this year's budget would be removed and the Yearbook sent to the publisher.

Catherine Mahony sent a memo to the chancellor and Mike O'Donnell urging the exclusion of the pages in question. Tammy Kingsry replied that she had trouble with a lot of red tape, but that the pictures had been redacted more than once.

Kingsry said that her intention was to show the college as coming of age and to provide CVC with more recognition as a part of the community. Kingsry assured the student body that the Yearbook will be "worth the wait." As soon as the Yearbook is available, a notice will be placed in the Cavalier.
Dorm policies working for some, not for others

OPINION

It is a difficult question to answer: are the dorm policies at Clingey Valley College working for some, but not for others? This question is applicable to those who have attended Clingey Valley College for more than a year. The policies are designed to help students maintain a safe and healthy environment. However, some students are not satisfied with the policies, while others are.

For those students who have been satisfied with the policies, they have found that the policies have helped them maintain a safe and healthy environment. They appreciate the policies for the following reasons:

1. The policies have helped them maintain a safe environment. This is important for students who live in dormitories. The policies help to prevent unauthorized visitors from entering the dormitories, which can help to prevent theft and other criminal activities.

2. The policies have helped them maintain a healthy environment. This is important for students who live in dormitories. The policies help to prevent smoking and other behaviors that can harm the health of others.

For those students who have not been satisfied with the policies, they have found that the policies have not helped them maintain a safe and healthy environment. These students have found the following problems with the policies:

1. The policies are too strict. This means that students are not allowed to do certain things that they would like to do. For example, some students have found that the policies are too strict about the hours that they can leave their dormitories.

2. The policies are not enforced. This means that students are not being held accountable for their actions. For example, some students have found that the policies are not being enforced when students are violating the policies.

In conclusion, it is difficult to say whether the policies are working for some, but not for others. However, it is clear that the policies are not working for all students. It is important for the college to listen to the concerns of the students and to make changes to the policies as necessary.
McPherson recommended of District Fair Pageant and SVEA honors

By Megan Cline
Clinch Valley College is becoming well known for having some of the prettiest and most talented girls in the state of Virginia. Kimberly Johnson, the reigning Miss Virginia, 1985, was a CVC student, not to mention several former Miss limestone Pine winners from CVC.

Mary Beth McPherson, an 18 year old sophomore, was chosen the winner of the Mrs. Virginia/Kentucky District Fair Pageant on August 14.

But McPherson, like many CVC women, also has the winning combination of beauty and brains. She is the first freshman to be selected to the executive committee of Student Veterans Educational Association (SVEA).

She traveled to Williamsburg where she competed against six or seven other students and came out a winner! She says that the SQA is an organization for college students. Education that keeps their informed with newsletters and information about scholarships and other topics that affect teachers and other educators. McPherson is the vice-president of the SQA at Clinch Valley College.

In January, Mary Beth will travel to Charleston to compete in the Miss Virginia State Fair Pageant where she will represent the Limestone-Prince district.

McPherson said she enjoys horseback riding, cross-country skiing, and swimming. She says that in the future she hopes to acquire a teaching position in the Wise School System, get married and have a family.

Budget recommended

Earlier in the meeting, Sandy Ransome, Editor of the Collegian, informed the group that the 15 years ago, the Student Activities Commission was created. The commission was also called the Student Activities Commission and has not changed since then. The commission has been allotted the fact that the SQA recommendation of $9,750 plus the printing costs. The SOA did not, however, recommend that the Outpost receive more money. The SOA did not, however, recommend that the Outpost receive more money.

The SQA will order their $7,500 budget to the Student Activities Commission. The SOA recommended that the amount be $7,500 but with the printing costs.

The chairman of that committee, Clayton Wills, said the 15,000 the SQA has been given in segment was a portion of the total projected revenue the college expects to raise from the administration of the Student Activity Fee. Each of the $15,000 is given to the SQA. The other $18,750 goes toward operating and paying bonds on the Student Union Building.

The total projected amount the college expects to raise from activity fees, based upon enrollment, is $18,750. Of that amount, $17,000 is given to the SQA for distribution and $15,000 goes toward operating and paying bonds on the Student Union Building.

Wills said that taking $10 from each $120 is a pre-determined, fixed amount. That figure will not change during the expected twenty years it will take to pay for the Student Union Building. Should activity fees be increased, the SOA would receive the increased amount for distribution. For instance, if they were raised to $130, the SOA would be allotted $60 of each fee.

The most stunning idea during the special program last year was the visit to the school's one of the nation's largest conceptual, democracy, of general education. Mary Beth McPherson, winning a grant, is taking a look at the notion to a greater extent. "America is not as homogenized as we are told," Kilgore said. "People in different regions have different political attitudes. As we move toward a monogasric view of this country, we can develop practical ideas as to make what I've learned from this experience, is that we're not stuck behind the starting gate. Every opportunity that is available to us is to be seized. We can be last and more satisfied with our situation, whether we're at

Students will tell tall tales

Students will tell Appalachian tall tales, play mountain music, and sell refreshments at the 17th annual Appalachian Days celebration September 29, in Dr. Dewey's Appalachian Days at the University of Virginia's Clinch Valley College.

Students will participate in two sessions of Appalachian Tall Telling from 2:15 p.m. and from 6:45 p.m. on September 30 in the Zahn Auditorium on the Clinch Valley College campus. Students attending these festivities will be highlighted by the performances of Don McConnell and his "Old Time" bunch and Tommy and his three singer and teller Sharpie Rackley.

Valle＇ College student Rob Mercure is scheduled to play mountain music at 6 p.m. during the September 22 Festival. Student organizations will

Inexperienced tennis squad faces difficult schedule this season

By Mike Wriglit

Although faced with a very difficult schedule and a relatively inexperienced team, Coach Van-Daniel hopes his men's tennis squad can improve on a 4-6 worksheet of a year ago.

As was the case last year, the 1986 squad will still be featured as a basically young team. But because of the experience received last year, the team, taken as a whole, should see marked improvement, Daniel said.

Coach Daniel, however, feels that on an individual basis his team is somewhat inexperienced. According to Daniel, individual players "haven't had the opportunity to play against top players." He is quick to mention, however, that this problem will be solved the first match.

Asked what would make this season a success, Coach Daniel said he would be "pleased" and "satisfied" if everyone played up to their potential and enthusiasm remained high.

Daniel has indeed set high goals for this year's team. He does, however, realize his team will win some matches and lose others. "The number of matches we win," he said, "will depend on the amount of improvement from now until late March. Although experience is in short supply, this year's team will feature four seasonal performers: Tom Baker, Rusty Necessary, Greg Lawson and Todd Breeding.

In addition to the four returning lettermen this year's team will feature three promising freshmen: Roger Whited, Andy Matney and David Still. Matney captured the Region D singles championship earlier this year.

The actual season for the men's tennis team doesn't get underway till the next semester (spring 1988). The team, however, is currently engaging in preseason practice sessions. Anyone interested in trying out for the team should contact Coach Daniel or any team member.

Intramural games scheduled

All prospective intramural players must be students of Clinch Valley College. Non-students are not allowed to participate in the intramural program. If an ineligible player plays in a game the team will forfeit that game. All players' names must be listed on the team roster. Any changes in the roster must be made at least one week before the player is to be added to the team. Members of college teams are also ineligible for intramural play in the sport they are participating in. "Red Shirt" players are ineligible also. Alumni players must obtain an alumni activity card.

Cheerleaders will hold tryouts

Anyone interested in trying out for cheerleader should see Martha McDaniel in the Cashiers Office immediately. Five girls have already been chosen. Last spring Lynn Gilbert, Stephanie Siemp, Toni Foster, Amy Hodges, and Betty Farmer were selected as part of the 1985-86 squad. These girls went to camp at Virginia Tech this summer and have brought back great new material! All new cheers will be taught during tryouts.

Tom Baker and Rusty Necessary are gearing up for their third season as doubles partners. Here, Necessary looks on as Baker hits a winning backhand volley.
