"A Midsummer Night's Dream" in October

By Allana Barrett
Editor-in-Chief

For the first time ever one of Shakespeare's plays will be performed here at UVa-Wise. The play is a comical exploration of the child-like actions of the young lovers, the production takes place on a set consisting of a 12-foot-tall rocking horse, giant jack in the box, blocks and puzzle pieces. The costumes also reflect the childlike qualities of the characters. The actors are clothed as if they are children playing dress-up with their friends. Through the lens of child's play, the play's director Michael McNulty and designer Jonathan Jones creates a comedic tale of love and magic. This play has a "more dimensional concept" than most plays we've done," McNulty said. McNulty said he hopes the audience will be engaged by it and that the action will be able to maintain the strength of the work they've done while preparing for this play.

College growing, construction planned across campus

By Allana Barrett, Bill Sproles, & Miranda Bradley
Staff Writers

The number of students attending the college continues to increase, room for all of them is starting to run low. Because of the number of students, the college is going to get an expansion. There are already several plans in motion to make this campus large enough to house all students, and to improve on existing structures that have degraded over the years. It seems like the college is growing too quickly, however it is not thought that it will become too large. "There's really nowhere else that we can go..." said the college's president and founder of the Black Student Union, Dr. Gretchen Martin, "everyone's best friend."

Black Student Union plans for future

By Jarren M. Poers
Staff Writer

The Black Student Union was welcomed last semester by UVa-Wise as one of the college's newest student organizations. "It's important to the college's newest student organizations," Campbell said. "And, awareness is increasingly important on this campus since ethically diverse students are outnumbered and their voices are overlooked," said Freesman Campbell, president and founder of the Black Student Union. "It's important to the college community, not only the college's newest student organizations," Campbell said. "We don't want people to think because it's the Black Student Union you have to be black to join, we want everybody to be involved." The idea for the Black Student Union started with a comment from a fellow student, Campbell said. After researching similar groups at other schools and adapting constitutions to fit the guidelines here at UVa-Wise, the organization was presented to the Student Government Association and approved.

T he university of Virginia's College at Wise

OCTOBER 27, 2006

VOLUME 58, NUMBER 4

"A Midsummer Night's Dream" includes Craig Riee, Wendy Adrian, Adrian Herman, Mary Rose Albright, Kelly Cresca-Jones, Marta Jones, Jenniferattempt, Mark McGeheeg, Matt Carter, Jesse Lensm, Steven Mattison, Joel Ermany, Sarah Islmth, Jode Olliing, Sellee Rondall, Eddy Winkl and Tiffany Yorvan.

Construction of the giant play-room set for "A Midsummer Night's Dream" includes a 12-foot-tall rocking horse, a giant jack-in-the-box, large jacks, and other various playhouses.

On a mission: Taylor travels the globe

By Aaron Collier
Staff Writer

Ohio.

That is how Kelsey Taylor is sitting on a church bench after a recent Sunday morning service at her local church. From the outside Taylor looks like any normal person would after a church service: patiently waiting on her family to decide where to go out to eat. On her lap, there would have once guessed that this quiet young lady has seen things few hand that most Americans only hear about. Things where hope is on its last legs and poverty is everyone’s best friend. For the last two years Taylor, a sophomore at UVa-Wise, See MISSION, page 4
OPINION

The Daily Progress

OCTOBER 27, 2006

From the Editor's Desk

I Can't Get No

By Edmund Campbell

CAMPUSS & LIFESTYLE

OCTOBER 27, 2006

Hank III: Crazed, Country Rebel

By Alanna Barrett

Editor-in-Chief

A very intense and controversial artist, the grandson of country legend Hank Williams Sr. is a live to perform. Depths ripping up every rock and roll fan's heart, Hank III's first single of country music has been waiting for your listening. Despite his new look, he is still maintaining his endearing country style (that cannot be easily or unnoticeably changed).

Conclusion from page 1

From friends to family, offense matures

BROTHERS FROM PAGE 2

That machine gun to close one another and become a more cohesive unit.

"I love my relationship with the guys," said junior running back Rafael Morgan, "and we're all on the same team. We have all been through a lot together, and I think that's what makes us so strong."

"I think waiting for that moment, the last snap, and then the final whistle, and then getting paid that price, which is the price of the game," she said.

"I love my relationship with the guys," said junior running back Rafael Morgan, "and we're all on the same team. We have all been through a lot together, and I think that's what makes us so strong."

"I think waiting for that moment, the last snap, and then the final whistle, and then getting paid that price, which is the price of the game," she said.

"I love my relationship with the guys," said junior running back Rafael Morgan, "and we're all on the same team. We have all been through a lot together, and I think that's what makes us so strong."

"I think waiting for that moment, the last snap, and then the final whistle, and then getting paid that price, which is the price of the game," she said.

"I love my relationship with the guys," said junior running back Rafael Morgan, "and we're all on the same team. We have all been through a lot together, and I think that's what makes us so strong."

"I think waiting for that moment, the last snap, and then the final whistle, and then getting paid that price, which is the price of the game," she said.

"I love my relationship with the guys," said junior running back Rafael Morgan, "and we're all on the same team. We have all been through a lot together, and I think that's what makes us so strong."

"I think waiting for that moment, the last snap, and then the final whistle, and then getting paid that price, which is the price of the game," she said.

"I love my relationship with the guys," said junior running back Rafael Morgan, "and we're all on the same team. We have all been through a lot together, and I think that's what makes us so strong."

"I think waiting for that moment, the last snap, and then the final whistle, and then getting paid that price, which is the price of the game," she said.

"I love my relationship with the guys," said junior running back Rafael Morgan, "and we're all on the same team. We have all been through a lot together, and I think that's what makes us so strong."

"I think waiting for that moment, the last snap, and then the final whistle, and then getting paid that price, which is the price of the game," she said.

"I love my relationship with the guys," said junior running back Rafael Morgan, "and we're all on the same team. We have all been through a lot together, and I think that's what makes us so strong."

"I think waiting for that moment, the last snap, and then the final whistle, and then getting paid that price, which is the price of the game," she said.

"I love my relationship with the guys," said junior running back Rafael Morgan, "and we're all on the same team. We have all been through a lot together, and I think that's what makes us so strong."

"I think waiting for that moment, the last snap, and then the final whistle, and then getting paid that price, which is the price of the game," she said.

"I love my relationship with the guys," said junior running back Rafael Morgan, "and we're all on the same team. We have all been through a lot together, and I think that's what makes us so strong."

"I think waiting for that moment, the last snap, and then the final whistle, and then getting paid that price, which is the price of the game," she said.

"I love my relationship with the guys," said junior running back Rafael Morgan, "and we're all on the same team. We have all been through a lot together, and I think that's what makes us so strong."

"I think waiting for that moment, the last snap, and then the final whistle, and then getting paid that price, which is the price of the game," she said.

"I love my relationship with the guys," said junior running back Rafael Morgan, "and we're all on the same team. We have all been through a lot together, and I think that's what makes us so strong."

"I think waiting for that moment, the last snap, and then the final whistle, and then getting paid that price, which is the price of the game," she said.

"I love my relationship with the guys," said junior running back Rafael Morgan, "and we're all on the same team. We have all been through a lot together, and I think that's what makes us so strong."

"I think waiting for that moment, the last snap, and then the final whistle, and then getting paid that price, which is the price of the game," she said.

"I love my relationship with the guys," said junior running back Rafael Morgan, "and we're all on the same team. We have all been through a lot together, and I think that's what makes us so strong."

"I think waiting for that moment, the last snap, and then the final whistle, and then getting paid that price, which is the price of the game," she said.

"I love my relationship with the guys," said junior running back Rafael Morgan, "and we're all on the same team. We have all been through a lot together, and I think that's what makes us so strong."

"I think waiting for that moment, the last snap, and then the final whistle, and then getting paid that price, which is the price of the game," she said.

"I love my relationship with the guys," said junior running back Rafael Morgan, "and we're all on the same team. We have all been through a lot together, and I think that's what makes us so strong."

"I think waiting for that moment, the last snap, and then the final whistle, and then getting paid that price, which is the price of the game," she said.

"I love my relationship with the guys," said junior running back Rafael Morgan, "and we're all on the same team. We have all been through a lot together, and I think that's what makes us so strong."

"I think waiting for that moment, the last snap, and then the final whistle, and then getting paid that price, which is the price of the game," she said.

"I love my relationship with the guys," said junior running back Rafael Morgan, "and we're all on the same team. We have all been through a lot together, and I think that's what makes us so strong."

"I think waiting for that moment, the last snap, and then the final whistle, and then getting paid that price, which is the price of the game," she said.

"I love my relationship with the guys," said junior running back Rafael Morgan, "and we're all on the same team. We have all been through a lot together, and I think that's what makes us so strong."

"I think waiting for that moment, the last snap, and then the final whistle, and then getting paid that price, which is the price of the game," she said.

"I love my relationship with the guys," said junior running back Rafael Morgan, "and we're all on the same team. We have all been through a lot together, and I think that's what makes us so strong."

"I think waiting for that moment, the last snap, and then the final whistle, and then getting paid that price, which is the price of the game," she said.

"I love my relationship with the guys," said junior running back Rafael Morgan, "and we're all on the same team. We have all been through a lot together, and I think that's what makes us so strong."

"I think waiting for that moment, the last snap, and then the final whistle, and then getting paid that price, which is the price of the game," she said.

"I love my relationship with the guys," said junior running back Rafael Morgan, "and we're all on the same team. We have all been through a lot together, and I think that's what makes us so strong."

"I think waiting for that moment, the last snap, and then the final whistle, and then getting paid that price, which is the price of the game," she said.

"I love my relationship with the guys," said junior running back Rafael Morgan, "and we're all on the same team. We have all been through a lot together, and I think that's what makes us so strong."

"I think waiting for that moment, the last snap, and then the final whistle, and then getting paid that price, which is the price of the game," she said.

"I love my relationship with the guys," said junior running back Rafael Morgan, "and we're all on the same team. We have all been through a lot together, and I think that's what makes us so strong."

"I think waiting for that moment, the last snap, and then the final whistle, and then getting paid that price, which is the price of the game," she said.

"I love my relationship with the guys," said junior running back Rafael Morgan, "and we're all on the same team. We have all been through a lot together, and I think that's what makes us so strong."

"I think waiting for that moment, the last snap, and then the final whistle, and then getting paid that price, which is the price of the game," she said.

"I love my relationship with the guys," said junior running back Rafael Morgan, "and we're all on the same team. We have all been through a lot together, and I think that's what makes us so strong."

"I think waiting for that moment, the last snap, and then the final whistle, and then getting paid that price, which is the price of the game," she said.

"I love my relationship with the guys," said junior running back Rafael Morgan, "and we're all on the same team. We have all been through a lot together, and I think that's what makes us so strong."

"I think waiting for that moment, the last snap, and then the final whistle, and then getting paid that price, which is the price of the game," she said.
From the Sidelines

Miami Brawl: Why Should We Care?

Unless you live under a rock (or simply don’t get ESPN), you’ve probably seen footage from the massive brawl between the University of Miami’s and Florida International University’s football teams that took place on Oct. 14. When I say massive, I mean massive.

This was not a simple fight between a couple of players. It was a battle Royale involving all occupants of both sidelines. While watching the replay, I felt like I was watching a WWE match. I was just waiting for someone to get a chair and hit the head or someone else to do a drop off the goal post.

Honestly, though, that isn’t far from the actual events that occurred.

One Miami player actually removed his helmet and encircled the other him with his arms. Another was seen stepping on the feet of players while the fight was still going on.

Probably the most despicable action was when a FIU season actually started punching the Miami kicker. Now that’s just plain evil. It isn’t even the same color of garbage, you just don’t do it.

After the fight a few times on television and on the internet, I honestly wondered what would happen if such a thing occurred here on our campus.

For the record, we don’t have a specific policy on that," said Bruce Wexner, head football coach. "I’m not teaching anything that happened...we make some pretty stiff penalties.

I was glad to hear Beaw say that the penalties would be, "...

It seems like Miami did the exact opposite of that when they decided to suspend only one player indefinitely and...I’m not sure what else they did.

But as Wexner said, "You’d like to say, ‘Hey, that couldn’t happen here.’”

Now I’m not implying, nor is Wasem, that something like this would happen on our field, but anything is possible. If one of your athletes would lose control, it’s human nature to want to help and protect that person as best as possible. It’s possible that some situations would be justified or that you should be punished.”

Let’s look at this from a few different angles. A fight breaks out, everyone’s emotions are heightened, you’re doing nothing more than defending your teammates.

Now imagine you’re a small boy sitting in the bleachers. You have looked up to the players on the field all year and consider them role models. You latch as one of those kids standing up as hard as he can on the head of another player.

You’re a mother at home listening to the game on the radio. Your son is a starter on the team. You hear the announcer say how your son just caught another player with a right.

You’re one of the number one high school prospects in Virginia. You were seriously considering coming to Wise. That is until you read in the newspaper about the fight and how the school did so-so-to-disrespect the players.

You decide to go to George Mason instead. Right?

Right?

Wait, I was glad to hear Wasem say that the penalties would be...

...not sure what else they did.

But as Wexner said, "You’d like to say, ‘Hey, that couldn’t happen here.’”

Now I’m not implying, nor is Wasem, that something like this would happen on our field, but anything is possible. If one of your athletes would lose control, it’s human nature to want to help and protect that person as best as possible. It’s possible that some situations would be justified or that you should be punished.”

Let’s look at this from a few different angles. A fight breaks out, everyone’s emotions are heightened, you’re doing nothing more than defending your teammates.

Now imagine you’re a small boy sitting in the bleachers. You have looked up to the players on the field all year and consider them role models. You latch on to one of the number one high school prospects in Virginia. You were seriously considering coming to Wise. That is until you read in the newspaper about the fight and how the school did so-so-to-disrespect the players.

You decide to go to George Mason instead. Right?

Right?

Wait, I was glad to hear Wasem say that the penalties would be...

...not sure what else they did.

But as Wexner said, "You’d like to say, ‘Hey, that couldn’t happen here.’”

Now I’m not implying, nor is Wasem, that something like this would happen on our field, but anything is possible. If one of your athletes would lose control, it’s human nature to want to help and protect that person as best as possible. It’s possible that some situations would be justified or that you should be punished.”

Let’s look at this from a few different angles. A fight breaks out, everyone’s emotions are heightened, you’re doing nothing more than defending your teammates.

Now imagine you’re a small boy sitting in the bleachers. You have looked up to the players on the field all year and consider them role models. You latch on to one of the number one high school prospects in Virginia. You were seriously considering coming to Wise. That is until you read in the newspaper about the fight and how the school did so-so-to-disrespect the players.

You decide to go to George Mason instead. Right?

Right?

Wait, I was glad to hear Wasem say that the penalties would be...

...not sure what else they did.

But as Wexner said, "You’d like to say, ‘Hey, that couldn’t happen here.’”

Now I’m not implying, nor is Wasem, that something like this would happen on our field, but anything is possible. If one of your athletes would lose control, it’s human nature to want to help and protect that person as best as possible. It’s possible that some situations would be justified or that you should be punished.”

Let’s look at this from a few different angles. A fight breaks out, everyone’s emotions are heightened, you’re doing nothing more than defending your teammates.

Now imagine you’re a small boy sitting in the bleachers. You have looked up to the players on the field all year and consider them role models. You latch on to one of the number one high school prospects in Virginia. You were seriously considering coming to Wise. That is until you read in the newspaper about the fight and how the school did so-so-to-disrespect the players.

You decide to go to George Mason instead. Right?

Right?

Wait, I was glad to hear Wasem say that the penalties would be...

...not sure what else they did.

But as Wexner said, "You’d like to say, ‘Hey, that couldn’t happen here.’”

Now I’m not implying, nor is Wasem, that something like this would happen on our field, but anything is possible. If one of your athletes would lose control, it’s human nature to want to help and protect that person as best as possible. It’s possible that some situations would be justified or that you should be punished.”

Let’s look at this from a few different angles. A fight breaks out, everyone’s emotions are heightened, you’re doing nothing more than defending your teammates.

Now imagine you’re a small boy sitting in the bleachers. You have looked up to the players on the field all year and consider them role models. You latch on to one of the number one high school prospects in Virginia. You were seriously considering coming to Wise. That is until you read in the newspaper about the fight and how the school did so-so-to-disrespect the players.

You decide to go to George Mason instead. Right?

Right?