SGA Presidential Candidates square off in debate

Neil Hopwood
Assistant Editor

SGA presidential candidates gathered Monday in Smiddy Hall in a debate sponsored by The Highland Cavalier to discuss the issues and to take questions from the audience. Wesley Adams, Bryan Bouton, and Joey Carico squared off on issues ranging from their plans to improve on campus life to their ideas on how to make it easier for students to be heard by the SGA. Candidate David Waters did not appear in the debate for unknown reasons.

Debate host Kaii Eaves, editor of The Highland Cavalier, gave the candidates a set time limit for answering her questions. Each candidate was asked to make opening statements.

Wesley Adams opened the debate by laying out his platform. He spoke of the need to establish a student operated radio station, to revise the Honor Court system, to attract businesses to Wise, of improving commuter and campus resident needs, and to attract students to be heard by the SGA. He concluded his opening statements by outlining his six-point plan for CVC. His plan consists of working with the Wise Town Council to bring college-oriented businesses to Wise, of improving commuter’s involvement in CVC activities, of building the proposed athletic complex, of forming a freshmen task force to help them with their problems, of giving residents a place to voice their grievances, and of getting students involved in clubs and student life. He added, “I am currently working to get a Cheers type restaurant into the area. Students need something to do.”

Joey Carico concluded the opening statements by outlining his plan for CVC. His plan consists of working with the Honor Court system, to attract students to be heard by the SGA. He said, “How can we know what the students want if we don’t ask them?”

Upon being asked what motivated him to run for SGA, Mr. Adams cited his “desire to give something back to the school and CVC’s students.” Mr. Bouton believes that “commuters and non-traditional students need a voice,” and that he would be open to all students for their opinions and gripes. Mr. Carico answered “I am already working to get ideas here to CVC as Vice-President. I would continue to actively work for students to find them things to do as President.”

They were also asked about how they would go about making it easier for students to give their input to SGA. Mr. Carico believes that students currently have ways to communicate with the SGA. He cited the SGA’s posting of meeting dates by their office in Cantrell. He also said, “I’m in my office three to four hours a day. Anybody that needs to talk to me or with a SGA representative can, and often does, stop by.” Bryan Bouton said he would stress communication between students as President. He stated, “I will try to get to know everyone and what they wanted. I will go to the lounge in Zehner and talk to people.” Mr. Adams also believes that students have many ways to speak to the SGA. He added, “Students are told in advance of the meetings, but they choose not to attend. I will, however, do all I can to serve communicate with CVC’s students.”

When questioned on what they would propose to bring to campus to improve resident’s lives, all three candidates had ideas. Bryan Bouton believes that the best way to do this would be to bring in professionals to do a series of seminars in the SGA office in advance of meetings, but they choose not to attend. I will, however, do all I can to serve communicate with CVC’s students.”

Jones takes offense at Reams' editorial, defends SGA

My name is Jennifer Gardner and I am a sophomore at U.V.A. Currently I am in my second year serving on the SGA. Last year I was a freshman senator, and this year I am a member of the SGA Presidential Administration. I am writing to address the criticisms made by Reams about the SGA in his recent editorial.

Reams claims that the SGA is a "joke" and that it doesn't represent the student body. This is simply not the case. The SGA is a dedicated group of students who work tirelessly to improve the campus and ensure that students' voices are heard.

Reams criticizes the SGA for not maintaining a "simple version" of the Student Government Act (SGA). He suggests that the SGA is "off its rocker" and "totally false." However, the SGA is not a joke. We are serious about our work and we take our responsibilities seriously.

Reams also suggests that the SGA is "out of control." This is a misrepresentation of our work. The SGA is a democratic organization, and our decisions are made through a system of checks and balances. We take the responsibility of representing the student body very seriously.

Reams' comments are not only inaccurate, but they are also unproductive. Instead of focusing on the issues at hand, he chooses to attack the SGA. This is not productive and it does not help the student body.

I urge students to consider the real issues and to engage in meaningful discussions about how we can improve the campus. The SGA is here to serve the student body, and we are committed to doing so.

Sincerely,
Jennifer Gardner
SGA Secretary

Opinion/Editorial

Monday afternoon I had the great honor of hosting the SGA Presidential Debate. The debate was held in the Boardroom, with each candidate having to speak for 15 minutes. Each candidate was allotted a timekeeper to ensure that they did not go over the allotted time. The candidates were given a set of questions in advance of the debate, and they were able to practice their responses.

The debate was well-attended, with over 100 students in attendance. The candidates were able to express their views on a variety of issues, from parking to the budget. The debate was a great opportunity for students to hear from the candidates and to make an informed decision.

Parking is a major issue on campus, and it is one that we need to address. The SGA has proposed a number of solutions to the parking problem, including the creation of a parking policy and the implementation of a new parking system.

I encourage all students to consider the issue of parking and to get involved in the debate. We need your input as we work to find a solution to the parking problem.

Sincerely,
John R. Frank Jr.
SGA President

Summary of Proposed SGA Constitution

A director and committee of the Board of Trustees was appointed to work on the SGA Constitution and to present it to the Board of Trustees for approval. The director and committee of the Board of Trustees was appointed to work on the SGA Constitution and to present it to the Board of Trustees for approval.

The proposed constitution includes a number of changes to the current SGA Constitution. The new constitution includes a new chapter on the role of the SGA in the decision-making process, and it includes a number of changes to the structure of the SGA. The new constitution also includes a new section on the role of the SGA in the administration of the university.

I encourage all students to read the proposed constitution and to provide feedback. The proposed constitution can be found on the SGA website under the "Proposed Constitution" link.

Sincerely,
Kari M. Eaves

Sheldon's book a finalist for award

Press Release

Clinch Valley College Professor Garrett Sheldon's book, What Would Jesus Do? is a finalist for the Golden Medallion Award, a national award for the best Christian novel of the year.

Sheldon's novel, published in December 1993 by Broadman and Holman, is an updated version of his great grandfather's Christian classic, In His Steps, published in 1896.

A member of the Clinch Valley College faculty since 1982, Professor Sheldon teaches political science, political philosophy, and religion and politics. He has written The Political Philosophy of Thomas Jefferson (John Hopkins University Press, 1991) and is preparing a new edition of The Federalist Papers for Cambridge University Press. In addition, he has lectured at Oxford University, Rutgers University, and Trinity Evangelical Divinity School.

Notice: The next issue of the Highland Cavalier will be the last for the 1993-1994 year. Anything you have to say, say it now!

decide what should be done is to survey those who live here and ask them what they want. He feels, "The students know best what they want. I will be here to hear them." Mr. Adams expressed his desire to start a on-campus radio station, and to bring more bands to the area. Mr. Adams added, "If students get more involved requesting what they want, things will improve. We can't know what they want unless they tell us." Mr. Carico believes he is already trying to improve on-campus life, with his attempts to have a athletic complex built, and the other various activities that the SGA has sponsored, such as the Hollyball party. Mr. Carico said, "This year were beginning what I hope will be a tradition, the Spring Festival in McCravy Field."

Student Aaron Hicks, himself a member of the Honor Court, responded to Mr. Adams' call for an improving of the image of the Honor Court by asking the three candidates what they would do to reform it. Mr. Adams feels that students regard the Honor Court as a joke. He added, "We need to review and revise the student judicial system."

Mr. Carico believes the present Honor Court is effective. He stated, "Those that have been in front of it know that it is very serious. It is not a joke." Mr. Bouton doesn't want to revamp the Honor Court system. "The judicial system may be regarded as a joke, but I wouldn't change anything. The students' view of the court may have to be improved."

Another student asked the candidates what they will do if they are defeated. Mr. Carico said, "You couldn't keep me away from helping the school. I will be here no matter what." Responding similarly, Mr. Bouton replied, "Even if I am not elected, I will be here." Mr. Adams mirrored their sentiments, adding "I will do what I can to help CVC if I am not SGA President."

Elections will be held today in Zehmer Hall and into Thursday in Smiddy Hall. Be sure to get out and give yourself and your student fees a voice.
