Kim Lee elected first woman president of SGA

Kathryn Kelley
HC Editor

Kim Lee has been elected as the first woman president of the SGA since Clinch Valley College became a four-year institution.

In a vote of 161 to 106 votes, Lee won the race of SGA President over Daniel Roop.

"I'm ecstatic," Lee said, "I'm honored that the students have given me the opportunity to work for them."

As for future plans, Lee said she would like to see a continuation of programs initiated by the SGA this year. "I think next year's SGA will provide a sense of unity and continuity that I think is necessary to get what the students want."

Lee said she hopes to make direct approaches to new Chancellor Jimmy Knight about the important issues facing the students.

As for the students' vote in favor of keeping Randolph Hall as a dormitory, Lee said, "The proportion of students that voted, through their selection, have indicated they do not want Randolph Hall closed. It appears to me that they want to keep Randolph and that's what I'll fight for."

"What's important is that they (the administration) don't have the money to do it right now. As soon as Knight enters office, I'll make a direct appeal to Knight. If that means coming in July, I will," said Lee.

For matters such as the meal plan, Lee said, "I'll take the results of this year's poll directly to Mr. Knight. I'll take it to him myself... I won't go through anyone else."

Courtney Brummitt won by one vote over close contender Erick Bowman. She received 86 votes to Bowman's 85, after recount of votes.

Brummitt said, "I'm very ecstatic and very pleased." She added, "I think that we can all work together very well and I'll follow her (Lee's) lead."

In her office as vice-president, Brummitt said, "I know I will be working in conjunction with the club presidents, and I would like to see the clubs continue the organizational games, the Trashathon and various other activities to help them raise money and provide more activities for students."

"I'd like to see people become more involved and at least express their opinions," said Brummitt.

Brummitt outlined the possibility of sending out questionnaires

Candidates tackle major issues during debate

Christal Tackett
HC Staff Writer

The Second Annual SGA Presidential Debate was held Tuesday, April 26, in the Chapel of All Faiths.

One of the issues discussed was if administrative funding for student activities were discontinued, would the SGA be willing to compensate by increasing the allotment to the student activities department for student entertainment.

Kim Lee, CVC junior, said "I feel that the administration should continue to fund the student entertainment committee. . . I think that, as the SGA, we should continue to sponsor the student activity series, but because of the budget limitations we have—I don't think the SGA can really fund it completely."

"But I am willing to see to it, if I am elected, that the SGA does indeed continue to fund the student entertainment series because I think it is a wonderful thing that has brought so much to the college," added Lee.

Daniel Roop, CVC sophomore, agreed with his opponent, stating, "I don't think there's a place in the SGA budget to increase funding of the student activities department and I certainly don't want the administration to discontinue their funding. However, I think the student should take into consideration the turnout we get. . . if we're going to continue them, we'll have to increase the turnout. . . if we don't, we're going to have to minimize the amount that we spend on such activities."

Roop added that he did not foresee a great problem with funding for the student activities but that he hopes to see an increase in involvement.

Another issue discussed was the programs that current SGA president Jeff Brickett has initiated and the willingness of the candidates to not only continue these programs, but initiate new programs.

Lee responded by saying that she thinks the SGA has made great strides in finding new opportunities for students to get involved. She supports all the programs Brickett

CVC fraternity to aid in Wise Hospital's mock disaster

Angela Edwards
HC Staff Writer

In an effort to evaluate the performance of the emergency room staff at Wise Hospital, Clinch Valley College's Pi Kappa Phi fraternity has agreed to participate in a Mock Disaster.

The Disaster will include fifteen "seriously injured victims" who have supposedly been involved in an accident which allegedly occurs at the Pi Kapp house.

The victims will be "fixed up" with "cuts, broken bones, burns, etc." by rescue squad members, who will then take them to the emergency room at Wise Hospital to be "treated".

Although a date has been set for the Disaster, the emergency room staff has no advance knowledge of when the event is to take place.

The staff will be tested by hospital administrators and other staff members on how they reacted under the "chaotic conditions". The staff members will also be tested on how they inform the "relatives" that their loved ones are "seriously injured" or maybe even "dead".

According to Bob Sloan, archon of Pi Kappa Phi, the Disaster is a good community service. He said that Pi Kappa Phi was involved in a Mock Disaster two or three years ago and that it was not only very successful but a lot of fun as well.

The Pi Kappa became interested in this project when Robbie Skeens, the coordinator at Wise Hospital, contacted Sharon Daniels, alumni advisor for Pi Kappa Phi, about involving Pi Kappa Phi in the event.

The Wise Hospital, in exchange for the Kapp's participation, will make a donation to the fraternity's national charity, P.U.S.H.

Challenges provide meaning in everyday life

Warren Wattenbarger
Campus Minister

It must be confessed that our world is not an easy one in which to live, neither is it easy to understand all the things that happen. Obstacles and mysteries combine to make it a bewildering and exhaustive world. Life is always springing surprises upon us. Just when we think we have one question answered a new factor enters into the calculations. Just when we think we have one problem solved a more difficult one emerges demanding a solution. Any discovery of a great law reveals a hundred mysteries lurking in the shadows. New technical processes always produce new occupational disease.

We contend every day with forces for which we are no match. Nothing has done more to humble the scientist than the discovery of nuclear power. "What have we let loose upon this planet Earth," exclaimed one top ranking scholar, leaning across his desk as if searching the soul of the preacher for a satisfactory answer. It is as if a man had been living all his life in a world that was too big for him, and matching wits with powers that were constantly outwitting him.

But this is the glory of life. Suppose that it were possible to find our way out to the rim of knowledge and say: "There is nothing beyond." That would be the end of curiosity, adventure, challenge, and ambition. Suppose that we were able to think thoughts as complicated and as eternal as this universe in which we live. Then we would be gods ourselves. Instead, we live in a world that is at all times drawing us on, stretching our minds, stimulating our imagination, and inspiring our zeal.

May life always be a challenge to you. The greater the challenge the greater will be the joy that you find as you reach your goals. We pray God's Blessing upon you as you complete this year of studies at Clinch Valley College.

May there always be enough challenges to make life meaningful for you.

Former graduate donates lithograph

A former Clinch Valley College art student has lent pieces of his collection for an exhibit and will discuss them in a lecture on May 10.

Jimmy Meade recently returned to the school that he credits with giving him the foundation he needed to go out into the world. From Clinch Valley College he has been to Italy, France, Belgium, Holland, England, Spain, Mexico and the Galapagos Islands.

In deciding to donate a prized print, Meade said, "I want to return a little to CVC." He is giving the College an original signed lithograph print by American artist Grant Wood, in honor of Art Professor Betty Gilliam, member of the Clinch Valley faculty since 1960. In honor of a former CVC English professor, the late William Lester Wilson, Meade is lending a copy of the Book of Revelations, only one of these three that exist. It is an extremely rare book that is hand lettered and hand illustrated. The book will be on exhibit at John Cook Wyllie Library, along with other pieces of Meade's collection, through May 10.

Meade teaches art at the University of Southern Mississippi in Hattiesburg. After graduation in 1961 from Coeburn High School, he attended Clinch Valley College for two years, several years before the school was elevated to four-year status. He earned an M.A. in painting from East Tennessee State University and an M.F.A. in drawing from the University of Georgia.

While a student at the University of Georgia, Meade helped the university to establish a school in Italy, and it was there that he fell in love with Renaissance culture, and the country itself.

Some of Meade's drawings, on display at Wyllie Library, are from three books he has illustrated, Dante's Inferno, Goethe's Faust, Sebastian Brandt's Ship of Fools.

His open discussion lecture, to which the public is cordially invited, is at 1 p.m. on Tuesday, May 10, in the Chapel of All Faiths. The library is open until 10 p.m. Sunday through Thursday, until 4:30 p.m. on Friday, and on Saturday from 1 to 5 p.m.

New Editor states plans for next year

Nadine Boggs
HC Staff Writer

Several changes have taken place on campus this past week. Not only do we have several new officers of the SGA but The Highland Cavalier has a new Editor as well.

Kathryn Kelley, a junior English Major with a concentration in Communications, was officially promoted to Editor on Monday, the 18th of April.

Although a junior, Kelley had been on the staff for two years prior to being appointed. Because of this, she has an extensive view of not only the job to which she has been appointed, but many of the other positions on the paper as well.

Over the past two years she has been afforded the opportunity to be a "jack of all trades" while serving as co-assistant and assistant Editor, having a hand in lay-out decisions, reporting, editing, and advertising.

"The Editor's job is a lot of responsibility and hard work, but so far I am having a lot of fun at it. Of course, problems can pop up at any minute but it becomes easier to handle the longer you work for the paper," said Kelley. "Some of the ideas that I have will hopefully increase not only the circulation but the quality of the paper as well," Kelley added.

Some of the goals and plans that she intends to initiate for the coming year include more editorial and investigative reporting, more comics, more outside issues that affect the college and the surrounding area, and the paper intends to have a University of Virginia correspondent to keep those of us on the CVC campus updated on what is happening up there.

As Editor, one of her first actions was to purchase two MacIntosh SE's and an imagewriter to be placed in The Highland Cavalier Office.

Kelley has hopes to buy a Laser Printer for the paper as well.

"I am going to make this newspaper as interesting and informative to the students as I possibly can... I have been with the Highland Cavalier since I came to CVC two years ago and it's a major part of my life here at Clinch Valley," Kelley concluded.

CVC students go to Pharmacy School

Five Clinch Valley College students have been accepted at the Medical College of Virginia's School of Pharmacy for the 1988 Fall Semester.

They are Ervin Grey Counts, Melissa Ann Cox, Steven Romel Givens, Frederick Leo Villiard, Jr.,

and Shery Dawn White.

Cox is a third-year student whose major is pre-pharmacy. She is the daughter of Mrs. Sidney Whitaker of Pound and the late Claude Cox.

Counts, in the pre-medicine program at Clinch Valley College, is a second-year student. His parents are Mr. and Mrs. Zane Counts of Haysi.

Olivens, a chemistry major, is a fourth-year student. He lives at Route 1, Appalachia.

Villiard, who plans to complete a major in biology for graduation in May, is the son of Mr. and Mrs. Frederick L. Villiard, Sr. of Wise.

White is a second-year student in the pre-pharmacy program. Her parents are Mr. and Mrs. James H. White of Castlewood.

Clinch Valley finishes first .500 season at 19-14

Rusty Mullins
HC Sports Editor

"We're tickled to death!" smiled Coach Ray Spenilla. "When you start five freshmen and four sophomores against junior and senior clubs and you finish 19-14 overall and 12-7 in the conference you have to be pleased."

That's right! For the first time in the long history of Clinch Valley College the Cavaliers finished the season with more wins than losses.

And to whom do you think Spenilla gives the credit? "They're a great bunch of kids!" responded the coach. Through out the season Spenilla repeated that statement and I know that he meant it each and every time because he knows how well the Cavs represent CVC.

Spenilla also stated that CVC managed to build a program against the odds, while playing by the rules. CVC doesn't have the scholarship money to attract the highest rated high school seniors and he stresses being a "student-athlete" first and foremost. Spenilla noted that many of the clubs against which the Cavs play do not place emphasis on either of those characteristics. Spenilla compared it to "playing poker with only three cards" and said that such a successful season is all the more sweet because the Cavs did it the right way.

The Cavs also beat two traditional powers for the first time ever in this campaign. The Cavs defeated both Georgetown and Cumberland for the first time. Georgetown and Cumberland are now competing in post-season action, so it's not as if Georgetown and Cumberland just had bad year's.

Cavalier assistant Lawrence Worley mentioned that the Cavs had to mold into a team as the season progressed, while the opposing squad had, in most cases, been playing together for years. At the end of the season the Cavs showed that they had risen from yet another challenge as they pulled together as a team to finish the season five games over .500 while being only one over .500 going into their last four games of the season.

Spenilla concluded that it was nice to rest knowing that his squad had reached its goal, but that the summer marked the beginning of recruitment to improve on the 19 win season next year.

Professors lead tour

In conjunction with the International Science and Engineering Fair, held this year in Knoxville, an educational tour to Natural Tunnel will be sponsored by Clinch Valley College and the Southwest Virginia Regional Science Fair.

The tour will be held by Dr. William Hooper and Dr. Phillip Shelton, members of the CVC science faculty.

Tour participants will be International Fair students and teachers from across the United States. Normally, the 45 states and several foreign countries are represented at the international fair.

BSU announces next council

The Baptist Student Union Council for the 1988-1989 year are as follows: Karen Jordan, president; Denise Stanley, secretary; George Burgan and Chuck Anderson, programs; Danny Cassidy, worship and witness; Sandra Greca and Remi Oshode, music; Kim Mayse, summer missions; Lisa Jo Harmon, local missions; Kathryn Kelley and Sandra Greca, communications.

New brothers announced

The officers of Phi Sigma Kappa for the 1988-89 school year are as follows: President-Tracy Stapleton; Vice-President-Mark Bentley; Treasurer-Matt Hopkins; Secretary-Tom O'Toole; Sentinel-Ray Laster; Inductor-Dan Haley. We are also proud to announce the new brothers of Phi Sigma Kappa. They are David Bevins, Eric Greene, and Joey Jones. The new sisters are Angie Crawmer, Natalie Skeens, and Diane Van Winkle.

Phi Sigma Kappa was founded on March 15, 1873, at the University of Massachusetts. The chapter at Clinch Valley College was formed on November 8, 1976, and has been designated the Xi Hexaton chapter. This chapter is part of the Old Dominion province, which includes Radford University, Virginia Tech, Virginia Commonwealth University and The University of Virginia.

The three cardinal principals of Phi Sigma Kappa are to promote brotherhood, to stimulate scholarship, and to develop character. Our chapter advisor since our founding here at Clinch Valley College has been Jack Mahony.

THE DRAWING FOR THE $100 OR BICYCLE WILL BE HELD AT THE SPRING FORMAL. YOU NEED NOT BE PRESENT TO WIN.

Society honors Breeding

L. Todd Breeding, a senior at Clinch Valley College, was recognized as an outstanding chemistry graduate at the April 13 meeting in Johnson City of the Northeastern Tennessee section of the American Chemical Society.

Seven area colleges comprise the section of the American Chemical Society: Emory & Henry, Virginia Intermont, King College, Milligan College, Tusculum College, East Tennessee State University and Clinch Valley College.

Breeding, majoring in Chemistry with a minor in biology, was nominated for the award by the chemistry faculty of Clinch Valley College. He has been accepted to the Medical College of Virginia
