SGA wants vote for color change

By Pamela Norman
HC Co-Assistant Editor

Do you know what CVC's school colors are? It was surprising to find that when this question was asked of several students (including seniors), there were at least six different responses. They were all wrong! These responses ranged from maroon and silver to burgundy and grey.

For those who would like to know, the official colors are red and grey, according to Professor Edward Henson. Henson, who was the one to choose these colors, said that red and grey were the original colors of the University of Virginia before they had established a football team around 1886.

But those original colors would not be known by looking around the campus at all of the shirts and sweats that appear in colors such as green, navy, aqua, and even hot pink. The SGA hopes to have all of this confusion cleared up by adopting new school colors and establish them with the student body.

The SGA will be holding a meeting open to all students to discuss the colors and what should be done about changing them. However, if the colors are voted on for a change it would not go into effect until the upcoming Fall semester. This delay is due to the varied costs involved. One of the main concerns of the SGA is that the athletic department would lose money severely over the

CVC Classroom faces problems

By Roy Russell
HC Staff Writer

It is early in the semester and already the new concept of the "Electronic Classroom" is facing numerous problems. The problems range from a high drop-out rate just after the first class to trouble with communication between Clinch Valley College and the University of Virginia.

It seems that the biggest problem facing this course is the fact that too many people are bailing out prematurely. Bill Conley, CVC Management Professor stated, "People don't understand the concept of the classroom, and any time something is not understood there will be a certain degree of fear present."

Conley feels that it is fear that is causing the early drop-outs and that once this method of teaching is accepted there will be more interest shown in the class.

Some CVC students, interviewed by the Highland Cavalier, said that the class consisted of curriculum unknown to them and that the class seemed as though it would present a problem to their grade point average.

On top of everything else, the future of the Electronic Classroom is in doubt.

SGA reviews upcoming events

By Kathy Kelley
HC Co-Assistant Editor

The theme and colors for the Spring Formal were voted on by the SGA on February 2, 1987, in Smiddy Hall. Chancellor Jerry Cardwell also spoke to the SGA members about changing the school colors, as well as issues affecting the freshmen class and the whole student body.

The SGA voted for "Love Potion #9" as the theme for the Spring Formal and the colors of black, red, and silver for the decorations. The members also considered making it a "black tie affair."

Greg Lawson informed the SGA that the confusion over the school colors had left many students and professors wanting to change the school color. He said that the committee would research the history of the colors and then have a referendum of students on the choices. The changes would go in effect during the fall semester.

Chancellor Cardwell told the members that if the student body wanted the changes, the college would be willing to pay for the changes that would have to be made in uniforms and repainting the gym.

Submitter of letter feels Pro-Art’s return not received warmly by CV students

Dear Highland Cavalier Editor,

Pro-Art has returned to CVC, thank goodness, but are we making them very welcome? The number of them is hard to offer the college administration proper number of notice to the student—so they deserve a little respect, right?

Last Tuesday, the cast of the musical Joseph and the Amazing Technicolor Dreamcoat performed in the college student center. A reporter for the local newspaper, the Telegraph, interviewed the cast, expressing disappointment that they could not enjoy the performance due to the noise of some of the students. I would imagine that it must have been rather uncomfortable for the performers.

Pro-Art is going out of their way to entertain CVC students, why can’t they be more considerate? Respect for Pro-Art, I would say, is necessary and our responsibility. If we like it, then we must show that we do; if we don’t, we should not have been rude to the performers.

The students who disrupted the performance, I hope, have realized that it is not respectful of others to disturb others who are trying to enjoy the performance. Let’s respect each other.

Letters to the Editor

Expecting the best results in achievement

Dear Highland Cavalier Editor,

In the previous issue of the Highland Cavalier, I expressed my hope that you will have studied during the winter break, so that you will have all of the joys you had during the semester.

When the semester is over, I hope that you will have studied and worked in such a way that you will take pride in looking back over this semester and see the accomplishments and achievements that you have made. You are going to achieve what you make it, and when you work for it and not your peers, the likelihood is that you will be going to achieve what you desire.

What the semester is over, I hope that you will have studied and worked in such a way that you will take pride in looking back over this semester and see the accomplishments and achievements that you have made. You are going to achieve what you make it, and when you work for it and not your peers, the likelihood is that you will be going to achieve what you desire.

Honor’s House based on guidelines of mutual respect

Dear Highland Cavalier Editor,

I have to confess to being disappointed that I could not attend the Spring Formal. The Spring formal was held on Saturday, April 17, 1987, and I was not able to attend due to prior commitments.

I would like to express my apologies to all those students who were able to attend the Spring Formal. I understand that it was a wonderful event and I wish I could have been there.

However, I do not wish to make excuses for my absence. I have been working very hard this semester and I have not had much time to relax.

I hope that you will all have a wonderful time at the Spring Formal. I wish you all well.

Sincerely,

Mr. and Mrs. Sheldon

color change. Chancellor Cardwell noted that if the colors were to change it would motivate students and faculty.

So, when this is voted upon,
Chancellor Cardwell announced, "We will have a centralized location in solving any problems or questions they have. In reference to the facility used, committee member Ron Heise said, "Some thought has been given to using the apartment building on faculty row."

UVa and CVC's search for new Chancellor in process

University of Virginia President Robert O'Neil and acting Chancellor Jerry Conley recommended the Board of Visitors that the search for chancellor begin now. This angered expressions of opinion from the faculty and staff and the timing of succession on his visit to CVC on January 12. O'Neil said, "While there was some support for deferring the search, preference now seems to be proceed as rapidly as possible in recommending to you a successor to Mr. Mason."

The new Chancellor will fill the position held vacant by Chancellor W. Edmund Mason. Mason resigned in December after the CVC Board of Visitors, including co-chairperson of the Assembly Mission Committee and how the close ties between the University and the College have been strengthened, that grievances have been resolved that last two weeks he has spent time with the General Assembly in Richmond. He reported that the assembly members are in support of the college. He also stated that the college is healthy and strong and that the college is maintaining a healthy and strong relationship with the University of Virginia, the Clinic Valley College of the University of Virginia, and the Cooperative schools supported liberal arts college.

Dr. Bill Lee, Professor of Business Administration, stated, "I don't see how anyone can make an educated judgment about a class based on only one meeting. I'm sorry that they dropped out, but that is a decision they have made."

Conley suggested another possible reason for the high drop-out rate by stating that the class presents a case study curriculum and that CVC does not possess the same teaching faculty as the case study curriculum and that CVC does not possess the same teaching faculty as the class. Students have expressed an interest in orange and blue colors, while others have suggested red and gray. Lawson stated that "both coaches Hall and Kimble want orange and gray, because blue is our consensus school color." Overall, student and faculty input is needed in the decision over the color change. Lawson stated "Student participation at the meeting will decide what colors will be voted upon. If you cannot attend the meeting and wish to express an opinion, suggest your ideas to either Amy Hodges, Tom Foster, or myself before the Monday meeting."

The SGA meeting will be held Monday at 4:30 in Smiddy Hall in room 100A, and everyone is encouraged to attend.

Anonymous gift to CVC will establish new scholarships

A $100,000 anonymous gift to Clinch Valley College will establish a scholarship fund in memory of the late Colgate W. Darden, Jr., newly retired professor of English at the University of Virginia. The anonymous donor, who is not revealed by Colgate Darden, said that the scholarship fund should be "fitting that such a gift honor Colgate Darden," said O’Neal. "Mr. Darden contributed a lifetime gift of his time and knowledge to the branch of UVA in Wise which he helped establish." The college administration raised the scholarship to four-year status last year. At $100,000, the anonymous donor's gift is the largest in the history of CVC, and will be a major addition to the college's financial resources. The gift will also help support the college's long-range plan to become a four-year college.

CVC College to receive generous donation

CVC College has received a notice that two anonymous donors have made a large gift to the college. The anonymous donation was received by the college’s president, Dr. Kenneth Cardwell, at a meeting this week. The college officials were delighted to learn that needy students will receive financial aid as a result of the gift. Dr. Cardwell said that the anonymous donor has pledged to add more money to the scholarship fund as other donors can afford.

Baptist Student Union Meeting

The Baptist Student Union has announced that they will establish a new scholarship fund. The scholarship fund will be used to help students with education. The Clinch Valley College Lady Cavaliers finished their 1986-87 season on Jan. 29. The Lady Cavaliers wound up the year with a 2-14 record.

The two victories came on forfeits by Warren Wilson College midway through the season. In the Clinch Valley College 1986-87 season on Jan. 29. The two victories came on forfeits by Warren Wilson College midway through the season.

Coach Debby Kaminske was more than pleased with the team's performance on the year. "I could never be more proud of a group of young women than I am of this one," she stated. "To finish the season, these girls had to show a true love for the game of basketball, and they did."

Of the 10 players which started the season, only seven remained for the final game.

The players were Greta Trivett, Marla Popp, Tish Kilgore, Amy Marshall, Teresa Mathias, Sheila Sargent and Gwen James. Amy Golf also finished the season as the team's manager.

The Highland Cavalier staff would like to thank the Lady Cavaliers for the hard work and determination they showed in finishing the season.

Ball team participates in Adopt-a-Child

The Clinch Valley College baseball team participated in an adopt-a-child program earlier this month. The program provided toys and clothing for 26 needy children in the Wise County area. "Coach Spenola and the young men are to be commended," said CVC Interim Chancellor Jerry Cardwell. He stated the team showed "generosity and concern for others."

"This is in the finest tradition of CVC and a credit to our College," stated Cardwell.

CVC coach Ray Spenola acquired a list of names from Social Services with the names and ages of needy youngsters in the area. He then gave each player the name and age of one of the youngsters, and in the afternoon each player went out and bought a gift specifically suited for the child he was given.
