

CVC: A History

*By Kimberly Lee
HC Staff Writer*

What is the final installment of a three part series detailing the history of CVC?

In 1976, construction approved by the Governor, which gave Clinch Valley College the permission to lease property to Parsons Coal Company for a coal mine. The cost (not paid for) $50,000 in part from the company plus the customary royalties which were to go toward the building of a Student Union building. Yet due to that same year an adjacent mining operation not associated with the college put off a blast which threw rock and debris into Greer Gymnasium. The incident damaged the electric control organ (the pool and made holes in the ceiling of the gym) some as large as two feet in diameter; with an estimated $100,000 in damages incurred.

Also that same year a 1976 model twin engine plane appeared at $90,000 was donated to the college by the Horn family. The plane was sold that same year to Richard White of Alabama for $58,500. 1976 was also marked by the fact that Jennifer Jones became the first female prosecutor for the CVC honor court. The next year the second university on campus came into being when Tri-Valley College was founded although it was only a half-time local institution.

1978 brought with it the ground breaking for the new Student Union Building, a newly approved Performing Arts Center, and the donation of a limestone by Appalachian Coal from the Company. Chancellor Smiddy was considered running for a congressional seat that year but decided against it. The 1977-78 budget for CVC was $1,400,000.

In 1981 the first impeachment charges were brought against a CVC SGA president Ray Bess. The person the charges were brought against denied each charge in a public meeting. After the meeting, the charges were declared null and void.

During this period everyone was anxiously awaiting the opening of the new Student Union Building and the Chapel of All Faiths. The day came on October 27, 1982, when Governor Robb dedicated both the Chapel and Central Hall. It was a grand affair in front of Duke and O'By Central Hall that same year. The cafeteria, bookstore, and post office all moved from Zehner to Central Hall and the next year beer could be purchased in the new bar of the building.

In 1984 a nationwide Chancellor search was conducted to replace the retiring Chancellor Smiddy who had held the title for 16 years and had been here since the inception of the college. Also that same year a $40,000 lawsuit was filed against UVA by John Sabo for injuries he suffered in a fall on the stairs between Central Hall and the Zehner building.

Local youth arrested at McCraray

*By Kimberly Lee
HC Editor*

Violence has again erupted on the Clinch Valley College campus. Two adults and one juvenile, all non-students were arrested Sunday night, March 15, following a fight in McCraray Hall dormitory, according to Frank Colyer, CVC Chief of Police.

According to Robert Ingle, McCraray Hall Dorm Manager, the three subjects were on the women's wing of McCraray earlier in the evening. Words were exchanged between the three young men and residents of the men's wing of McCraray. The subjects then proceeded to the men's wing and according to Colyer, attempted to "take on everyone they saw."

According to Ingle, two of the students, R.J. Meade and Pat Dugan informed him of the fight and he promptly called the Wise County Sheriff's Department. CVC Security was unavailable to respond immediately due to the fact that they were answering a previous call about a disturbance at Randolph Hall.

Students Pat Dugan, David Shindle, and R.J. Meade were treated for their injuries at Wise Appalachian Regional Hospital.

Arrested and charged with assault and battery were Robert Russell, 19, and William Winebarger, 19, both of Wise. A 17-year-old male was also arrested and charged with trespassing. All were notified not to return to CVC.

CVC calendar changed next year

*By Pamela Norman
HC Co-Assistant Editor*

The planned change in the college calendar for the upcoming semester the general education requirements were both major topics of discussion at the faculty meeting held last Thursday.

The proposed extension was approved for next Spring, adding one more week onto the semester. This would bring the total amount of fifteen weeks in the Spring semester, as opposed to the fourteen scheduled in the Fall. Several of the faculty members expressed an emphasis on the need for the extension, because a shortened semester makes their job of teaching very difficult. Some complained that they could not cover their curriculum accurately in only fourteen weeks. This extension was also proposed because of the need to parallel our schedule with that of the University of Virginia's, to avoid problems with electronic classroom and the Student Exchange Program.

The general education requirements were voted upon, and approved with some debated over the wording of

Search for Chancellor organized

*By Chris Burnette
HC Staff Writer*

The search for a Chancellor is on at Clinch Valley College under the direction of Robert O'Neil and a committee of talented members, committed to the well being and future of Clinch Valley College.

Those members of the committee are: Van Daniel, Rex Baird, Glenn Blackburn, Cathy Mahony, Joseph Scolnick, all CVC professors, David Cohen of the History Dept. at John Hopkins University; two CVC students, Jeffrey Brickett and Toni Foster; a non-academic staff member at CVC, Frank Colyer, campus police chief, and three others not employed by CVC - Kenneth Asbury of Wise, Jean Long of St. Paul, and Micheal Quillen of Gate City.

The final member of the committee is Raymond M. Haas, UVA, Vice President for Administration, a man described by O'Neil as experienced in planning and administration.

O'Neil visited CVC and offered suggestions on some of the kinds of qualifications he hoped the committee would "bear in mind."

Upon considering a candidate, O'Neil suggested that the candidate would need an awareness of the college's role in the university and state

Violence should be stopped at McCraray before too late

By Kimberly Lee
HC Editor

Clinch Valley's most recent outbreak of violence has given rise to many questions concerning student safety. Many wonder exactly how safe it is for a student to reside in the dormitories of CVC. Apparently residing in McCraray Hall is not very safe if you take this latest act of violence into consideration.

It appears that the problem of violence not only concerns CVC, but should also concern the town of Wise. Recent outbreaks of violence have involved what many students refer to as "Townies," local town people who do not attend the college. Also many of these violent outbreaks seem to center around McCraray Hall Dormitory.

The past three years have seen outbreaks of violence that would have thought to be seen on much larger campuses but not on the campus of CVC. A young woman was raped in her McCraray Hall dorm room, a racial riot erupted and centered around McCraray Hall, a male resident of McCraray Hall was attacked and beaten, and, most recently, a fight erupted in McCraray Hall. All these outbreaks centered on residents of McCraray Hall and all involved the so-called "Townies."

Therefore, it would seem that something new needs to be done concerning this problem, because past efforts have not been successful. Following the rape of the McCraray Hall resident, open dorm hours were lessened, but this did not seem to help solve the problem and subsequently, the hours were increased at the request of the dorm residents.

However, because of recent events it appears to be necessary for a total change from the present situation. The formation of a totally freshman dorm, McCraray Hall, would appear to be in order. As a completely freshman dorm, McCraray Hall could be used to foster skills of development that are necessary for successful completion of a college education. Closely monitored, McCraray Hall could eventually provide a nice, quite atmosphere in which to live and study. At its present situation, McCraray Hall is simply an uncontrolled madhouse that is a danger to its residents' safety.

It is essentially up to the administration to decide what should be done with McCraray Hall. Hopefully, something will be done before it is too late to protect the residents from possibly fatal harm.

Representative feels SGA ignores students

To the Editor:

As a representative of the Student Government Association, and a founder of the Student Action Lobby Group, I feel it is necessary to inform the students on the actions of the SGA.

According to amended by-laws of organizational procedure, when a group or organization presents a budget request, the SGA is to take the request, discuss it, and vote on it the following week. In an SGA meeting on February 28, 1987, this procedure was not followed. As a result, the members of Alpha Delta Chi Little Sisters organization was unjustly awarded $150.

Secondly, the SGA is not taking a position on any of the critical issues which affect the entire student body, such as the meal plan, the student activity fee, and the ever mysterious bond issue. It is a shame that at two meetings, the major topic of discussion was on the theme for the Spring Formal. And, the issue over the school colors should be secondary to the issues of a tuition increase, and the condensing of the school calendar by two weeks.

Finally, where is the student's voice? It should be within your SGA president. This person should exemplify the purpose of a liberal arts institution. The students of this institution should have the power to influence decisions which affect the student body. This should be the role of the SGA. The students should not play second fiddle. Why should we be followers and doers? We should be thinkers and leaders. Remember, there would be no college without students, therefore, we must stand and fight for what we believe in. The will of the masses, under good leadership, can make a difference.

Take a stand for what you believe. If you don't, no one will ever know, or care.

Heckling at the Guthrie concert only banter

To the Editor:

I wish to take this opportunity to inform our friend who wrote the letter about the Guthrie concert, Mr. Alan Lovelace, that there are numerous dictionaries and thesauruses on campus that he has access to. I would strongly recommend he use them to find the definition of, and synonyms for, the word

"heckle."

Once he learns the definition and synonyms of "heckle," he will realize that there was no heckling at the Arlo Guthrie concert. For those who have either attended one or more of Arlo's concerts or have met Arlo in person, it is easy to learn that he thrives on such banter. Also, he usually encourages it. How do you think he gets his anecdotes? He takes all that banter and bickering in perfect stride because it is his stride.

During the four years I was in the U.S. Navy, I had the opportunity to see four of Arlo's concerts. I also had the rare opportunity to meet and talk to Arlo when he came to Norfolk. What people see on stage is not an act, it is the true Arlo Guthrie. He enjoys what he does, including the insults.

Also, this was one of Arlo's milder concerts. Therefore, Mr. Lovelace, as my grandmother used to say, "If you can't stand the heat, son, stay the #@%* out of the kitchen!"

Sincerely,
K. Darrell Wallace, Jr.

Food Bank thanks students who contributed

To the CVC Community:

On behalf of the Board of Directors of the Food Bank of Wise County, I would like to offer a big THANK YOU to all the members of the CVC community who have made a special effort to feed the hungry in Wise County. Our Thanksgiving Drive was a success, and many of you contributed by bringing items to various stations around campus.

Special thanks goes to: Rev. Jim Collie, for creating imaginative flyers for distribution around campus, and for arranging delivery of goods that were left at the BSU; the CVC Baseball Team and ADX, who initiated their own campaign on behalf of the hungry, delivering several boxes of goods to the Food Bank; and Sandy Sturgill, who is volunteering her talents as bookkeeper for the Food Bank.

Your generosity has made a difference - and can continue to make a difference - in our world.

Sincerely,
Elaine E. Sheldon

SGA meeting finalizes dance and approves sorority

By Kathy Kelley
HC Co-Assistant Editor

Final arrangements for the Spring Formal have already been made, according to SGA President Rusty Necessary.

In the March 16 meeting in SH 100, Necessary informed the members "We're getting ready to order decorations...and everything will be here on time."

The glasses decided upon by the members for this year's dance are nine-ounce champagne glasses.

In the meeting on March 2, the SGA accepted the constitution for a new sorority under the Pi Kappa Phi fraternity.

Bob Sloan and John Stith presented the constitution for the sorority and emphasized the sisters would be given national status in two or three years.

The constitution was approved by the SGA under the conditions that in the Fall Semester, the sorority will write their own constitution. Then, they will become independent of the fraternity.

Financially, the sorority will be their own organization. Eventually, no more than 30 women will be in the sorority at one time.

Pro-art presents Broadway hit: Man of La Mancha

An outstanding production of the award-winning Broadway hit Man of La Mancha is to be presented in Wise on March 31.

The Virginia Opera Association program is sponsored locally by Pro-Art Association and co-sponsored by the C. Bascom Slomp Foundation. The production will be held at J.J. Kelly High School Auditorium with curtain at 7:30 p.m.

Based on Miguel de Cervantes' immortal novel Don Quixote, this musical is a play-within-a-play that takes place in a dungeon in Seville in the year 1597. It is the story of the eccentric and idealistic would-be knight who sets forth with noble illusions to right the wrongs of the world.

The theme of Man of La Mancha, that what matters most is not the winning of the battle but the righteousness of the effort, has captured the imagination of American musical theatre audiences since its original presentation in 1965.

As one of America's most beloved musicals, Man of La

Mancha continues to attract standing-room-only audiences not only in the United States but in Europe, Israel, Mexico and Japan. Its popularity is linked to one of the most moving signature songs in all musical theatre, "The Impossible Dream."

Operatic baritone Braxton J. Peters will appear in the role of the noble Don Quixote in this Virginia Opera production. He has performed with the Sante Fe Opera, Washington Civic Opera, Hartford Opera, Annapolis Opera, and Baltimore Opera. His repertoire includes La Boheme, Hansel and Gretel, Carmen, La Boheme, and a range of other well-known opera selections.

Kristen Hurst-Hyde will sing the mezzo-soprano role of Aldonza, the fiery charmer who is transformed by Quixote's vision into the fair Dulcinea. She has portrayed Aldonza more than 100 times in six different productions of Man of La Mancha.

The Virginia Opera production of Man of La Mancha, on tour through the state, features sets and costumes from the national touring production. It is a 70-member company, including musicians, artists and technicians.

For ticket information or assistance, call 328-2783. Ticket prices are $6 for adults, $5 for senior citizens, and $3 for students.

This program is made possible by a grant from the Virginia Commission for the Arts in partnership with the National Endowment for the Arts.

Atlanta paralegal training center to offer scholarship

According to the Federal Bureau of Labor Statistics, the paralegal profession will be the fastest growing occupation in the U.S. over the next ten years with a 98 percent growth rate. To help meet this increasing demand for lawyer's assistants, The National Center for Paralegal Training in Atlanta has announced a new scholarship program that will provide more than $10,000 in student assistance.

NCPT will award one full (tuition/books/fees) scholarship, worth over $3,000, and seven $1,000 scholarships. Each individual applying for a National Center scholarship will be asked to write a paper on one of the following four topics:

- 1) Should workers have to submit to drug testing programs as a condition of retaining their jobs?
- 2) Should there be a literacy and/or educational requirement for someone to be allowed to sit for jury duty?
- 3) What effect is the paralegal movement having on the economic structure of the American legal community?

4) When is community service a good alternative to prison, if ever?

Papers should be less than 2000 words in length, and must be postmarked no later than April 24, 1987. Winners will be announced May 15, 1987. The winners will be selected by a special committee of The National Center's Advisory Board.

It is not necessary for an individual to have applied to The National Center prior to submitting their entry to compete for one of its scholarship awards. However, all interested students must write or call NCPT to obtain an official scholarship application form that must be submitted along with their entry. The form may be obtained by calling NCPT at (outside Georgia) 1-800-223-2818 or (in Georgia) 404-266-1060, or by writing to The National Center for Paralegal Training, 3414 Peachtree Road, Suite 528, Atlanta, Georgia, 30326.

The National Center for Paralegal Training is one of the first and largest schools for graduate level paralegal training. Through its main campus in Atlanta and its role as consultant to university programs in New York, Chicago and San Diego, NCPT has trained over 18,000 paralegals. Known as the government system, and an awareness of the college's role in the community.

"Harvard of paralegal coveted approval of the schools," it also has the American Bar Association.

He urged the committee to consider a special recognition of the college in a community such as Wise as a primary qualification for the post. That is why the search is being conducted here, rather than in Charlottesville.

He also stressed the importance of recommending persons who would be comfortable in such a community, and would value the special contributions this college makes to Southwest Virginia.

After his talk, O'Neil departed for Charlottesville and left the committee in the hands of the chairman, Professor Van Daniel.

The Advisory committee will have complete freedom, time and budget to conduct a national search for the candidates.

O'Neil did not set a deadline for the selection, but urged the committee to work as rapidly as possible.

The final appointment will be made by the Board of Visitors upon O'Neil's recommendation to a special committee of the board which will be designated by the rector at the next meeting, later this month.

With that board committee, he would hope to be able to interview several candidates before making a final recommendation.

CVC graduate waits for "break"

By Rod Mullins
HC Staff Writer

It's just another day of work at WNVA for Ben Mays.

As he patiently waits for a commercial to end, Mays looks up at the Seth-Thomas clock hanging from the ceiling and knows that it is about time to pack up and make way for the announcer coming on at 3 p.m. So what is so special about Ben Mays and his work as an on-the-air announcer at WNVA? Simple. Ben Mays is a graduate of Clinch Valley College's Performing Arts Department and he has to settle for a job different than what his college degree is good for...acting.

Perhaps you recognize the names of some of the Highland Players productions: "See How They Run," "Loot" and "Entertaining Mr. Sloane." Mays was in these productions as well as some others at CVC. But Mays is still waiting for his big break into serious acting, a career that he hopes will be enjoyable and profitable.

Mays graduated from Castlewood High School in 1981 and entered CVC in the fall of that same year wanting to major in Performing Arts. Instead of getting a rosy picture about acting from Professor Charles Lewis, head of the Theatre Department, he was instead treated to a very depressing and realistic look and discussion about the real acting world. "Lewis discouraged me from it, but he did give advice and I ignored it. Not knocking him, he gives good advice but I didn't listen to him," Mays said. However, Mays' wife, Kaye, believed that Lewis' advice to Ben was "helpful" and that Lewis did "give Ben advice" on things concerning acting.

By August of 1982, Mays found himself involved with a medium different than that of acting. He began work at WNVA Radio in Wise as a part-time announcer. Now almost five years later, he is a full-time announcer working the midday shift at WNVA, but still waiting on that big break into acting.

Mays joked during his interview that he wasn't serious about acting in the least. He also found this newspaper article on him out of the ordinary. But in his expressions, Mays was doing what an actor does best...hamming it up for the press.

But perhaps there is light at the end of the acting tunnel for Mays. Recently, he tried out for an internship at the Barter Theatre in Abingdon, and he was asked by Appalshop Productions from Whitesburg, Ky., to try out for a motion picture called "Kinfolk." They (Appalshop) were interested, but didn't have the funds for the project and so they are now going to try a radio version to gain support for the picture.

So until the big break comes for Ben Mays, he continues to work for WNVA, balance a marriage, and play in a band. He takes pride in playing for the band "Major Change" as a lead guitarist. But before his current stint as guitarist for "Major Change" came about, he had his own band, a group of CVC students known as "Sister Sin and the Nasty Habits." Mays noted he enjoyed being in "Sister Sin" and commented that it was a really great group.

What is Mays' hopes in the future? He, of course, hopes to be acting. Although he says he is not waiting for his big break, Mays is still hoping for that event that will make him a star. Until then, he waits for a phone call, a letter, or a visit from a director that will spell good news for Mays, his wife and child.

Attention: CVC Alumni offers student scholarship

Juniors and seniors currently at Clinch Valley College are invited to compete in a new essay contest sponsored by the Clinch Valley College Alumni Association.

The essay topic is:

"Attending Clinch Valley College: The Advantages of a Liberal Arts Degree." The winner, if a junior will receive a $500 scholarship which can only be used toward expenses at CVC. If a senior, the winner will receive $500 in cash.

Essays should be from 700-1000 words. In addition to composition skills, the judges will consider originality and creativity. (Selection of the winners will be at the discretion of the judges.)

Each paper entered in the contest must have a cover sheet that indicates the name of the participant and his/her year at CVC. Essays should be typewritten or neatly handwritten.

Participants should submit their papers to the CVC Alumni Office, College Avenue, Wise, Va. 24293, no later than March 31, 1987.

For more information, call 328-2431, extension 246.

HISTORY

1985 was the year that Edmund W. Moomaw became the second Chancellor in the history of Clinch Valley College. Moomaw was the result of the search conducted the year before and was received by nearly everyone as the perfect administrator to satisfy the needs of the college. The Spring of that year also brought with it the opening of the student apartments, now known as the Honors House.

In 1986 Jerry Cardwell became the Academic Dean of CVC replacing Emmett Low who had recently stepped down. The Moomaw administration continued to stir controversy and internal turmoil until things came to a head in December and Moomaw resigned his post. Dean Jerry Cardwell stepped into the office of Chancellor.

What I have written in these three installments is far from a full history of Clinch Valley College. It is a story that could fill volumes and perhaps someone in the future will tell the story in its entirety. When we have our weak moments let us remember our proud past and when we are glorifying ourselves let us remember our humble beginnings.

Comedian/actor offers opportunity to amateur comedians

College students seeking careers in Hollywood inevitably ask: "How do I get my foot in the door?"

Comedian/actor Jimmie Walker, who sprang to national prominence when he portrayed the wisecracking "J.J." on the "Good Times" series, wants to give a break to college writers who think they know how to write jokes for stand-up comedy.

Walker, who will soon be seen in the feature film release "My African Adventure," and will also star in his own TV series "Bustin' Loose" this fall, began his career writing jokes for other comics. Now, he is soliciting material from student joke-writers.

If Walker uses the material, he will pay the writers. A less tangible, but probably more consequential, reward will be that the writers will have established comedy-writing credits with a comedy/TV/film personality - which can only be of benefit to the students in their efforts to get started in Hollywood.

Any student wishing to submit material to Walker should sent it to his Hollywood office which is located at 9000 Sunset Blvd., Suite 400, Los Angeles, Ca. 90069. Students should also make sure to enclose their name, address and phone number, so that Walker can locate them in the event that he is interested in their material.

Christian College search offered in Spring

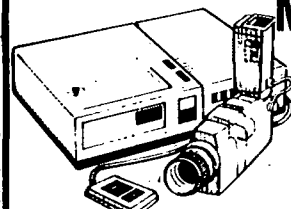

College Search will be offered this Spring by the John XXIII Catholic Center Staff and students of the University of Tennessee at Knoxville. The Search Weekend is set for April 3, 4 and 5 to be held at St. Patrick's Catholic Church, Morristown, TN.

College Search, or Search for Christian Maturity, is a program which provides an opportunity for young adults to grow in awareness of their personhood: their human and Christian potential. The weekend will be based on discussion, prayer, personal sharing, and a wide variety of activities and events.

For further information and registration forms please contact or telephone Father Joseph D'Aurora, Catholic Campus Minister, at 679-2336.

Virginia Press Women to offer journalism scholarship

Virginia Press Women announce that applications for the 1987 Agnes Cooke Scholarship in the amount of $550 are now being accepted. Deadline for receiving applications is August 15. First preference will be given to a Virginia Press

Member engaged in continuing education on a part time or full time basis. Competition is also open to any college student, regardless of grade level or graduate student who plans a career in journalism. The student need not be enrolled in a journalism degree program to qualify. Students may be male or female.

Applications should be submitted in letter form to Lois Kilpatrick, P.O. Box 3695, Fredericksburg, Virginia, 22402. Virginia Press Women members are requested to include a resume of their past journalistic experience. Students should include a statement expressing the reason they have chosen the field of journalism, and how they would spend the scholarship award. Tear sheets of published work should accompany all applications. Judging of applications will be completed by September 15 and the winner will be notified. The award will be announced at the annual Virginia Press Women's Convention in September.

NCAA Championships "Sweet sixteen" vie for title

By Bob Sloan
HC Sports Editor

Only sixteen teams remain from a field of 64 which began the NCAA Basketball Championship Tournament. The cream has risen to the top and it includes several of the finest basketball programs in the country.

Indiana, Georgetown, UNLV, and North Carolina. These teams have been synonymous with college basketball over the past decade. All are still alive in this year's tournament with hopes of making it to New Orleans and taking home yet another National Championship.

The road, however, is not an easy one. Teams such as Florida, Iowa, Alabama, and Syracuse are in their own right contenders to go all the way. The tournament field has been weeded and anyone of the "Sweet Sixteen" could walk away with this year's title.

Nevada - Las Vegas

This could be the year of "The Shark." Coach Jerry Tarkanian has the best career winning percentage of any active college coach. Still, he has never captured a NCAA crown. The Runnin' Rebels fell only one point shy of finishing the regular season undefeated and their lightning-quick offense has left most every opponent watching their dust. The trio of Armon "The Hammer" Gilliam, Freddie Banks, and Gerald Paddio lead this high-powered offense. They could take home this year's college basketball jackpot.

Georgetown

"Reggie and the Miricles." That's what they are calling this year's version of Coach John Thompson's Georgetown squad. The Hoyas are led by All-American Reggie Williams, who most think is Georgetown's "Mr. Do-it-all." The Hoyas, however, have a bench that is 12 players strong. Many of these players could potentially start on a not-so-strong team and Coach Thompson won't hesitate to use any one of them. This may be the year that Georgetown exits from the post-Ewing era.

North Carolina

What would the final four be without Dean Smith and the Tar Heels. It would be no great surprise if North Carolina brought home this year's NCAA booty. Led by All-American point-guard Kenny Smith, "The Dean" is once again at the helm of a well-rounded team which many believe is unbeatable. With an inside attack powered by rookie phenomenon J.R. Reid and senior Joe Wolfe, North Carolina possesses the strength to beat any team in the field. The only question remaining is whether they can overcome the ailments of Wolfe, Smith, and forward reserve Curtis Hunter. As a final note, you might want to remember the name Jeff Lebo.

Indiana

Defense and ball-control. That's just about sums up any game-plan for Coach Bob Knight's Indiana Hoosiers. As usual, "The General" has produced a well-disciplined squad that is led by All-American guard Steve Alford. Although many believe Indiana received the easiest draw of the top-seeded teams, it's now crunch time and you can forget how the Hoosiers got there. Knight and his team are prepared to take on all comers and prove that they are the baddest in the land.

Group responds to Lovelace letter

To the Editor: We would love to respond to the letter that Mr. Lovelace wrote in the March 2nd issue of the Highland Cavalier. Number 1: Does he know the definition of heckle? One wonders. We was there and no one to our knowledge was heckling. There was some healthy bantering but it was far from heckling. Number 2: Just who does he think he is to publicly apologize for CVC students? CVC students should be given the opportunity to decide for themselves whether or not they want to apologize. It should not be done by someone who elects himself as a spokesperson for the rest of us.

Sincerely,
Robin Poole

Health Contract

In addition to an article in the February 2nd issue of the Highland Cavalier the Clinch Valley student health contract with Saint Mary's hospital has been finalized and the contract of the program has been set.

During the week, Monday through Friday, there will be a nurse on duty from 8:00 to 12:00. There will be a doctor present on Tuesday and Thursday between the hours of 8:00 and 9:30.

After the nurse has left at 12:00 there will be free care given at the Emergency Room at Saint Mary's which will offer care equivalent to that rendered by the nurse. Anything extending past the care that the nurse can give will be charged to the students insurance.

Dean O'Donnell feels that this program will work out very well and that it will serve the best interest of the student body.

CVC drops home opener

By Bob Sloan
HC Sports Editor

The Wasps of Emory and Henry College scored five runs in the eighth inning Tuesday March 17 to hand Clinch Valley a 6-1 loss in the Cavalier's opening game of the season.

For the first seven innings the game was a pitching duel between the Cavalier's Steve Campbell and Emory and Henry's Gary Collier. The two left-handers allowed only one run apiece during regulation.

CVC's only score came in the bottom of the first when Jerry Tarr scored on a single up the middle by second baseman Mike White. It was the only offense the Cavaliers could muster during the contest.

The Wasps came back in the top of the second following a double down the left field line by third baseman Calvin Stup which brought in James Moore.

Both teams were scoreless over the next five innings. Campbell pitched out of jam during the Emory and Henry third. With the base loaded and only one out, Campbell forced the Wasp hitters to hit into two ground outs to end the inning.

Clinch Valley had a chance to win the game in the bottom of the seventh with the score still knotted at one. Pinch-hitter Jeff Gregory lead off the inning with a walk and was followed by J.K. Perkins who belted a single into leftfield.

After a sacrifice bunt by centerfielder Bobby Tiller which moved the runners up a base, Tarr lifted a short fly ball to centerfield. Thinking he could score, pinch-runner Hall tagged up at third only to be easily tagged out at the plate by Wasp catcher John Shelton to end the CVC threat.

Emory and Henry took advantage of relievers Mike West and Bill Higgins in the top of the eighth. The Wasp's batters collected only two hits, but took advantage of three walks and two Cavalier miscues to send five runners across the plate.

Collier went the distance on the mound to collect the win for the Wasps. In eight innings, he allowed only three hits, allowed eight walks, and collected three strikeouts.

Campbell allowed only four hits to the Wasps over seven innings and racked up five strikeouts. Mike West took the loss for the Cavaliers.

The Cavaliers next home game will be March 31 against conference rival Asbury.

Alabama

No one except maybe Wimp Sanderson and his players expected the Crimson Tide to roll this far into the tournament. Finishing as the no. 9 team in the final regular season poll, Alabama is lead by forward Derrick McKey and a band of seasoned seniors. The Tide is playing exceptionally good basketball and are coming off a record-setting 72 percent team shooting performance against New Orleans. Don't count these guys out.

Iowa

Who are these guys? The Hawkeyes made it as far as no. 2 in the regular season rankings, yet had to play second fiddle to UNLV, UNC, and Indiana. Dr. Tom Davis hopes to carry his team into New Orleans, but to get there the Hawkeyes will have to outgun Oklahoma and UNLV. That in itself is no easy task for any team. But, if Iowa could get past these two powerhouses, who's to say that the Hawkeyes couldn't win it all.

Syracuse

The Orangemen lost to the Hoyas three times during the regular season. This has to take some light off their chances of making it to the championship game. Jim Boeheim's team is guided by sophomore Sherman Douglas, who's proven himself to be one of the nation's finest point-guards. Add center Rony Seikaly and forward Derrick Coleman and the Orangemen's chances don't sound bad at all. Nevertheless, Syracuse must have another confrontation with Georgetown to make it to the final game.

Oklahoma

Coach Billy Tubbs' team has the honor of being the only team to have beaten UNLV so far this year. Can they do it again? The Sooners will have to if they intend on going to New Orleans. Forward Darryl "Choo" Kennedy hopes to lead his team past the Runnin' Rebels one more time, but to do this they must first get past an Iowa Hawkeye team with hopes of their own. Still, no one can deny that the Sooners have enough guns to shoot down any team in their way.

Notre Dame

Senior David Rivers is certainly deserving of a trip to the final four in his last season. Coach Digger Phelps would like nothing more. The Fighting Irish have knocked off three of the final sixteen teams already this season, including North Carolina. Will the Irish be able to beat the Tar Heels twice in one season? Unfortunately, they will have to if they intend to continue their quest for the NCAA crown. It's not likely, but who thought they could beat them the first time.

Duke

After making it to the championship game in last year's tournament, the Blue Devils are a bit of a surprise in this year's tournament. Duke subdued Texas A&M and Xavier to make it to the semis in the Midwest region. Coach Dennis Kozlowski's Blue Devils will now have to conquer the mighty Hoosiers to advance to the regional finals. It won't be easy.

DePaul

When will this team's luck run out? Joey Myers and his Blue Demon squad hope it will last at least three more games. After squeaking past St. John's in overtime, DePaul will now have to contend with Dale Brown's LSU Tigers. With Dallas Comegeys proving to be a top-notch star, the Blue Demons could have a shot at going to New Orleans and the final four.

Providence

The Friars lead the nation in three-point shots made per game during the regular season with an average of eight bombs a game. Coach Rick Pitano has a team strong on perimeter shooting but very, very weak inside. As long as they keep hitting the outside shot with vengeance, they could go far. If the Friars run into a strong front line and their shooting is off, it could be a long trip back to Rhode Island.

Louisiana State

For the second year in a row, the Tiger have a chance at making it to the final four. Coach Dale Brown has woven his magic and prepared his team for another stretch run at the championship. The Tigers will have to get past Indiana if they plan to go to New Orleans. Can they do it? Sure, but I wouldn't put the rent money on it.

Wyoming

This year's dark horse. The Cowboys have already mowed down Virginia and UCLA. The next task for Fennis Dembo and company - the Runnin' Rebs of UNLV. Wyoming was very underrated coming into the tournament and that helped them pull off a couple of mild upsets. Now the money is on the table. Does this team possess the ability to go stride-for-stride with UNLV? If Dembo can rack up another 40-plus performance, they may be able to stay close to the run-and-gun Rebels.

Florida

In their first appearance in the NCAA tournament, the Gators have looked more than impressive. After laying aside a tough Purdue team by 19 points, Florida and Coach Norm Sloan feel they have as much a chance as anyone else for the title. Lead by 7-2 Dwayne Schnitzuis, the Gators could surprise a few teams.

Okay, by this time the final four has been decided. Four teams have proven themselves and are making reservations for New Orleans. Who are these fantastic four? Well, I may end up eating lots of crow, but these are the teams I expect to see livin' it up in the French Quarter during March 27-30: North Carolina, Indiana, Georgetown, and Iowa.
