Cole elected SGA president, Mullins elected VP

By Aubrey Bowling
Assistant Editor

With the end of April close at hand, it meant only one thing: the Student Government Association (SGA) was holding elections again. After witnessing campaign flyers everywhere, UVA-Wise students voted for who they felt would best represent them for the 2005-2006 school year.

Winning the top position of president was Adam Cole.

"My biggest goal over the summer and the beginning of next year is to have the SGA members get educated," Cole said. "I've planned a retreat to get the new members more experienced so that they'll be better equipped to deal with SGA duties by the start of the year."

Filling out the rest of the top SGA positions are Vice President Cub Mullins, Secretary Ashley Reader, Treasurer Mark McNalley and Senators-at-Large Josh Justice and Emily Phipps.

"With a few open spots to be filled at the beginning of next year, I think this SGA is going to be one of the better ones in recent UVA-Wise history," McNalley said.

Each grade will also be represented individually by class senators. Senior senators are Whitney Antolick, Nick von Tersh and Aaron Cathell. Eric Blackman was elected junior senator. Kayle Cantrell, Chris Davenport and Shawn Fischer were elected as the sophomore senators.

"I think the officers that were elected are very qualified for the positions that they were voted for," Senior Senator Antolick said. "I believe it'll be a great year."

Former Chancellor Lemmons to speak at 2005 graduation

By Aubrey Bowling

Seniors will be busy in the coming days, preparing for graduation.

"I'm really excited to be graduating, but it's a little nerve-racking, too," says Psychology major DeAnne Quintana. "The thought of all of a sudden having to grow up doesn't seem so appealing, but I'm definitely ready to be at a different place in my life."

Upcoming events will celebrate the College's 2005 graduates. First on the calendar is the Alumni Dinner and Awards Convocation on Friday, May 20, at

Ern completes successful year as chancellor

By Aubrey Bowling
Assistant Editor

The 2004-2005 academic year has seen a great deal of progress, which has undoubtedly been due in a very large part to Chancellor Ernest Ern. Ern has, in one short year, led the College successfully through growth and continued change.

The prospect of becoming the interim chancellor of UVA-Wise was appealing to Ern when he was offered the opportunity.

"I knew what the College was up to, knew the personnel, knew what it was about and understood it," Ern said. "The fact that it was UVA-Wise just quickened our response. We love the College and the area."

It is evident that the College has grown significantly within the past year, and Chancellor Ern feels confident in the future of UVA-Wise.

"Since 2000, we've grown over 30 percent," Ern said. "The growth is good because it offers an expanded curriculum. The students have been brighter, and the faculty likes to be challenged. The housing is being addressed and it's becoming a much more rounded experience for students. I have a very firm conviction that the faculty is very strong. This is a very special place that is distinct in its own right... that's right on the cusp of taking off."

Ern has focused on the continued development of the campus, as well.

"We have on the storyboards a major addition to the drama building that will become a fine arts building,"

Interim Chancellor Ernest Ern will soon complete his successful one-year appointment as the College's top official.

Ern said. "We're in the process of major fundraising. The state has made it very clear that they can't do what they once did donation-wise, so it's a public/private endeavor that will make the College more attractive and well-known."

Chancellor Ern's tenure also coincided with a very important landmark in UVA-Wise history: the College's 50th anniversary.

"It [the Anniversary] was superb in every respect," Ern said. "If one could have picked a better year to be here, it couldn't have been a better year for my wife and me."

Ern also saw the events surrounding the anniversary celebration as beneficial to all those involved, as well as the region surrounding the College.

"I hope the College student body appreciates it as much as the community, alumni and faculty did," Ern said. "It brought all the contiguous communities together because it paid dividends. We're doing a lot of things together now for the region." While no new chancellor has been selected for next year as of yet, the search is still progressing.

Students say they will miss Chancellor Ern

By Breanne Dotson

As the year comes to an end, we will look back on the events that have taken place and say goodbye to one special person who has made a great impact on UVA-Wise in one short year. Chancellor Ernest Ern will be leaving at the end of this academic year and will be sorely missed by many of the College's students.

"I think he is well-respected and people look to him for advice and support," said junior Michelle Brady. "He has done amazing things with the school in an amazing amount of time. I feel apprehensive about his departure because of the wonderful job he has done."

College counselor Bradshaw offers stress management advice for students

By Christine Otu
Staff Writer

The semester will end in just a few days, but unfortunately, that means it is time for end-of-semester projects, final papers and, worst of all, final exams. It is hard to get through the last few weeks without stressing, but before the stress becomes so overwhelming that you want to scream and pull all your hair out, relax, because there are simple ways to find relief from stress. Lelia Bradshaw, a College health counselor, has plenty of advice regarding stress management.

Bradshaw says to first prioritize all your activities and avoid procrastination. Keep a schedule and make sure to follow it carefully. Ensuring that you actually finish your work will definitely relieve stress.

Next, take care of your body. Stress affects your body physically and causes your immune system to go down, so do not eat too much and do not avoid eating at all. Also, make time for exercise, and try to get enough sleep, as pulling "all-nighters" is definitely not recommended to relieve stress.

Most importantly, make sure to take breaks from your studies. "Studying is number one," Bradshaw says, "but take some time to have fun." All work and no play can easily cause a work overload.

If students, have any questions about stress management, Bradshaw encourages students to contact her or Jewell Worley at 376-1005.

Nursing dept. receives $50,000 grant from local hospital

By Samantha Huff and Megan Short
Staff Writers

The College's Department of Nursing recently received a $50,000 grant from Wellmont Lonesome Pine Hospital. The College offers not only a two-year degree program for nursing students to receive the title of RN and BSN, but also a four-year degree program for the BSN degree. Students participating in the program now have the option of applying for scholarships that will come from the Wellmont Lonesome Pine Hospital's donation.

Also, the hospital established a scholarship program in 1999 for the College as a way to help students plan a career in health care.

Approximately half of this most recent donation will be used for scholarships for nursing students and the other half will go to departmental needs.

"This is an important investment in the future of Lonesome Pine Hospital and Wise County," explained Lonesome Pine Hospital President Robert G. Polahar. The accredited Wellmont Lonesome Pine Hospital, located in Big Stone Gap, has long been a giver to the College. The hospital provides health care to citizens of Southwest Virginia and Southeast Kentucky.

The Virginia State Board of Nursing has fully accredited the program, which has also been granted unconditional accreditation by the Commission on Collegiate Nursing Education.

Nursing students are encouraged to learn more about this gift and its benefits to the Department of Nursing by talking to Department Chair Associate Professor of Nursing Angela Wilson by e-mail at asw5u@uvawise.edu, in her office in Darden 117, or by phone at 328-0275.

"The applicant pool is growing," Ern said. "As a committee, we have decided not to have a termination date."

Chancellor Ern also said that the committee has "well over 40 solid applicants with more coming in everyday."

So, did Chancellor and Mrs. Ern enjoy their year at UVa-Wise?

"We loved it. My wife and I are going to find it very difficult to leave here in the end of June, but we made a commitment," Ern says. "We've made tons of new friends here too... I loved working with my colleagues. My only regret is that we didn't see so much of the area, but that gives us a reason to come back, too."

Chancellor Ern and his wife plan on returning to retirement to relax and travel once the year is over.

Ern left his retirement last year to move to serve as the College's interim chancellor for one year, as the institution searched for a permanent chancellor. Ern was joined by his wife, Petie, in his move to Wise.

Chancellor and Mrs. Ern are both believed to have been positive influences on UVa-Wise during the College's ongoing changes and development, an opinion echoed by Student Government Association

(SGA) President Jennifer Davis.

"I think his tenure has been a healing factor for the College," Davis said. "He and his wife have been here for only a year and have made a tremendous impact on the College. They will be missed."

Student Tracy Hartley said that it was unfortunate that Chancellor Ern was here at UVa-Wise for only one year but that "hopefully his replacement will continue to make the College a success."

6 p.m. in the Fred B. Greear Gymnasium, featuring Chemistry major Joshua Belcher and Business Administration major Kendall Rainey as student speakers.

At 11 a.m. on Saturday, May 21, the Commencement for graduating seniors will take place on the lawn by the lake. Although the graduates will not be greeted by the sunny smile of NBC's Today Show host Katie Couric (who was originally chosen as the ceremony's keynote speaker), they will be addressed by former UVa-Wise Chancellor Jay Lemmons, who will return to the College, to the pleasure of Chancellor Ernest Ern and others familiar with the influential former chancellor.

"Jay left an indelibly positive imprint on this College," Ern said. "He'll have a strong message to give at graduation. From my perspective, he's a good friend returning to the place that he had a deep impact on."

In addition, student relections during commencement will be presented by History major Julie Yates and Communication and Computer Information Systems double-major Roger Hagy, Jr.

Many graduating seniors are reflecting on their past years here at UVa-Wise. "My mentor and instructors in the English department have given me incredible guidance, for which I am extremely grateful," said English major Sarah Gilliam. "I hope I can exert that same guidance and inspiration on my Governor's School students that I will be teaching this summer."

A large number of degrees will be given to graduates in various fields. The largest field delivering diplomas is Business Administration with 53 majors. In addition, Liberal Arts/Sciences and History each have 32 majors; the Psychology department has 26 majors; Administration of Justice has 24; Accounting has 19; Government has 17; Biology and Communication have 12 majors each; English and Mathematics each have 10; Computer Information Systems has 8; Sociology has 7; Nursing has 5; Chemistry has 4; and Economics and Theatre each have 2 graduates. Finally the Art, Environmental Science, Medical Technology and Spanish fields have one major each.

For many of these UVa-Wise graduates, leaving the College means leaving this area of Virginia.

"I am really going to miss Southwest Virginia and UVa-Wise after graduation," said Liberal Arts and Sciences major Jessica Wood. "This place has been my home for several years now... I came here scared and unsure, and I will leave here the same way. I know that it's time to begin my teaching career, as well as go back home and be with my family."

However, many graduates also welcome the change from college life.

"I have no definite plans and I couldn't ask for more," said Communication major Brad Hall. "Uncertainty is all I have and, for me, that is amazing. My goal is to create a different meaning for my life and the world around me... one that is separate from the institutional structures that we are all used to and know well."

There are also quite a few graduates leaving UVa-Wise with honors. Graduating with the honor of Summa Cum Laude are Amanda Baker, Joyce Brooks, Roger Hagy, Ashley Harris, Angela McAmis, Donna Naffah, Kendall Rainey and Julie Carol Yates. The Magna Cum Laude graduates are Joshua Belcher, Christine Bowen, Isqiah Hamler, Tiffany Lee, Michelle Lewis, Ting Ting Lin, Jaclyn Mullins, Christopher Osborne, Lisa Payne, Shawnda Perkins, William Perkins, Nicole Rhoten, Jessica Smith and Rhonda

Sullivan-Musick. The following students are graduating Cum Laude: Holly Aldridge, Jennifer Bailey, Brittany Blansett, Pamela Burke, Breanne Dotson, Matthew Eades, Amanda Ferguson, Priscilla Fletcher, Marvin Gill, Sabrina Hill, Anya Hobbs, Amanda Holbrook, Debra Honaker, Ashley Hoskins, Larry Huff, Matthew Ison, Jessica Lewis, Jennifer McElroy, Jebra Mullins, Joshua Newberry, Joni Perry, Sascha Pope, Heather Powers, Leslie Ramsey, Danny Rife II, Wendy Russell, H. William Smith, Sherry Smith, Nakeisha Talley, Dustin Ware and Charles Wills.

For more information about graduation, visit the UVa-Wise Commencement Ceremony's website at <http://www.uvawise.edu/commencement/index.html>, or contact Diane Cornett, the Chair of the Commencement Committee, by e-mail at dec3g@uvawise.edu or by phone at 328-0285.

Konami's 'Enthusia' to rival Gran Turismo's realism

Enthusia Professional Racing
Publisher: Konami
Console: PS2
Genre: Racing

A racing game exclusive to the Playstation 2 console, Enthusia presents some interesting new concepts for the racing genre. Offering a variety of cars ranging from classic vintage models to the most modern, players will find a lot of replay value in the game. Konami even took the time to calculate the physics of each and every vehicle to have the cars drive as realistically as they look on screen, the graphics for the game being of a high quality that seem to rival the breathtaking spectacle that is Gran Turismo. There is a complicated point structure in place that essentially awards players for doing a good job on races in both speed and technique. If a player manages to crash into every single other car on the road but still manages to make it over the finish line first, he or she is awarded less points, for example, than an exemplary player who finishes close to last but drove professionally throughout the race.

The mode that will no doubt be the one many players will find themselves gravitating to the most will be what is called "Life Career" Mode. Players will assume the role of a low-ranked driver and, by winning races and utilizing the complex point system to their advantage, will try to rise into the first rank. Cars also go through "levels" in this mode, so that, when the player rises in rank, his or her car will gain improvements, as well. With its unique point-awarding system and career mode, Enthusia Professional Racing will be a game for racing fans to keep an eye on as its release date approaches.

Konami will soon release the Playstation 2-exclusive racing game, Enthusia Professional Racing, in which players can engage in a "life career" mode and can earn points via a complex reward system. The graphics will undoubtedly rival those of Sony's Gran Turismo racing simulation series.

Still Life is an adventure game that has you stepping into the shoes of FBI agent Victoria McPherson, who is investigating the murders of at least five prostitutes by an unknown serial killer. Players will be required to talk to other characters (some of whom will respond differently to Victoria depending on the way you approach them), take photos and gather clues, including forensic evidence. Tools that can be utilized in the investigation include a black-light filter and luminol to uncover hidden blood stains. The atmosphere and graphics of the game are very dark, fitting in with Still Life's story, and some of the murder scenes can be hard for the faint of heart or weak of stomach. In a rather interesting concept, certain items will cause Victoria to "flash-back" to the Prague of the 1920s, where players will then assume the role of her grandfather as he is investigating a series of prostitute murders that seems eerily similar to the case Victoria is working on. For fans of mystery and gritty horror, Still Life offers much for mature gamers to look into.

"Baseball is a family tradition and without it, I might not have had the chance to go to college. I love baseball because of the constant competition and my desire to win."

Plans after college

"I would love to have the opportunity to play baseball after college, but if not, my plans are to teach physical education and coach baseball. If things don't work out this year, I will not give up on my dream to play pro baseball; I will go to try-out camps and explore my options."

College baseball career:

"My favorite moment of my UVA-Wise baseball career was my freshman year when I hit a solo homerun against Montreat College in the seventh inning that put us in first place in the conference. We won the game by one run and I got the win pitching that game. It was the only time since I have been here that we have swept Montreat. I want to say thank you to my pitching coach Doug Bates for everything he has done."

Lady Cavs tie with Tenn. Wesleyan for AAC title

By Danielle Benton and Daniel Leehy
Staff Writer and Sports Editor

As warmer months approach, the end of softball season winds down to the last few games. The Lady Cavalier softball team competed for the first place title in this season of upsets.

"It's exciting to have the privilege to be part of such a driven team," said senior Kendall Rainey.

The final double-header for the Lady Cavaliers was scheduled for Friday, April 29, at home against Montreat College, but it was rained out. The scrappy team from Montreat cannot be taken lightly and would have given the Lady Cavs a run for their money in their battle atop the conference with Tennessee Wesleyan College for the conference title. Due to the rainout, the decision was made that no more games would be played, marking the end of the regular season.

The Lady Cavs, therefore, are AAC co-champions with Tennessee Wesleyan College.

Another conference championship for the Lady Cavaliers means the word "dynasty" can now be applied to UVA-Wise softball, which is when a team wins three titles. Seniors Nichole Poore and Kendall Rainey will have participated on each of those three winning teams, in the years 2002, 2004 and 2005. "We're anxious to get number three under our belt so that we can continue to further the success of the program," Rainey said.

The Lady Cavaliers will start the conference tournament today, Wednesday, May 4, at White Top Creek Park in Bristol, Tenn. The team also receives an automatic bid to the regional tournament, which will take place on May 11 and 12.
