Presidential candidates gear up for upcoming elections

Beth Finne
HC Assistant Editor

Four students are running for SGA President during the 1989-90 academic year.

Erick Bowman is a junior majoring in history and government, with a concentration in political science, and a minor in economics. Bowman currently has a 2.9 grade point average, and is Honor Court Chairman, president of the College Republicans, a member of Circle K, Wesley Foundation, the Judd Lewis Society, and Alpha Delta Chi.

Bowman's platform for his campaign consists of these goals for the SGA: 1. An increase in social activities for students on weekends, 2. an enhancement of community projects to bring the college closer with the community and increase the possibility of more scholarships and endowments, 3. a reactivation of the Inner-Club Council, 4. a more unified SGA, 5. the establishment of a fall semester tradition, like an October-fest, 6. an increase in student participation in the SGA and an enhancement of the atmosphere for voicing opinions, and 7. an expansion of the communications field in the form of a campus radio.

Timothy Collins is a CVC junior majoring in political science, and maintains a 3.75 grade point average. He is a member of the Darden Society, College Republicans, and a new campus organization, Cavaliers for Christ.

Timothy Collins

Collins would like to see an increase in representativeness, in that he wants to make certain that student are consulted on important issues and majority concerns are carried out. Collins emphasizes more campus activities with a wider variety, and increase activities on weekends and multiplying the number of organizations on campus for minority groups.

Another aspect of Collins' platform includes encouraging clubs to sponsor junior membership for seniors in area high schools. They could be invited to club and college functions and this would strengthen their ties to CVC and perhaps step up enrollment at the college.

Collins said he wants a rejuvenation of the Inner-Club Council, but his major concern is the effective running of SGA meetings. Collins wants to install parliamentary procedure into the meetings to allow

Cardwell submits his resignation as Dean

Nona Shepherd
HC Copy Editor

Vice-Chancellor and Dean Jerry D. Cardwell, after three years of service at CVC, recently announced his resignation effective Aug. 31.

Cardwell accepted the CVC Vice-Chancellor and Dean position in July of 1986. After six months in this capacity, Cardwell was appointed Acting Chancellor as a result of the resignation of Chancellor Edwin W. Moomaw. Cardwell again became the Vice-Chancellor and Dean 18 months later when Jim A. Knight was announced as the new Chancellor of CVC.

When asked about his position, Cardwell said that he enjoyed having the ability to contribute to the programs here at the college and being able to have an impact on what goes on at the institution. On the other hand, he regrets the fact that it seems there is never enough money to do what one feels ought to be done.

During his three years, Cardwell has seen the enrollment at CVC increase and the establishment of the Advising Center and the SEED Center.

While he did play a key role in these successes, Cardwell said, "You don't do things by yourself," and that the advances were made by a combined effort on the part of "a lot of people who worked together", including faculty and staff.

In response to a question about the qualifications for the next Vice-Chancellor, Cardwell commented that anyone working at a college must like people and be someone

College's policy on harassment aids students and faculty

Editor's Note: The following is the University of Virginia's Policy on Sexual Harassment adopted by Clinch Valley College last semester. A complete copy of the policy can be obtained from the EO/AA Office in the Administration Building.

Unwelcome sexual advances, requests for sexual favors, and/or other verbal or physical conduct or written communication of a sexual nature is sexual harassment when:

- 1) submission to such conduct is made either explicitly or implicitly a term or condition of an individual's employment or educational experience;
- 2) submission to, or rejection of such conduct is used as the basis for employment or academic decisions affecting such individual; or
- 3) such conduct has the purpose or effect of unreasonably interfering with an individual's work, academic performance, participation in University sponsored extracurricular activities, or creating an intimidating, hostile, or offensive working or learning environment.

The University of Virginia is committed to providing a working and educational environment for all faculty, staff, and students which is free from sexual harassment.

Sexual harassment is unacceptable behavior and will not be tolerated. It is a form of misconduct that undermines the integrity of the conditions of employment and teaching, and of faculty-student relationships.

Sexual harassment takes many forms and includes many kinds of behavior. It is best described as behavior which a reasonable person would find offensive. Sexual harassment may involve behavior by a person of either gender against a person of the same or opposite gender, when that behavior falls within the definition outlined above.

Possible examples may include but are not limited to the following: seeking sexual favors or relationships in return for a promised grade or other academic opportunity; relating an employment opportunity to a sexual favor or relationship; repeated and insulting or demeaning statements or gestures related to gender, which unreasonably interfere with the work or academic or extra-curricular performance of a student or faculty or staff member; or intentional and undesired physical contact which adversely affects a person's ability to carry out his or her academic or employment responsibilities.

Sexual harassment is a serious offense and is deeply destructive. Therefore, training and educational programs are provided by the Equal Opportunity/Affirmative Action Office to ensure that all managers, supervisors, employees and students clearly understand what sexual harassment is and is not, that sexual harassment is illegal and will not be tolerated.

Investigations of complaints of alleged sexual harassment will be conducted as promptly and in as confidential a manner as possible. Appropriate steps will be taken to resolve complaints without fear of reprisal against the individual filing such a complaint.

Depending upon the initial contact and the identity of the alleged harasser, the investigation may be conducted by the EO/AA Office, the dean, department head or supervisor. If a complaint is pursued through the EO/AA Office and a

BSU students attend leadership program held at Eagle Eyrie

Sharon Culler
HC Staff Writer

"We all live in the yellow submarine" was the theme song for the Baptist Student Union trip to the Leadership Training Conference.

Eight students and Jim Collie, BSU Director, traveled in the yellow van to Eagle Eyrie for the conference. The students that attended were: Jeff Casteel, Sharon Culler, Rochelle Davis, Lisa Fields, Lisa Harmon, Kim Mayse, Shannon Paxton, and Laryssa Shepherd. Each student participated in a program at the leadership conference, which included a leader. The leader worked with a group of students from many different colleges around the state of Virginia.

The student stayed with the group that was studying the same thing he was interested in studying. Some of the study groups organized were: Missions and Ministry, Learning Your Leadership Gifts, Seniors, Presidents, Discipleship, and Sharing Your Faith.

Since most of the time spent at Eagle Eyrie is with a certain group, each person has the chance to get to know the people in the group very well. It was very hard to leave all of the new friends because they were like family before the weekend ended. The weekend was a success in the eyes of this participant.

SPIRITUALLY SPEAKING

We can't always get what we want

Jim Collie
Campus Minister

"This isn't Burger King. You can't have it your way!" read the sign on the door of a friend's office. Oh, but I would like to have it my way! Wouldn't you? At least some of the time?

Perhaps you do have it your way. Be honest, now. Most of us have learned to work through our differences and come to compromise, not of convictions, but of ways of doing things. One of my favorite recent books is from the world of business. It is titled, Getting To Yes and it is all about decision making where everyone is a winner.

The Bible has some words to say about "having it our way," too. Proverbs 3:5-6 read, "Trust in the Lord with all your heart, and do not rely on your own insight. In all your ways acknowledge him, and he will make straight your paths" (The Revised Standard Version). Could it be that when we look at things according to God's way, we do not have to have it our way?

Whose way is best, anyway? It is said that the dying words of any group or organization are, "We've never done it that way before." Paul writes to the Christians in Rome that there are many ways of doing things as there are many individual gifts (Romans 12:6ff), and in 1 Corinthians 12, Paul speaks of a variety of service, workings (12:4-6). We can have it our way, but first we need to look for God's way. Been to Burger King lately?

The SGA comes out in the black, uses money for upcoming show

C. Edward Elkins, Jr.
HC Staff Writer

SGA President Kim Lee made a projection based on expected expenditures that the SGA would have a surplus in their budget at the end of this semester totaling $2000.

Five-hundred dollars of this surplus was used at the meeting to purchase a block of tickets at the upcoming "Up With People" concert to be given May 4. The 100 tickets were purchased at the door price of $5 per ticket by the SGA to enable CVC students to attend the show free of charge. The tickets will be distributed on a first come, first serve basis to any current CVC student.

Interest in the show was sparked by a representative of the Up With People troupe who gave a short explanation of the group's goals and activities. The group's mission was described as "to spread peace" and provide "public service" through musical entertainment. Up With People is comprised of talented people from 18 different countries.

In other news, Kelly Gene Willis brought a revised resolution before the SGA for consideration. The resolution, titled the "Removal and Replacement Resolution", was tabled for further consideration by SGA members.

This resolution states that the president of the SGA shall make a policy concerning the absence of members of the Student Council to be made known to all members and to be recorded in the minutes.

Also, the resolution provides that any member of the SGA who is removed or resigns from office shall not be replaced until the next regularly scheduled meeting of the Student Council, and they shall see that the student body is informed of the situation by publication in The Highland Cavalier or displaying announcements.

The road rally that had been planned for the near future has been canceled in favor of a scavenger hunt and bon fire tentatively scheduled for Friday, May 5.

Explosive performance by Up With People coming soon to CVC Gym

Sharon Culler
HC Staff Writer

On May 4, 1989 Clinch Valley College will witness one of the most explosive performances of young adults to hit the CVC stage.

Up With People may be described as an international education group that travels around the world learning different cultures. It is based upon "understanding, in action, worldwide."

The group that will be at Clinch

Valley College is called the D-cast and contains between 120 to 160 people from 18 different countries.

The cast members will be arriving on May 2 and performing the show on May 4 and is sponsored by Circle K, WNVA, and Phi Beta Lambda, and the Honors House. The date for what is called Community Involvement Day is May 3.

Hella Andersen from Denmark and Eric Stockstill from Florida, the Up With People promotional team, would like to get the community involved with the program. They hope to be able to have the community day involve students from the elementary schools and the high schools, as well as CVC.

This day will give the students a chance to learn about the different countries that are represented in the cast. Each class will have studied a particular country's culture and they will be able to discuss what they learned with the

Quilts featured in CVC exhibit

The intricate work of eleven Virginia quiltmakers is featured in an exhibition April 3-24 at Clinch Valley College in Wise.

"Pieces of Virginia" is sponsored by Pro-Art Association as part of the William B. Cohen Memorial Arts Series, and may be seen in Cantrell Hall, room 206. Hours are 10 A.M. to 12 noon, and 6 to 9 P.M., but visitors are asked to call 328-0131 for daily time verification.

Accompanying the exhibit are four short films, to be shown at 11 A.M. and 7 P.M. each day of the exhibit, or upon request.

"Quilting Women" and "The Common Wealth of Women" will be shown April 3-7. From April 10 through 14, a half-hour film entitled "Quilts in Women's Lives" may be seen, and "Under the Covers" will be shown April 17-21.

The exhibition was conceived and organized by the Virginia Museum of Fine Arts, which worked with Virginia quilting guilds to select eleven accomplished quilters. Each woman was given material to work in her favorite patchwork design, using log cabin, drunkard's path and feathered star patterns. All squares were assembled into a whole quilt by members of the Richmond Quilters' Guild.

Artists represented in the exhibit are members of guilds in Richmond, Winchester, Lynchburg, Roanoke, Alexandria, Virginia Beach, Norfolk and Charlottesville.

Patchwork quilting may be compared to jazz, according to Virginia Museum staffer Eileen Mot. She points out that both are uniquely American art forms. She says, "The quilt is a vibrant explosion of color, full of contrasting and clashing elements which, in the final work, are arranged into harmonious and rhythmic compositions."

The public is cordially invited to see the exhibit and accompanying films.

Madwoman of Chailot to appear at CVC Theatre

On April 20, the curtain will go up at the Clinch Valley College Theatre on a Highland Play production of Madwoman of Chailot, a satiric fantasy written in the late forties by Jean Giraudoux.

The lead roles will be played by Lisa Hamilton and Jon Fawbush — both seasoned performers and graduates of CVC. Davis, a teacher at John I. Burton and an adjunct instructor in speech in the college's Department of Visual and Performing arts, recently appeared as the sister-in-law in Sweetwater Canal and as the mother in Curse of the Starving Class. Fawbush, recipient of the Cohen Award in the Arts, and currently employed at WDC Radio Station in Clintwood, needs little introduction to area playgoers.

An actor of prodigious talent, he has appeared in numerous productions in the past several years. His most recent role was that of Sneaky, the would-be hero and coward of The Death and Life of Sneaky Fitch.

Davis will appear in the role of Countess Aurelia, the Madwoman of Chailot, who schemes to prevent her beloved city of Paris from being destroyed by a cabal of international merchants of progress. Fawbush will play a ragpicker — the leader of a gang of street vagabonds who gather to assist the Countess in her madcap plan to thwart the forces of evil. (Fawbush will also portray a zany quack doctor.)

Other madwomen in the show are played by Sally Baird of Wise, Chris Evans of Pound, and Nancy Wampler of Coeburn. Baird portrays Mile. Gabrielle, a sixty-year old virgin whose "voices" have passed into her hotwater bottle; Evans assumes the role of Mipo. Coastance, a cantankerous grande dame whose earthly existence is rendered bearable by Dickey, her imaginary dog; and Mme. Josephine, a priestly old harriidan who is still waiting for a rendezvous with the long-dead President Wilson.

The street vagabonds are portrayed by veteran actor Michael Abbot as a street singer, Jon Greer as a deaf-mute, Ronald McMurray as a juggler, Jane Lester as a flower girl, Jeff Jackson as a shoelace peddler, and Artemis Greer as a shady lady of the night and day.

Appearing as the merchants of progress are Lane Smith as the president of an international cartel, Robert Cassell as an oil prospector, Prof. Michael O'Donnell as a broker, and Chester Dingus as a baron.

Matthew Hopkins is double major in history and English, with a minor in philosophy. He maintains a grade point average of 2.79. He is the treasurer of Phi Sigma Kappa fraternity, assistant editor of the Outpost yearbook, treasurer of the Body Shop, SGA junior representative, a member of the Judd Lewis Society, and belongs to the National Guard.

Hopkin's platform includes seeing more students involved with SGA and the administration when it comes to decision making. He believes students should make their opinions known and have more of a chance to be heard instead of hearing of an issue after the final vote has been taken.

Hopkins would like to bring commuters and residents closer together and have more activities during the day when commuters can participate. Another benefit he will push is a T.V. for commuters in the Zehmer Lounge.

Hopkins wants to increase student participation in sports and academic activities to bring the student body closer together.

Thomas O'Toole is a junior majoring in business with a 2.8 grade point average. He is the inductor of Phi Sigma Kappa fraternity, president of the Outbounders, and a member of New Dimensions. O'Toole's platform consists of increasing weekend activities, increasing commuter participation in these activities, and starting a tradition of a 5K marathon and a 10 mile bike race each semester.

He said he wants to strengthen the SGA body as a whole and make them work closer together, and increase participants and audiences in the college lecture series.

O'Toole said he would also push members of the SGA to be more in touch with the students they represent. He said SGA members should have a good idea of what students want through talking and listening to as many as possible. He would also like to establish a college radio station for students on campus.

In the past the CVC student body has lacked a few pertinent items, the most important being unification. I think student unification may be obtained through a build up of student morale. This goal is a tangible one if we all work together. It is almost impossible for one person or organization to accomplish this entire task without your help. Clinch Valley College can only be as strong as we, the students, make it.
Some of my ideas include increasing activities on the weekends to retain campus residents and to draw more students to CVC, especially commuters because they make up most of the student body. We could start a few traditions such as; at least one 5K running race per semester, at least one 10 mile bike race per semester, perhaps a dance or two on the weekends. I would like to work on the establishment of a radio station on campus. Even if the station is a reality after I have left office, I would still be content that one of my goals was accomplished leading toward student unification. If an attempt is not made to accomplish something, my ideas will never become realities.
I hope you agree with these ideas. I think CVC has great potential. If the S.G.A. is strong and unified it can accomplish almost anything if it has the support of you, the student.

Suggestions for outdoor entertainment are numerous

Angela Crammer
HC Staff Writer

A constant complaint many college students have, especially freshmen, is the lack of entertainment in Wise as well as on campus.

Sharon Daniels, public affairs assistant, is concerned with the affair and has proposed some suggestions in attempt to alleviate this problem. In a memorandum to Chancellor Knight, she suggested weekend intramural sports instead of weekdays, one thing which students frequently mention.

Other suggestions ranged from tournaments in spades, bridge, pool, ping-pong, checkers, chess, backgammon to Friday or Saturday night dances with themes.

Sled races during snowy weekends, adopt-a-grandparent program with Mountain Empire Older Citizens, Barter Theatre matinees (in season), and a Rocky Horror Picture Show all-night viewing with accompanying activities are more possible suggestions open to students.

"I know I'd do it. There's enough people on the campus who know how a real midnight showing of the Rocky Horror Picture Show is supposed to be conducted," commented CVC Junior Rob Cassell. "The Rocky Horror Show is an experience that no progressive college student should be without."

During the SGA meeting on February 21, one of the topics discussed concerned the lack of social participation within the freshmen class. Rather than developing new programs and activities, President Kim Lee suggested the organizations should concentrate on better dispersal of information about the presently existing clubs.

One club impatricular that has remained actively entertaining is the Outbounders who have been on several trips, from rock climbing to skiing.

One does not have to be a member of a club to enjoy the area of Wise, commented a student. One hidden treasure remains directly behind the school, where several bonfires and cookouts have taken place. There are also a few ponds, some you can fish from, and plenty of hills and paths to hike.

Sophomore Tony Zebrowski, who has been in the wooded area behind the school enjoys this getaway because it is "secluded and separate from the rest of the campus."

Laurie Marshall to present lecture concerning collages

Professional artist Laurie Marshall will present a lecture April 20 in Wise on "Collage: Integrating Realities."

It is at 7:30 p.m. in the Clinch Valley College Chapel of All Faiths, presented by Pro-Art Association as part of the William B. Cohen Memorial Arts Series. There is no admission charge.

Marshall says the challenge of collage lies in identifying emotionally rich imagery from everyday sources and fashioning them into a unique statement. Her illustrated lecture includes a brief explanation of the development of collage and a look at masterful examples by artists Romare Bearden, Robert Rauschenberg, Joseph Cornell and Max Ernst.

She is one of 13 professional artists who present studio workshops and lectures throughout the state under auspices of the Virginia Museum of fine Arts affiliate program. The program is funded in part by the Jean Stafford Camp Memorial

Plans for the event are not complete. One idea that has been discussed is to have some cloggers and area musicians present the Appalachian entertainment for the cast members. The sponsors are planning as much CVC student interaction with the Up With People cast as possible.

Host families are still needed for when the cast arrives at CVC. The sponsors hope to get some of the students involved as hosts, but would like to have families from the community to be host families also. Host families will be expected to provide room and board for the cast members from May 2 to May 5. Anyone interested in becoming a host family should contact the planners at McCrayer Dorm Room 101 or call 328-0194 during the day and 328-9802 in the evening.

Cavalier baseball team maintains victorious pace in beating Union

P.J. Elkins
HC Sports Editor

After being hampered by a week of bad weather, the Highland Cavalier baseball team maintained their victorious pace and improved their record to 19-3, as they broke the school's seasonal winning mark by sweeping a doubleheader against Union in Tuesday's action.

"Picking up two wins on the road speaks very well for the kids. They played intelligently", said head coach Ray Spenilla speaking of the team effort.

Sophomore Bo Owens highlighted the first game, as the Cavs defeated the Bulldogs 10-4. Owens pitched a complete game, while striking out 3, and walking none, bringing his record to 3-0.

Freshman Rick Roman led the offensive attack with a home run, and two singles, while second baseman Hank Banner picked up two hits.

Steve Jessee, the sophomore first baseman, won the second game for the Cavs by breaking a 6-6 deadlock when he blasted a crucial solo homer in the top of the eighth inning, as they squeaked by the Bulldogs 7-6.

Sophomore Miller Castle got the win, after relieving Tim Larga and Brian Clark, who struggled with the Union batters in earlier innings.

Junior catcher J.K. Perkins added three hits, while Hank Banner and John Pendergast had two hits each.

Convention to focus on substance abuse

Penal Baker
HC Staff Writer

The University of Virginia will be the setting for Virginia Intervention Education Weekend (VIEW) on June 2-5.

VIEW is a substance abuse prevention conference which is funded by the Governor's Council on Alcohol and Substance Abuse.

Teams of college students are invited to take part in the three day weekend where they will learn how to put together a substance abuse prevention program that will suit the needs of their school.

Teams will consist of eight to ten sophomores, juniors, and/or seniors. The students will participate in seminars, workshops, and experiential learning with marketing professionals, legal advisors and substance abuse experts. Students will also have the opportunity to share their ideas on existing programs at their school and plans for future programs.

At the end of the conference teams will present their action plan for a substance abuse program in a competition where the most creative, practical and most improved will be specially awarded by a panel of judges.

Any student interested in becoming a part of the VIEW team should see Randy Giltner, director of public relations, in Salsify Hall.
