Holbrook pleads guilty, gets probation

Michelle Napier
Co-Editor

Mandy Holbrook, a 19-year-old CVC student from Clintwood, pleaded guilty to amended charges involving the death of a baby found in her Honors Apartment last spring.

In the plea agreement, Holbrook received a five year suspended sentence for involuntary manslaughter and another five year suspended sentence on felony parental neglect charges.

Holbrook was placed on two years supervised probation and will reimburse the Wise County Sheriff's Office $1,000 for investigation expenses, the agreement said.

On Monday, Holbrook was to begin trial on felony homicide and felony parental child neglect charges with a maximum 30 year prison sentence.

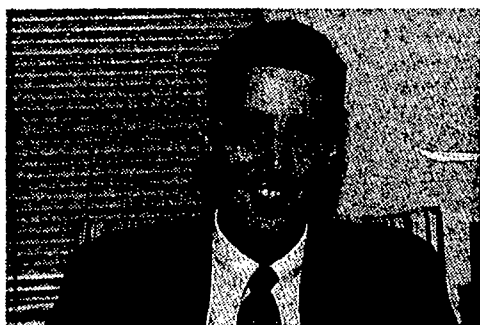

Authorities found a dead full-term baby boy wrapped in towels in a box under Holbrook's bed in her Honors Apartment on Feb. 25.

The state medical examiner said the baby was born alive on Feb. 24 and died of extreme post-natal neglect.

According to a statement from the Wise County Sheriff's Office and the Commonwealth Attorney's Office, the baby's umbilical cord had not been clamped which would have resulted in a large amount of blood loss.

Lemons replaces Knight as Chancellor

CVC's new Chancellor, Dr. L.J. Lemons

There are many new faces on campus this semester. One of the newest faces is the interim Chancellor, L. Jay Lemons. Dr. Lemons was appointed as acting Chancellor by UVA's President Casteen after former Chancellor Jim Knight accepted a position at UVA.

Dr. Lemons is originally from a town of 25,000 in the western part of Nebraska, a vast farming and ranching area. Both of his parents were teachers.

Dr. Lemons earned a B.A. in philosophy and a B.S. in Physical Education at Nebraska Wesleyan University in Lincoln, a school of approximately 1500 students. After completing his undergraduate studies, Lemons accepted a position; and, at this time, he began working on his Master's Degree. After achieving a Master's Degree, Lemons landed a position at Texas A & M where his duties were mainly concerned with resident life; however, his duties also included student conduct and alcohol and drug addiction. After spending 3 years at Texas A & M, Lemons decided to start on a doctoral degree. He narrowed his college choices and decided on the University of Virginia.

Chancellor Lemons has four goals he would like to accomplish this year. "The first one is to get to know the people and the place as well as I can. For me that means trying to be able to match names and faces...." Goal number two is to do as much as possible to "maintain the positive momentum at Clinch Valley." This goal also involves main-

A message from Wise:

Town officials welcome students

Dear Clinch Valley College Students:

On behalf of Town Council, we take great pride in welcoming you to Clinch Valley College and to the Town of Wise. Whether you are a returning student or a newly enrolled freshman, we are delighted that you have chosen to pursue your college education at CVC, and we extend the warmest of welcomes both to the college campus and to the Town of Wise.

The commitment that you have made to yourselves in seeking to obtain a college education will likely be one of the most important factors affecting your future. We commend you for your willingness to accept the challenges offered by higher learning. You have a difficult but rewarding task before you. It is our goal to support you in your efforts, and we are confident that the town and its business community will be able to assist you.

Wise County is an area of great scenic beauty, and recreation is a large part of the lives of its residents. Visitors to the area enjoy hiking, swimming, fishing, and hunting among many other outdoor activities. In addition, classes in aerobics, Karate, tennis, caving, and many others are offered on a regular basis by various organizations. The business community also provides several sources of entertainment in the form of restaurants, theaters, lounges, and nonprofit groups like Pro-Art bring quality cultural programs featuring nationally recognized artists to the area. Continuing efforts are being made to improve the quality of life for our citizens, and as our newest resident, we are optimistic that you will find your stay here to be a pleasant and rewarding experience.

Once again, welcome, and please accept our very best wishes for a most successful college career. We are prepared to assist you in any way possible during this transition period, and as you adjust to your new surroundings, we hope that you will always remember that we are here to help.

Sincerely,
Caynor Smith, Jr.
Mayor

Beverly L. Collins
Town Manager

SGA President establishes goals

The SGA welcomes new and returning students to the new school year. We wish you the best of luck in the upcoming year. Over the past week, the student government has located needs of our campus; we set the goals that need to be accomplished for the 1992-93 year. Goal #1: * to improve the improved system of communication on campus. Goal #2: * to assess the quality, environment, service, and level of student satisfaction with the College's food service operation. Goal #3: * to determine if the current honor system should be reorganized or abolished. Goal #4: * to refine the image of Greek organizations by improving communication, social impact, and positive representation and interaction. Goal #5: * to support and assist programs sponsored by the peer Education Program that address issues relating to women on the campus. Goal #6: * to provide and enhance the variety and quality of entertainment programs made available to students of the college. Goal #7: * to develop policies and procedures for the distribution of student activity funds to student clubs and organizations that are officially recognized by the Student Government Association. Goal #8: * to review and consider making revisions of the Student Government Association constitution.

David Boggs, SGA President

Bookstore announces new hours & return policies

Dear Student,

The Bookstore staff is pleased to welcome you to the Clinch Valley College campus. We hope that we may see you and your family often during the next four years.

The Bookstore is owned and operated by Clinch Valley College and is located on the ground level of Cantrell Hall. Our Bookstore hours are from 8:00 a.m. to 6:30 p.m., Monday thru Thursday and 8:00 a.m. to 4:00 p.m. on Fridays. We are also open for special occasions such as Family Weekend, Graduation, Homecoming, and Placement Testing. We accept personal checks and Visa and Master Card.

From time to time students drop a class or change their schedule. Should a return be necessary, the book must be accompanied by a sales receipt and a drop-add slip.

Full return is allowed for textbooks during the first three weeks of each semester and the first week of summer sessions. Credit cannot be given for new books which have been autographed or marked in any way.

Our primary objective is to provide full service for the entire Clinch Valley College community. In addition to carrying the required textbooks, the Bookstore also has a complete stock of current best sellers, magazines, paper and pen supplies, and imprinted items.

We also have a fine film developing service, and special book orders are accepted daily.

We extend to you our best wishes for a successful first semester at Clinch Valley College.

Sincerely,
The Staff of

Eubanks named Director of Housing & Minority Affairs

Devan Horne
Staff Writer

Mary Eubanks, Housing Director and Director of Minority Student Affairs, says she has a different way of doing things here at CVC.

Originally from Charlottesville, she received her undergraduate degree at Elon College and her Masters at Appalachian State University.

She has been in the housing field for eight years and feels she knows how things should run based on her experience.

"I am concerned about development. People need to prepare for life after graduating high school," Eubanks said.

She says that she has a program geared for all years. For example, Seniors need to be taught different things from Freshmen and so forth.

She says that college should be a new and good learning experience. "Students need to realize that they are women and men instead of boys and girls and take responsibility for their actions"

She is not at all intimidated by the conflicts surrounding last year's Housing Director, Chris Rizzo, such as the controversial housing policy.

"It is something we can work with. Everyone got a space that wanted space, and there is still space available."

As for the new position which was created, Director of Minority Students Affairs, she has worked with this position before with African American and International students. She says that she needs support from students to continue with this program.

"A student's education needs to be not only what they learn in the classroom, but what they do in their lifestyle as well," Eubanks said.

She would like for students to let her know what their interests are. She feels that RA's roles will change and hopes to take CVC to new and different heights. She wants student housing to be called Residence Halls instead of dorms and start beautifying the halls so students will take pride in them.

Campus Shop installs new security system

Karen Hopkins and Chris Crabtree of the Campus Shop demonstrate what could happen to a shoplifter that activates their new security system.

Michelle Napier
Co-Editor

The Campus Shop, CVC's bookstore, has installed a new security system to discourage shoplifting.

Named KNOGA, the system is located at the Campus Shop's exit.

KNOGA is activated by a magnetic target placed on merchandise, similar to the system used in Goody's department stores. After an item is purchased, the target is either deactivated or removed. "I didn't want to do this, but we had a lot of shoplifting last year," Campus

Shop Manager Estella Willis said. Although the exact shrinkage figures are unknown, the numbers may be surprisingly large.

"I didn't want to do this, but we had a lot of shoplifting last year," Campus Shop Manager Estella Willis said.

Although the exact shrinkage figures are unknown, the numbers may be surprisingly large. Willis promises to "strictly enforce" the bookstore's shoplifting policy this year.

If a student is caught attempting to steal merchandise, campus police will be notified and the person will go to Honor Court. Depending on the value of the merchandise, Willis will decide whether the Wise Police are called.

KNOGA is not just for catching criminals, however, it will also protect innocent customers who may be falsely accused of stealing, Willis said.

The Campus Shop also plans to hire an hourly employee to help during their extended hours, Mon.-Fri. 8 a.m. to 6:30 p.m. and Saturdays from 12 p.m. to 4 p.m.

Ramseyer says Cavs are stronger and faster this year

After a successful inaugural season that saw the Cavs "in" every game and hold leads in all but two, Ramseyer insists that being intense, emotional, physically prepared, strong, and knowledgeable are the keys to success.

Commenting on the 1992 Highland Cavaliers, Ramseyer said, "the squad will be faster, stronger, and have more depth than last year."

However, anytime you have one of two classes playing against four classes you have an uneven playing field. It will take a burning desire to excel to succeed in those types of conditions."

Ramseyer has set goals for each of his players. "The first and foremost is to obtain the quality education available here at Clinch Valley. The second priority is for players, as individuals and as a team, to maximize their ability. I remind the players that we can achieve both goals if we are committed to excellence and execution. To do this, we must stay emotional!"

When asked to comment on his first year of Clinch Valley College Football Ramseyer said, "I am still amazed at how quickly we were able to put things together to get on the road in '91. I have been extremely impressed with the initial and continued support from people throughout Southwest Virginia."

"The work ethic of the players is great" Ramseyer continued. "They clearly know the meaning of a good day's work! They're committed, hardworking, and have the burning desire to excel."

Ramseyer says the X's and O's will be much the same as '91.

"We don't want to be known as a passing team or a running team. We want to be a scoring team. We must maintain a good balance to keep the opponents off guard. I maintain that the best blocking and tackling wins the game. We want to win by out-executing" Ramseyer says.

taining the recruiting strength and visibility of CVC. It requires working hard to make new funds for the college, as well. The third goal develops both academic and residential life at CVC. Chancellor Lemons says, "For me that means finding new, better and more ways to help create opportunities for students and faculty members to have interaction outside the classroom." The final goal is to work effectively with the local legislative delegation and helping the general assembly to know and understand the needs of the college.

Chancellor Lemons and his wife are expecting their first child. He says he is very family oriented, including his two canines. He enjoys camping and hiking and considers himself a "semi-retired runner" and an avid sports fan.

One of the most important questions about the future of the college is the General Obligation Bond Referendum which will be on the ballot in November's election. "Passage of that bill is really really important to the future of the college," states Lemons.

Lemons advises freshmen to get involved. "You are only going to get as much out of the Clinch Valley experience as you put into it."

Lemons feels that CVC's potential is unlimited. He comments, "There is a vast region that can be well served by Clinch Valley....I think we can improve our retention rate significantly. I only see the potential for this place becoming better and better."

Lemons would like to improve student life on campus in the future by moving all residential students on campus in permanent housing. He would also like to see students involved in more student organizations. Furthermore, Lemons would like to see the development of a student "Living Room," a lounge where all students, commuters and residents alike, can go to fellowship, mingle, study, or relax.

Dr. Lemons believes that his favorite role as Chancellor will be working with and helping people who care about the college.

Welcome aboard, Dr. Lemons! We hope that the 1992-93 term will be both enjoyable and rewarding for you!
