CVC's new Chancellor, Dr. L.J. Leamos

There are many new faces on campus this semester. One of the newest faces is the interim Chancellor, L. Jay Leamos. Dr. Leamos was appointed as acting Chancellor by UVA's President Casteen after former Chancellor Jim Knight accepted a position at UVA.

Dr. Leamos is originally from a town of 26,000 in the western part of Nebraska, a vast farming and ranching area. Both of his parents were teachers.

Dr. Leamos earned a B.A. in philosophy and a B.S. in Physical Education at Nebraska Wesleyan University in Lincoln, a school of approximately 1600 students. After completing his undergraduate studies, Leamos accepted a position; and at this time, he began working on his Master's Degree. After achieving a Master's Degree, Leamos landed a position at Texas A & M where his duties were mainly concerned with resident life; however, his duties also included student conduct and alcohol and drug addiction. After spending 3 years at Texas A & M, Leamos decided to start on a doctoral degree. He narrowed his college choices and decided on the University of Virginia.

Chancellor Leamos has four goals he would like to accomplish this year. The first one is to get to know the people and the place as well as I can. For me that means trying to be able to match names and faces... Goal number two is to do as much as possible to "maintain the positive momentum at Clinch Valley." This goal also involves main... Holbrook pleads guilty, gets probation

Mandy Holbrook, a 19-year-old CVC student from Clintwood, pleaded guilty to amended charges involving the death of a baby found in her Honors Apartment last spring.

In the plea agreement, Holbrook received a five year suspended sentence for involuntary manslaughter and another five year suspended sentence on felony parental neglect charges.

Holbrook was placed on two years supervised probation and will reimburse the Wise County Sheriff's Office $1,000 for investigation expenses, the agreement said.

On Monday, Holbrook was to begin trial on felony homicide and felony parental child neglect charges with a maximum 30 year prison sentence.

Authorities found a dead mid-term baby boy wrapped in towels in a box under Holbrook's bed in her Honor's Apartment on Feb. 24. The state medical examiner said the baby was born alive on Feb. 24 and died of extreme post-natal neglect.

According to a statement from the Wise County Sheriff's Office and the Commonwealth Attorney's Office, the baby's umbilical cord had not been clamped which would have resulted in a large amount of blood loss.

A message from Wise:

Town officials welcome students

Dear Clinch Valley College Students:

On behalf of Town Council, we take great pride in welcoming you to Clinch Valley College and to the Town of Wise. Whether you are a returning student or a newly enrolled freshman, we are delighted that you have chosen to pursue your college education at CVCC and we extend the warmest of welcomes to both the college campus and to the Town of Wise.

The commitment that you have made to yourselves in seeking to obtain a college education will likely be one of the most important factors affecting your future. We commend you for your willingness to accept the challenges afforded by higher learning. You have a difficult but rewarding task before you. It is our goal to support you in your efforts, and we are confident that the town and the business community will be able to assist you.

Wise County is an area of great scenic beauty, and recreation is a large part of the life of the residents. Visitors to the area enjoy hiking, swimming, fishing, and hunting among many other outdoor activities. In addition, classes in aerobics, Karate, tennis, and many others are offered on a regular basis by various organizations. The business community also provides several sources of entertainment in the form of restaurants, theaters, lounges, and nonprofit groups like Pro-Art bring the beauty and recreation is a large part of the lives of its residents.

Once again, welcome, and please accept our very best wishes for the success we have hoped for you during this transition period, and as you adjust to your new surroundings, we hope that you will always remember that we are here to help.

Sincerely,

Shelley L. Cuffin
Town Manager

SGA President establishes goals

The SGA welcomes new and returning students to the new school year. We wish you the best of luck in the upcoming year. Student government has located needs of our campus; we are confident that the continuation of efforts are being made to improve the quality of life on our campus, and as our newest resident, we are committed that you will find your stay here to be a pleasant and rewarding experience.

One goal is to study, develop, and monitor students understanding of the parking problems, issues, policies, and procedures that relate to transportation on the campus. Goal #6: to establish an improved system of communication on campus. Goal #8: to improve the image of the Student Government Association as the governing body for students and student organizations. Goal #11: to support the Virginia State Bond Referendum by providing assistance that explains the bond referendum and its benefits to Clinch Valley College. Eubanks named Director of Housing & Minority Affairs

Devan Hone
Staff Writer

Mary Eubanks, Housing Director and Director of Minority Student Affairs, says she has a different way of doing things here at CVC.

Originally from Charlottetown, she recently graduated from Elon College and her Majors at Appalachian State University.

She has been in the housing field for eight years and feels she knows how things should run based on her experience.

"I am concerned about development. People need to prepare for life after graduating high school," Eubanks said.

She says that she has a program geared for all years. For example, seniors need to learn different things from freshmen and so forth.

She says that colleges should be a new and good learning experience. "Students need to realize that they are voices and must instead of boys and girls and take responsibility for their actions."

She is not at all intimidated by the students surrounded last year by Housing Director, Chris Grissom, such as the controversial housing policy.

"It is something we can work with. Everyone gets a spot that works space and there is still space available."

As for the new position she was created, Director of Minority Student Affairs, she has worked with this position before with African American and international students. She says that she needs support from students to continue with this program.

"A student's education needs to be not only what they learn in the classroom, but what they learn in their lifestyle as well," Eubanks said.

She would love for students to let her know what their interests are. She feels that RA's roles will change and she needs support from students to continue with this program.

Campus Shop installs new security system

"I didn't want to do this, but we had a lot of shoplifting last year," Campus Shop Manager Estella Willis said.

"Campus Shop installs new security system to discourage shoplifting. Named KNOGA, the system is located at the Campus Shop's exit.

KNOGA is activated by a magnetic target placed on merchandise, similar to the system used in Goodby's department store. After an item is purchased, the target is either deactivated or removed.

Ramseyer says Cavs are stronger and faster this year

After a successful inaugural season that saw the Cavs "in" every game and hold leads in all but two, Ramseyer insists that being intense, emotional, physically prepared, strong, and knowledgeable are the keys to success.

Commenting on the 1992 Hokies and Cavaliers, Ramseyer said, 'the squad will be faster, stronger, and have more depth than last year. However, anytime you have one of two classes playing against four classes you have an uneven playing field. It will take a burning desire to equalize in those types of conditions.'

Ramseyer has set goals for each of his players. The first and foremost is to obtain the quality education available here at Clinch Valley. The second priority is for players, as individuals and as a team, to maximize their ability. I remind the players that we can achieve both goals if we are committed to excellence and execute. To do this, we must stay emotional!

The Cavs line hit the sled to prepare for the '92 season.

Join the Cavalettes, CVC's dance group, perform at all home football and basketball games.
All interested persons should attend an organizational meeting on Wednesday, August 26, at 1 p.m. in Smiddy Hall, Room 100A. Practice will begin on the following day.
For more information, please contact Lesley Scarborough at CVC Box 5854.
Lemons advises freshmen to get involved. "You are only going to get as much out of the Clinch Valley experience as you put into it."

Lemons feels that CVC's potential is unlimited. He comments, "There is a vast region that can be well served by Clinch Valley...I think we can improve our retention rate significantly. I only see the potential for this place becoming better and better."

Lemons would like to improve student life on campus in the future by moving all residential students on campus in permanent housing. He would also like to see students involved in more student organisations. Furthermore, Lemons would like to see the development of a student "Living Room," a lounge where all students, commuters and residents alike, can go to fellowship, mingle, study, or relax.

Dr. Lemons believes that his favorite role as Chancellor will be working with and helping people who care about the college.

Welcome aboard, Dr. Lemons! We hope that the 1992-93 term will be both enjoyable and rewarding for you!
