

Inside

Colder weather has arrived on campus, and you will need plans for snow days. See pages 3 and 4 for more information.

The Muppets are back in their first new film in 12 years. Read the review of Kermit the Frog and Miss Piggy and their live counterparts Jason Segel and Amy Adams on page 3.

The Cavs football team won a national prize on CBS from Geico for 'The Play.' Check out the story on page 6.

Upcoming

Final Exams

Next week is the last week of regularly scheduled classes. Exams will begin on Dec. 12.

Men's Basketball

The men's basketball team is looking to turn the corner tomorrow in Kentucky. Check out the story on page 6.

Women's Basketball

The women's basketball team has struggled early in the season. See what the Cavs need to do to improve on page 5.

Weather

Friday

62°F / 33°F

Saturday

67°F / 37°F

Sunday

66°F / 45°F

Weather courtesy of www.weather.com

Index

news	page 2
columns	page 3
opinion	page 4
sports	page 6

Winter weather returns to campus

Jessica Shartouny | The Highland Cavalier

Students make their way to classes on Tuesday, as snow begins to fall on campus. There was no accumulation and the college remained open.

Study abroad options abound

By Hayley Galloway
Online Editor
hmg4v@uvawise.edu

Imagine arriving in a country where the native language is not your own, and the culture is completely different from your's.

Exchange students in the UVa-Wise International Program experienced just this in August upon their arrival to campus.

Alix Mas is originally from Vanves, France. She has been in the U.S. at UVa-Wise for just over three months studying biology and already has had many memorable experiences.

"It is really exciting because it is a once-in-a-lifetime experience," Mas said. "[UVa-Wise] is small enough to know the teachers but big enough to get to know lots of different people."

Even with new friends and new experiences, attending college in a new country is no easy task, Mas said.

"The interactions between people are different...it's a different way of thinking," she said. "The boundaries are different and it's hard sometimes because you don't know how to behave and you don't want to make a mistake."

Mas said that the campuses in the U.S.

are much different from those in France.

"Campus life is much more intense here," she said. "In France it is not as involved. Everything is off campus in Europe."

Mas began her study abroad program with an organization called International Student Exchange Programs, one of the four routes a student interested in studying abroad can take.

UVa-Wise International Programs Director Witold Wolny said ISEP pairs U.S. and foreign schools to create financially stable study packages. Students from Wise pay tuition for one of the 350 available foreign schools, while a student from the foreign university pays. The two students then "switch places."

Students may also study abroad with one of the sister universities with which UVa-Wise is connected.

Students pay the tuition for Wise and attend transferable classes at a foreign university. The majority of students interested in studying abroad choose this path for their experiences, Wolny said.

Study abroad providers are an additional route students can take to study outside of the country.

"Providers are organizations that prepare everything prior to the arrival of the student," Wolny said. "These agencies are very protective of the students, but the costs are not paid to Wise, they are paid to the agency."

The final branch of the study abroad program at UVa-Wise is Semester at Sea, where students are given the opportunity to go on a cruise around the world to many different countries with professors from renowned colleges, Wolny said.

The price tag for this path is on the higher end, so the program offers work-study options to qualified students to even out the costs.

The UVa-Wise International Program also offers short trips over winter, fall and spring breaks, as well as during the summer. Faculty and students travel to other countries for one to three weeks.

"[Short trips] are a great way for students who are not comfortable on their own," Wolny said. "The short trips planned for the coming year include adventures to France, Scotland, Italy, India and Germany."

see Exchange, page 5

Survey explores study habits

By Sara Guaglione
The (University of Virginia) Cavalier Daily, via UWire

Undergraduate engineering students study more than students of any other major, while business and social sciences students put in the least number of hours, according to a study released in November by the National Survey of Student Engagement.

The average full-time undergraduate student studies 15 hours per week, the report found. The study was based on responses from freshman and senior undergraduate students from 683 U.S. and 68 Canadian institutions in 2011.

Engineering majors study 19 hours per week on average, the study found.

Alex McCormick, NSSE director and co-author of the study, said engineering has a "reputation of being a pretty demanding major."

Twenty-two percent of engineering majors surveyed often go to class without completing all of their assignments, however.

McCormick offered two explanations for this trend.

"They're just overwhelmed — even at this high level of studying they can't get everything done," he said. "Or they are behaving strategically, [thinking], 'I'm just going to do the stuff I know I need to do to fulfill the requirements to be prepared for class.'"

The study found that business and social sciences majors study 14 hours per week, one hour fewer than faculty expected for business majors and four hours fewer for social sciences majors.

Business majors also work 16 hours per week, according to the study.

McCormick said differences in study habits are significantly based on the field in question.

"Students who study more learn more, so the fact that we observe pretty considerable differences among disciplines in how many hours a week they study is important for higher education," he said.

McCormick said the information should still be taken in context.

see Habits, page 3

SCHEV suggests money-for-grad plan

By Sara Guaglione
The (University of Virginia) Cavalier Daily, via UWire

The State Council of Higher Education for Virginia released recommendations to the state on Nov. 14, asking for financial incentives for public colleges and universities to increase enrollment.

The council made the recommendations in accordance with the state's Higher Education Opportunity Act, which was passed earlier this year and aims to increase degree production by 100,000 throughout the next 15 years.

The act established the Higher Education Advisory Committee to review current policies on higher education and make recommendations to the council, which then makes recommendations to Gov. Bob McDonnell to improve and restructure higher education in Virginia.

Under the council's recommendations, four-year schools would receive $2,800 in

see Budget, page 3

News Briefs

'11 alum takes job in SSC

The Slemp Student Center's new assistant director of student activities and outdoor recreation is a recent graduate of the college.

Sarah Smith, a 2011 graduate in business administration, will advise SAB, run the outdoor recreation program and be the point person for clubs and organizations.

"UVA-Wise gave me so much as a student that I jumped at the opportunity to come back and, more importantly, give back," Smith said. "This place is definitely a second home to me."

Smith was president of SAB during her senior year and served as student representative on the College Board.

"I'm looking forward to working with students; the most and helping them have the same opportunities and experiences that I had when I was here," she said. "I think it definitely helps that I'm a former student and even more so that I was so immersed in student life at UVA-Wise in general."

Smith said that being a recent graduate will help her connect better with what students are interested in.

"I feel like I have a pretty good grasp on what students are looking for," she said.

- Jordan Fifer

VPA Concerts scheduled

The Visual and Performing Arts Department is set to host three concerts in the next week showcasing a variety of instruments, singers and talents.

The first concert, on Dec. 6, is set to include several of the school's choirs. On Dec. 8, the department will hold a chamber music concert, including the clarinet choir, Quintessential Winds and string ensemble. All of the college's ensembles will gather to perform at the Holiday Festival of the Arts on Dec. 13.

Each concert is at 7:30 p.m. in the Gilliam Center for the Arts and is free.

- Jordan Fifer

Alumnus Harding visits campus

Jordan Fifer | The Highland Cavalier

Judy Harding, a 1976 graduate of what was then Clinch Valley College, speaks Wednesday in the Chapel of All Faiths as part of the first Alumni Lecture Series. Harding retired two years ago after holding several upper-level management positions for companies in the oil and gas industries. She spoke to more than 60 people about the importance of perseverance and the support she gained attending school in Wise.

Comm. department to be short on faculty

By Jordan Fifer
Editor-in-Chief
jif3u@uvawise.edu

The Department of Communication Studies will see one instructor resign and the chair offer a reduced class schedule as part of staffing changes set to occur in the spring semester.

Jessica Compton, a teaching fellow in business and professional communication, will resign at the end of this semester, said Rachel Tighe, associate professor of communication and chair of the department.

Tighe said only that Compton was resigning for "personal reasons." Compton did not immediately respond to an emailed request for comment.

Compton's departure will come as Tighe works a half-time schedule to seek treatment for malignant and resistant hypertension, Tighe said.

"My plan for next semester is to spend time getting control of this condition and seeking additional medical treatment possibly outside of our immediate area," the chair said.

Tighe will teach senior seminar, internship in communication, and communication practicum but has canceled her other classes.

Alternate courses are being offered for graduating seniors who need the canceled classes, and most of Compton's classes have been reassigned to other adjunct faculty members outside the department, Tighe said.

The changes will leave Gillian Huang-Tiller as the only full-time Communication Studies professor.

The department is still searching for a replacement for former Assistant Professor Michael McGill, who left in the spring for Pikeville College.

"We have a very strong program and very strong faculty and instructors," Tighe said. "I feel confident that all will go smoothly next semester in spite of a slight reduction in courses and faculty."

gay (gā) 1. there once was a time when all "gay" meant was "happy." then it meant "homosexual." now, people are saying "that's so gay" to mean dumb and stupid, which is pretty insulting to gay people (and we don't mean the "happy" people). 2. so please, knock it off. 3. go to ThinkB4YouSpeak.com

Review: 'Muppets' does not disappoint

By Jimmy Geurts
The (University of South Florida) Oracle, via UWire

In an unusually promising Thanksgiving weekend for family films that also included Martin Scorsese's "Hugo" and Aardman Animation's "Arthur Christmas," the new "The Muppets" revived the famed franchise from a long cinematic absence.

The movie, scripted by "Forgetting Sarah Marshall" collaborators Jason Segel and Nicholas Stoller, has been credited in some circles as a redefinition of the Muppets. Others, including original Muppeteer Frank Oz, have claimed it doesn't honor the spirit of Jim Henson's characters.

The truth is somewhere in between: "The Muppets" doesn't reinvent the wheel, but it combines hyper-aware popculture references with the overall heart of Henson's creations to make another likable installment in the series.

The film introduces a new Muppet, everyman Walter (Peter Linz), who grew up idolizing "The Muppet Show" in Smalltown, USA. So when his human brother Gary (Segel) leaves for Hollywood on an anniversary trip with his girlfriend Mary (Amy Adams), Walter relishes the opportunity to come along and visit the Muppet Studio.

Yet when the trio arrives, the studio is in abandoned disarray and businessman Tex Richman (Chris Cooper) has set his sights on it to drill for oil. In order to save the studio, Walter and Gary seek out Kermit the Frog and then, ultimately, the entire Muppet ensemble.

In these early moments, the film quickly establishes a super-self-aware tone about popculture, the Muppets and itself. This may not come as a surprise to audiences who've previously seen the film's trailers parodying "The Girl with the Dragon Tattoo" or "The Hangover: Part II."

Some of these jokes, such as the first name in Kermit's Rolodex being Jimmy Carter or non sequitur references to Dom DeLuise, are on "The Muppet Show" are puppy fat. The movie may direct its attention on itself a little too often and obviously, but this can possibly be attributed to the childhood audience who can only take so much subtlety.

The decision to have the Muppets sing Starship's "We Built this City," however, is a questionable one for all ages.

"Flight of the Conchords" star Bret McKenzie helped write the film's handful of original songs, which range from the funny ballad "Man or Muppet" to the too-short Adams and Miss Piggy duet "Me Party." Frequent "Flight of the Conchords" director James Bobin makes his cinematic debut here, probably helping to bring in the talented comedic cast along with Segel and Stoller.

"The Muppets" greatly benefits from its connection to the modern comedy world, including cameos from stand-up comics such as Kristen Schaal, Sarah Silverman, Eddie Pepitone and Donald Glover. If these comedians seem out of place in a family-friendly film, one only needs to remember Richard Pryor's appearance in "The Muppet Movie."

Then there's the question of whether or not "The Muppets" does justice to the other Muppets movies and television series. Oz turned down working on the film and said to Metro: "I wasn't happy with the script. I don't think they respected the characters. But I don't want to go on about it like a sourpuss and hurt the movie."

Yet for all its modern pop culture references, the film essentially has the same sweet spirit Henson's characters started out with. Kermit still speaks with the same sad, thoughtful creases of his face and it comes together with a message of togetherness and community.

The film even briefly seems ready to close

The Muppets are back in a new movie for the first time in 12 years. The film features such stars as Mickey Rooney, Neil Patrick Harris and Zach Galifianakis.

on the same affecting note as the conclusion of "Be Kind Rewind," before opting out for an easier ending. However, it shows enough emotion and sincerity for Oz's concerns to be unfounded.

A Muppet film lives and dies largely on its humor, its music and its celebrity cameos. "The Muppets" mostly succeeds in all three marks, and shows some enterprise in bringing in some of modern comedy's brightest stars and — without ruining anything — a few well-chosen cameos.

It doesn't redefine what a Muppet film means, but rather serves as an affectionate tribute to the ones that came before it.

5 things students think about Snow Days

Compiled by Cameron Parsons, managing editor

1. The best snow days are the ones that come when you least expect them.
2. Despite the best efforts of the world's top scientists, it is still virtually impossible to do school work on a snow day.
3. No matter how badly you need a snow day, it will only come when you least expect it.
4. Snow days are miracles that give students a free day to waste however they want, usually by sledding, skiing and having snowball fights.
5. Because of recent problems with snowfall, the number of snow days has been reduced, so we need to help our teachers.

Exchange

Continued from page 1

Wolny said many students aren't aware of the study abroad options that exist. He encourages students to explore the potential.

"It is always exciting to see how students have changed, to see them with all these questions and insecurities and then they come back and it is a life changing experience," Wolny said. "How many clichés, prejudices and ideas have changed about countries and themselves...they are prepared to conquer the world."

Mas also encourages students to take advantage of the international programs available on campus.

"Try hard and don't ever, ever give up," she said. "It is really worth it after you work so hard to get to where you're going."

Steps to Studying Abroad

- Go to the International Programs office in Darden 105 to fill out an interest form. A minimum GPA of 2.75 is required. Freshmen are not allowed to study abroad but they are encouraged to plan for future semesters.

- Complete the application form and contact your adviser to plan courses that will transfer back to UVA-Wise.

- Visit and plan with financial aid; fill out the scholarship application; get two recommendations, transcripts and complete an essay.

- Contact the sister university to ensure all plans and preparations have been made.

Habits

Continued from page 1

"The number of hours you spend a week studying isn't the only part of an effective educational experience," he said. "It matters how productively [students] spend that time ... [The study] is valuable for starting some conversation about what the expectations are for our students and how we hold them accountable for rising to meet those expectations." But faculty may be surprised to see how little time students spend studying per week, McCormick said.

"There's always been a rule of thumb that they should be studying two hours for every hour of class, but [the study] shows that students are studying about one-to-one," he said.

Budget

Continued from page 1

the first year of the budget and $3,000 in the second year for each in-state student accounting for enrollment growth. The resolution specifies that the council does not set a threshold of degree completion to be eligible for such incentives.

McDonnell will refer to the council's recommendations as the new budget is formulated in January, when the General Assembly reconvenes.

"The General Assembly will take this and decide how to actually implement it in terms of funding higher education," said Jim Alessio, the council's director of higher education restructuring and author of the resolution.

Whether or not these recommendations are applied to the new budget depends on multiple factors, such as the state's revenue, how much the state needs to spend and how to allocate the funds to every agency in the state, Alessio said.

"It's hard to say exactly how [the General Assembly] will handle that," he said. "They have some big decisions on their hands."

The Student Government Association presents...

The annual Holly Ball dance will be held on Dec. 9 from 10 p.m. - 2 a.m. on the fifth floor of the Slemp Student Center. Students must present their Cava Card in order to be admitted to the dance. Each student is permitted to bring one guest who is not a UVA-Wise student. Happy Holidays from the SGA.

News Briefs

11 alum takes job in SSC

The Slomp Student Center's newest assistant-director of student activities and outdoor recreation is a recent graduate of the college.

Sarah Smith, a 2011 graduate in business administration, will advise SAB, run the outdoor recreation program and be the point-person for clubs and organizations.

"UVA-Wise gave me so much as a student that I jumped at the opportunity to come back and, more importantly, give back," Smith said. "This place is definitely a second home to me."

Smith was president of SAB during her senior year and served as student representative on the College Board.

"I'm looking forward to working with students the most and helping them have the same opportunities and experiences that I had when I was here," she said. "I think it definitely helps that I'm a former student and even more so that I was so immersed in student life at UVA-Wise in general."

Smith said that being a recent graduate will help her connect better with what students are interested in.

"I feel like I have a pretty good grasp on what students are looking for," she said.

Jordan Fifer

VPAR Concerts scheduled

The Visual and Performing Arts Department is set to host three concerts in the next week showcasing a variety of instruments, singers and talents.

The first concert, on Dec. 6, is set to include several of the school's choirs. On Dec. 8, the department will hold a chamber music concert, including the clarinet choir, Quintessential Winds and string ensemble. All of the college's ensembles will gather to perform at the Holiday Festival of the Arts on Dec. 13.

Each concert is at 7:30 p.m. in the Gilliam Center for the Arts and is free.

Jordan Fifer

Alumnus Harding visits campus

Jordan Fifer | The Highland Cavalier

Judy Harding, a 1976 graduate of what was then Clinch Valley College, speaks Wednesday in the Chapel of All Faiths as part of the first Alumni Lecture Series. Harding retired two years ago after holding several upper-level management positions for companies in the oil and gas industries. She spoke to more than 60 people about the importance of perseverance and the support she gained attending school in Wise.

Comm. department to be short on faculty

By Jordan Fifer
Editor-in-Chief
jif3u@uvawise.edu

The Department of Communication Studies will see one instructor resign and the chair offer a reduced class schedule as part of staffing changes set to occur in the spring semester.

Jessica Compton, a teaching fellow in business and professional communication, will resign at the end of this semester, said Rachel Tighe, associate professor of communication and chair of the department.

Tighe said only that Compton was resigning for "personal reasons." Compton did not immediately respond to an emailed request for comment.

Compton's departure will come as Tighe works a half-time schedule to seek treatment for malignant and resistant hypertension, Tighe said.

"My plan for next semester is to spend time getting control of this condition and seeking additional medical treatment possibly outside of our immediate area," the chair said.

Tighe will teach senior seminar, internship in communication, and communication practicum but has canceled her other classes.

Alternate courses are being offered for graduating seniors who need the canceled classes, and most of Compton's classes have been reassigned to other adjunct faculty members outside the department, Tighe said.

The changes will leave Gillian Huang-Tiller as the only full-time Communication Studies professor.

The department is still searching for a replacement for former Assistant Professor Michael McGill, who left in the spring for Pikeville College.

"We have a very strong program and very strong faculty and instructors," Tighe said. "I feel confident that all will go smoothly next semester in spite of a slight reduction in courses and faculty."

gay (gā) 1. there once was a time when all "gay" meant was "happy." then it meant "homosexual." now, people are saying "that's so gay" to mean dumb and stupid, which is pretty insulting to gay people (and we don't mean the "happy" people). 2. so please, knock it off. 3. go to ThinkB4YouSpeak.com

Review: 'Muppets' does not disappoint

By Jimmy Geurts
The (University of South Florida) Oracle, via UWire

In an unusually promising Thanksgiving weekend for family films that also included Martin Scorsese's "Hugo" and Aardman Animation's "Arthur Christmas," the new "The Muppets" revived the famed franchise from a long cinematic absence.

The movie, scripted by "Forgetting Sarah Marshall" collaborators Jason Segel and Nicholas Stoller, has been credited in some circles as a redefinition of the Muppets. Others, including original Muppeteer Frank Oz, have claimed it doesn't honor the spirit of Jim Henson's characters.

The truth is somewhere in between: "The Muppets" doesn't reinvent the wheel, but it combines hyper-aware popculture references with the overall heart of Henson's creations to make another likable installment in the series.

The film introduces a new Muppet, everyman Walter (Peter Linz), who grew up idolizing "The Muppet Show" in Smalltown, USA. So when his human brother Gary (Segel) leaves for Hollywood on an anniversary trip with his girlfriend Mary (Amy Adams), Walter relishes the opportunity to come along and visit the Muppet Studio.

Yet when the trio arrives, the studio is in abandoned disarray and businessman Tex Richman (Chris Cooper) has set his sights on it to drill for oil. In order to save the studio, Walter and Gary seek out Kermit the Frog and then, ultimately, the entire Muppet ensemble.

In these early moments, the film quickly establishes a super-self-aware tone about popculture, the Muppets and itself. This may not come as a surprise to audiences who've previously seen the film's trailers parodying "The Girl with the Dragon Tattoo" or "The Hangover: Part II."

Some of these jokes, such as the first name in Kermit's Rolodex being Jimmy Carter or non sequitur references to Dom DeLuise, are funny. The movie may direct its aimment on itself a little too often and obviously, but this can possibly be attributed to the childhood audience who can only take so much subtlety.

The decision to have the Muppets sing Starship's "We Built this City," however, is a questionable one for all ages.

"Flight of the Conchords" star Bret McKenzie helped write the film's handful of original songs, which range from the funny ballad "Man or Muppet" to the too-short Adams and Miss Piggy duet "Me Party." Frequent "Flight of the Conchords" director James Bobin makes his cinematic debut here, probably helping to bring in the talented comedic cast along with Segel and Stoller.

"The Muppets" greatly benefits from its connection to the modern comedy world, including cameos from stand-up comics such as Kristen Schaal, Sarah Silverman, Eddie Peitone and Donald Glover. If these comedians seem out of place in a family-friendly film, one only needs to remember Richard Pryor's appearance in "The Muppet Movie."

Then there's the question of whether or not "The Muppets" does justice to the other Muppets movies and television series. Oz turned down working on the film and said to Metro: "I wasn't happy with the script. I don't think they respected the characters. But I don't want to go on about it like a sourpuss and hurt the movie."

Yet for all its modern pop culture references, the film essentially has the same sweet spirit Henson's characters started out with. Kermit still speaks with the same sad, thoughtful creases of his face and it comes together with a message of togetherness and community.

The film even briefly seems ready to close

The Muppets are back in a new movie for the first time in 12 years. The film features such stars as Micky Rooney, Neil Patrick Harris and Zach Galifianakis.

on the same affecting note as the conclusion of "Be Kind Rewind," before opting out for an easier ending. However, it shows enough emotion and sincerity for Oz's concerns to be unfounded.

A Muppet film lives and dies largely on its humor, its music and its celebrity cameos. "The Muppets" mostly succeeds in all three marks, and shows some enterprise in bringing in some of modern comedy's brightest stars and — without ruining anything — a few well-chosen cameos.

It doesn't redefine what a Muppet film means, but rather serves as an affectionate tribute to the ones that came before it.

5 things students think about Snow Days

Compiled by Cameron Parsons, managing editor

1. The best amount of snow should result in the most amount of snowball fights and empty sidewalks.

2. Despite the best efforts of the world's top scientists, it is still virtually impossible to do school work on a snow day.

3. No matter how hard you need a snow day, one will only come when you least expect it.

4. Snow days are miracles that give students a free day to waste however they want, usually by sledding, skiing and having snowball fights.

5. Because of recent problems with enrollment, the number of snow days isn't enough to help and improve awareness days to help and improve enrollment.

Exchange

Continued from page 1

Wolny said many students aren't aware of the study abroad options that exist. He encourages students to explore the potential.

"It is always exciting to see how students have changed, to see them with all these questions and insecurities and then they come back and it is a life changing experience," Wolny said. "How many clichés, prejudices and ideas have changed about countries and themselves... they are prepared to conquer the world."

Mas also encourages students to take advantage of the international programs available on campus.

"Try hard and don't ever, ever give up," she said. "It is really worth it after you work so hard to get to where you're going."

Steps to Studying Abroad

- Go to the International Programs office in Darden 105 to fill out an interest form. A minimum GPA of 2.75 is required. Freshmen are not allowed to study abroad but they are encouraged to plan for future semesters.

- Complete the application form and contact your adviser to plan courses that will transfer back to UVA-Wise.

- Visit and plan with financial aid; fill out the scholarship application; get two recommendations, transcripts and complete an essay.

- Contact the sister university to ensure all plans and preparations have been made.

Habits

Continued from page 1

"The number of hours you spend a week studying isn't the only part of an effective educational experience," he said. "It matters how productively [students] spend that time ... [The study] is valuable for starting some conversation about what the expectations are for our students and how we hold them accountable for rising to meet those expectations." But faculty may be surprised to see how little time students spend studying per week, McCormick said.

"There's always been a rule of thumb that they should be studying two hours for every hour of class, but [the study] shows that students are studying about one-to-one," he said.

Budget

Continued from page 1

the first year of the budget and $3,000 in the second year for each in-state student accounting for enrollment growth. The resolution specifies that the council does not set a threshold of degree-completion to be eligible for such incentives.

McDonnell will refer to the council's recommendations as the new budget is formulated in January, when the General Assembly reconvenes.

"The General Assembly will take this and decide how to actually implement it in terms of funding higher education," said Jim Alessio, the council's director of higher education restructuring and author of the resolution.

Whether or not these recommendations are applied to the new budget depends on multiple factors, such as the state's revenue, how much the state needs to spend and how to allocate the funds to every agency in the state, Alessio said.

"It's hard to say exactly how [the General Assembly] will handle that," he said. "They have some big decisions on their hands."

The Student Government Association presents...

The annual Holly Ball dance will be held on Dec. 9, from 10 p.m. - 2 a.m. on the fifth floor of the Slomp Student Center. Students must present their Cava card in order to be admitted to the dance. Each student is permitted to bring one guest who is not a UVA-Wise student. Happy Holidays from the SGA.

Residence Life has wrong mindset

By Todd Galyean
Opinion Editor
mtg7h@uvawise.edu

During homecoming, the Office of Housing and Residence Life initiated increased and excessively invasive rounds in an attempt to catch underage students who had been drinking on campus.

This was not a one-time occurrence; the department will be participating in this same act on nights of dances and when alerted to large parties off campus.

Residence Life says their goal is not to get residents in trouble, but this isn't true. Yes, they have the law on their side, and the housing agreement plainly states that drinking is prohibited in certain residence halls, underage drinking is prohibited and that the campus practices the "your body is a container" policy. There is no argument that these are rules and if students participate in underage drinking they are open to sanctions.

What I disagree with is that the department is going out looking for students who are breaking the rules. Charging students is an unfortunate part of their jobs, but should only be utilized when absolutely necessary. There is no way looking for opportunities to charge students can be the intended purpose of their job. Discipline is a component of their position, not the entirety.

Unfortunately, because of these developments, residents have begun to mistrust Residence Life officials and loathe living on campus. Some students even intend to move off campus at the end of the year.

This detestation does not solely stem from overly-vehement enforcement of the alcohol policy. Students have begun to feel they are walking on a minefield in all areas. At every turn, a communication report can be written for the smallest of infractions, like Residence Life is trying to fill a quota.

Interestingly, it is not solely residents who are unhappy with this change in direction. Several RAs, who wished to remain unnamed for fear of losing their jobs, have expressed discontent with the department, saying the intensity in Residence Life has increased unnecessarily, with the professional staff micromanaging RAs to find regulation violations. These RAs do not want their goal to be to "catch" their residents, for they are no different than any other student except for a position.

Unfortunately, these RAs have already sensed a rift growing between themselves and residents, as they are now being labeled as an enemy. RAs want to make residence life as enjoyable as possible, disciplining residents only when necessary, and not be thought of as an authority figure to fear. Living on campus undoubtedly has many benefits: classrooms in short walking distance, the large number of activities and just the general campus atmosphere. Yet these benefits pale when confronted with excessive discipline. Residence Life's mission has swayed off the intended path.

Residents are not asking for free reign to do whatever they please, but instead are asking that they be able to live in an environment where writing students up is not the primary goal.

Editor's Note: Editor-in-Chief Jordan Fifer and Copy Editor Jessica Shartouny are resident advisers employed by the Office of Housing and Residence Life. They edited this article for style, punctuation and grammar, but did not change content or tone.

Campus Window Om nom nom nom!

(from left) Bridget Kargbo, Zack Holcomb, Briana Jamison and Vanessa Chirinos decorate gingerbread man cookies at the SGA Winter Spirits event Tuesday in the Stemp Student Center.
Jessica Shartouny | The Highland Cavalier

Speech needs limits

By Jimmy Dingess
Staff Writer
jtd7q@uvawise.edu

The recent incident that occurred between a Kansas teenager and Kansas Gov. Sam Brownback highlights the effects that one message to a social networking site can have.

High school senior Emma Sullivan tweeted, "Just made mean comments at gov. brownback and told him he sucked, in person #theblowsalot." The message drew a large amount of backlash from the governor's office and Sullivan's school ordered that she send Brownback an apology.

This behavior from the Kansas government and Sullivan's school undermines the ideas of freedom of speech in social media.

Freedom of speech is one subject that can, and should, be limited by the government. However, the cases where speech should be restricted only include when the security of the nation or other people is threatened. We can all agree on that, and that these situations rarely happen.

What occurred between Sullivan and Brownback is a case where freedom of speech must be upheld. Sullivan had every right to post the false statement on Twitter, but the Internet is known for its inaccuracy.

When something is posted on social networking sites that doesn't threaten either of the two previous premises, it should not be censored.

Freedom of speech is a double-edged sword, though. Being loose-lipped on social sites may not be against the law, but the personal effects of being outspoken when posting can be more severe than an apology.

Poll: Snow Day Activities

"I am going sleighing on Hanson Hill, until I get hurt." - Jenny Flanery, freshman pre-physical therapy major

"I am going to make hot chocolate and watch Christmas movies all day with my girlfriend." - Ryan Nibbery, junior music major

"I am going to sleep and play Skyrim all day." - Michael Roark, junior psychology and history major

"When I get the email, I am going to go to the store for my daily supplies and then I am going to town." - Matt Blake, sophomore business major

"I am going to sleep in really late! Stay in the snow, no sleighing, and then make some hot cocoa." - Dinksey Womack, sophomore accounting major

The Highland Cavalier is the official student newspaper of The University of Virginia's College at Wise. The newspaper is published weekly on Fridays. It functions to inform, educate and entertain readers accurately and responsibly. It does not necessarily reflect the opinions of the college's administration, faculty or staff. Also, the opinions expressed on the Opinion Page are those of the individual writers and do not necessarily reflect the opinions of newspaper editors and staff members.

The Highland Cavalier welcomes all contributions, which can be delivered to the Editor-in-Chief Jordan Fifer in person (317 Stemp Student Center), by standard mail (Campus Box 4682, The University of Virginia's College at Wise, 1 College Avenue, Wise, VA 24293), by phone (332-0170), or via e-mail (highlandcavalier@uvawise.edu).

Letters to the editor can also be e-mailed to Opinion Editor Todd Galyean (highlandcavalier@uvawise.edu). All letters to the editor must be signed — including the writer's department or major, address and telephone number. Letters may be edited for length, grammar, clarity and libel.

Editorial Board
Jordan Fifer
Cameron Parsons
Jordan Childress
Jessica Shartouny
Todd Galyean
Hayley Galloway

Staff Writers
Tara Cuffee
James Dingess
Talia Elliott
Corey Sanchez
Charlie Fugate
Ashley Hall
Taylor Herndon
Kristin Foley
Artemis Greer

Mike Sill
Staff Adviser

Women still learning system

By Jordan Childress
Sports Editor
jso6x@uvawise.edu

The Cavalier women's basketball team finished a four-game span over the last two weeks that resulted in zero wins, despite their exemplary start to the season.

On Nov. 19 the Cavs faced off against the Bears from Shawnee State. The nationally-ranked Bears jumped out to a huge lead early in the game with a 27-13 swing.

Senior guard Ayla Young scored six of the Cavs' 13 points, and junior forward Chelsea Cluesman cut the score to 15 with a layup.

The Cavs found themselves down 48-26 at halftime. Bear sophomore guard Alannah Sheets led her team with 16 points at halftime, while Young led the Cavs with eight.

In the second half, the Cavs started to play a little more aggressively but couldn't get any shots to fall. Cluesman kept working hard down low and scored 13 second-half points while grabbing eight rebounds. She finished the night leading Cav scorers with 18 points. Sheets led all scorers with 24 points.

The Bears relied on 3-pointers for most of their scoring, shooting 38 percent behind the line.

"I think, defensively, we just wasn't there tonight," said Head Coach Abby Hearn. "When we took away the three-point shot, they beat us down low."

The Cavs fell 83-57 to the Bears. On Nov. 21 the Cavs faced nationally-ranked Georgetown College Tigers. Both teams struggled with shooting from the floor, but the Cavs trailed 35-21 at halftime. Tigers sophomore guard Andrea Howard led all scorers with nine points.

Senior forwards Kristen Mullins and Chelsea McNamee, and senior guard Amber Carter led the Cavs with six points each.

Mullins led all scorers in the second half with 10 points for the Cavs, but it wasn't enough, as the Cavs fell short in the hard-fought game 67-53.

The Cavs' downfall seemed to be caused by a lack of second chance points, leading the Tigers to outscore the Cavs 19-4 in that category.

Tiger freshman forward Dev King led the way for her team by scoring 16 points, grabbing a game-high 15 rebounds, 10 of which were offensive. Howard also finished the night with 16 points for the Tigers, while Carter finished with 10 points.

Jordan Fifer | The Highland Cavalier
Senior guard Amber Carter (20) drives past Shawnee State defenders in a Nov. 19 loss to the Bears.

The Tigers grabbed 57 rebounds in the game, including 23 offensive, and shot 29 percent. "I believe boxing-out and rebounding wins you games, and that was the main difference tonight," said Hearn.

The Cavs traveled to Lynchburg on Nov. 22 to face off against NCAA Division I foe Liberty University in an exhibition game. Wise struggled once again, scoring 18 points and shooting 26 percent from the court in the first half.

Kristen Mullins led the Cavs with 10 points. Junior guard Charlotte Reasor scored a season-high nine points for herself. Senior guard Danika Dale filled out the stat sheet for the Liberty Flames with 13 points, seven rebounds and four assists.

The Flames won the game 82-39. Wise faced Limestone College at home on Nov. 26.

The Saints took the phrase "defense wins championships" to heart, forcing 36 Cav turnovers en route to a 71-55 win. The Cavs got off to a quick start, jumping out to a 16-5 lead in the first nine minutes of play with the help of Amber Carter, but the Saints answered right back with a run of 27-12.

Going into halftime, the Cavs found themselves down 32-28. The Saints forced the Cavs into 20 first-half turnovers, but only shot 30 percent. The second half saw the Saints build up a 20 point lead, too much for the Cavs to overcome.

Saints junior guard Maria Young led all scorers with 25 points. Chelsea Cluesman headed the Cavs with 15 points and 14 points.

The Cavs started the season with two wins, but have lost the last six games.

The women's team plans to travel to Cumberland in Williamsburg, Ky. tomorrow for a 2 p.m. tipoff and to Pippa Passes, Ky. on Dec. 6 for a 6 p.m. match against Alice Lloyd College.

(At left) Senior guard Amber Carter (20) and freshman guard Katie Jo Laster (34) listen to Head Coach Abby Hearn during a timeout.

(Right) Sophomore guard Darius Smith (2) drives to the basket against two Shawnee State Bears in a 74-68 win on Nov. 19.
Photos by Jordan Fifer | The Highland Cavalier

Games of the Week

Green Bay Packers @ New York Giants

The race for the playoffs heats up Sunday as the Giants host the undefeated Packers.

Green Bay enters this week coming off of 11 days of rest after defeating Detroit on Thanksgiving. New York comes in licking its wounds after getting thrashed in New Orleans.

MVP candidate Aaron Rodgers leads the Packers' fourth-ranked offense, which has been nothing short of unstoppable this season. Rodgers has a host of play-makers to whom to spread the ball, including receivers Greg Jennings and Jordy Nelson.

The No. 30 Green Bay defense has established a "bend but not break" mentality.

Despite this ranking, the Packers have a league-leading 22 interceptions. Charles Woodson heads the team with six picks. Eli Manning leads offense for New York, which ranks fourth in passing but last in rushing.

The Giants will rely heavily on receivers Victor Cruz and Hakeem Nicks to expose a weak Packer secondary. New York will be without key starter Ahmad Bradshaw.

The Giants' No. 27-ranked defense has given up 93 points in the last three games, all of which were losses. The lone bright spot for the defense is its pass rush, ranking sixth in sacks with 31. Jason Pierre-Paul is the team's leader in sacks with 10.5.

The Packers won last season's meeting with Green Bay 45-17, and lead the all-time series 30-23-2.

FOX's Joe Buck and Troy Aikman will have the call live from MetLife Stadium at 4:15 p.m. on Sunday.

Clemson Tigers vs. Virginia Tech Hokies

It's the first weekend in December, so that means conference championship week in college football.

The battle for the Atlantic Coast Conference is on, when No. 5 Virginia Tech battles No. 21 Clemson in Charlotte on Saturday Night.

These teams met back on Oct. 1 in Blacksburg, with the Tigers crushing the Hokies 23-3.

Since then, Virginia Tech has gone undefeated, while Clemson enters the ACC Championship Game losing three of their last four games.

Redshirt sophomore quarterback Logan Thomas has led the Hokies' offense attack passing for 2,525 yards and 18 touchdowns, while also rushing for 10 touchdowns. Running back David Wilson is also a key component for this offense, rushing for nearly 1,600 yards and scoring nine touchdowns.

Virginia Tech's defense is 15th in the nation when it comes to allowing points. Redshirt sophomore safety Antione Exum leads the team in tackles with 75 while defensive end J.R. Collins leads the team with six sacks.

The Tigers' offense is led by redshirt sophomore quarterback Tajh Boyd, who has passed for 3,338 yards and 28 touchdowns. Freshman receiver Sammy Watkins will be a key target, already having 10 touchdowns.

The Clemson defense has only given up 47 in the fourth quarter. Safety Rashard Hall leads the squad with 73 tackles, and defensive end Andre Branch has a team leading 10.5 sacks.

Clemson leads the all-time series 17-12-1.

ESPN's Brent Musburger and Kirk Herbstreit will have the call from Bank of America Stadium at 8 p.m.

By Corey Sanchez
Staff Writer
cs6ty@uvawise.edu

Upcoming Games

Basketball

The Highland Gwaler men's basketul teami Is aettohtml to Unhwstty of the Cumberlands tomorrow for a 4 p.in. matchup. The Gavs also to travel to Fumun UnhraiBHy Tiwedaynlightfbra? pmUpoff.

WWonMn'8 Baakotball

The. women's basr ketbal team plans to tavel to Unlversl^ of tie Cumberlandstomonrowfor a 2 p.m. Opoft. The team will ateo travel toAkeUoyd College Tuesday fbr a 6 p.m. mafcihiip.

Quick Hits

W Jordan re- ^ cords trlple- dou>le
Sentor foimrd Josh Jordan recorded hb first coleglate triple-double on Nov. 28 jn a 7647 overfime win. over \Arghila Unlvershy of Lynchburg. Jordan acored 25 points, 17 rebounds, and10bkKk&

WCaxfiftonoiiBd liy Mld«outh infoottMII awards

Several Gavaler football players were rooc^jnlzad 'thdr play on the fieU this year. Players vrtwi earned A1 Md-Sotith East First Team honors were senkx; running back Stewart Robertson, sophomotB wMe receiver MdMI Steele, senfor: lbielbacker Amondre Johnson and sentor defensive back Marcus Bratton. Three other players vrfw earned honorable mentfon were klesker sophomore Paul Melshen, Junkjr punter Dean Hogan and sophomore d ^ - slve Ineman VitMsr hlckey.

By Jordan Childress
Sports Editor
.jsc6x@uvawise.edu

UVa-Wise was showcased on national television after winning the izoii Oeico Play of Uie Year on Friday Noy.'25. The award was announced during Uie CBS Sports broadcast of "Oeico Prefntns Best of College RXXIMU 2011." . Throughout die season, Oeko pkked sevCndipUys college football games and put the videos on Facebook, where dtey vran voted onby fans.

.USii.Wlso was iionlmitd after junior defensive back Maicus Btotton who cho8e;biBed on»die ptays' degree of dlffhcultjr, game-whming; implication Senior forward Josh Jordm (33) goes up for a shot against ttw Qeorgetown College Tigers In a Nov. 21 match Inwhioh the Cavs fell 64^78. Jordan'ceinblnedtor48|H)liitoand<grabt>ed>36relK>un^^ In t>ie Cavs' homestand.

Jordan leads Cavs in winning direction

.By Jfoidan Childress
Sports Editor
.jsc6x@uvawise:edn

The men's basketball team improved their record to .3-4 for the season after vyinning two of three games in the last two weeks.

On Nov. 19 the Cavs faced the Shawnee State Bears in the first Mid-South Conference game.of the season.

The Gavs. grabbed the tip and senioT forward Josh Joidan scetved'the first three poinUi for the Cavs aa their way to an early 9-4 lead A 3.-pointer by freshman giurdT^IM- Qarrisoi gave the Cavs a 13-point lead.

A five^point swing by Bears junior roiwaid.%ter Mwgan pulled the Bears within five points, and free throws iby junior fixward Maik Bryant cut the Cavs' leadto33-30.

At halitime the^Cavs led 38^32, with senior guards Travis Berry and Morris Oaskins leading tte Cavs at 10 points each andi Bryant leading tiw Beav wiUi 12point8.

Beny opened the second half with back-to-back 3Tpoineis to give the'Cavs a 48-40 lead. Two free throws by sopbo-' more Comer Andrew Devlin belpedftbe Bears.puU within two points.

The G^vs and Bears went back and forth Uiroughont Uie second^ half, but freshman guard* Tyler Oarrison sealed a win^for the Cavs with two flee throws,t6: put up a hard-fought 74^iwin.

The Bears out-rebounded the Cavs 55-39, but the Cavs shooting just under 50percent from the court made up for a lack of reboundpoints.

'I tink everybody pUyed well today," said Oaskins. "We had a couple steals and we hit a lot of three-balls tonight wfaicli gave us some momentum."

Beny led the way for the Cavs, scoring a'gaiiie-high'24 points.

"It was the first conference game and it's aibiggame for.us," said Beny. "I knew I hadito come ontandlplay hard."

On Nov. 21 ttie Cavs played the nationally-ranked Oeorgetown College Ti-geis.

The first half saw dw Cavs and Tigers exchange<poinls, but the Cavs pulled ahead 39i-31 going into halfflane. Senior jguard Jerfionne Hannlton led the Tigers with nii^prants and sophomore guard Daritis: ^Siialdi led the Cavs witti eight pink

The Cays cntttie Tigers' leadio duee immediafely ii) the second half with a basket by Oaskins after a great pass from Sinidi. Atidie 12:32 marktie Tigeisstart-edltbipiill^away from the Cavsby forcing several turnovers aiid started to j^y. a zme defense widi ^ c b the Gavsstruggled

"Were gobig to face diat a lot." said Head Coach Lee Clark. "We struggle sbooting il'from die periintttr."

TheHgers juuqied out to a 68r44'lead and the zone (tefense caused the Cavstogo eight.minutes wid»ut a goal. A 3^poinler by Oairison broke the scoreless streak, but'the Cavs ultimately fell 54r75.

JlinioT guard Russ Middleton and Hamillon led the Tigers in scoring with 14 points. Jordan and senior guard Jeimaine Wright headed die Cavs widi a combined 21 points and 18 rebouddsj

On Nov. 28 die Cavs used stellar play in oveitime andiaitiple-dbubble from Josh Jordan to band the Dtagpns of Vhginia University of Lyncbbuig a 76-67' over-timelossi.

JcHddh had die best night of his.Cavs career,'with 25 points, 17reboundsand 10 bk>cks;:setting career highs in alliduee cafegtffies.

"I knew I n«s: going to come out and perform," saidJordkni 'I just never diought about atriideKtobble:"

Janian Hfer| The Highland Oivilier

The teams traded shots ihiongbont die first bah'.

Wise went into the locker room at ballUme leading the Dragons 29-26L Jordan had 12 points and ninereboundsat baliume to lead die Cavs. The Dragons showed equal eflbrt from Darius Echols and Rondell Dews, who combinedfor 15 of die EHagons' 26 fiist-half points.

Most of. the action happened in the second half. The Cavs led untU Uie last coMrie minutes of riay, ,when di? Diag-:bii8.juiliip^;)iil iiii a smlt with iiiiM pointe by die 7-foot tall Egor Sbakmetor. The Cavs found themselves down two pdnts with 23 seconds remaining in die game.

Darius Smith.took the in-bounds pass coast-to^coast and drew a foul. Smith made both flee throws to lie the game at 65'aiid'sendit inlp overtime.

. The Cavs outplayed the Dragons 14-2 inovertime.

Nonis Oaskins also had a great night, scoring 17 points and grabbing 12 rebounds. Smith scored 13 points, including eight rebounds and six assists. Echcds led the way for the Dragons with 14 points, andi Dewshad11 points and 11 rebounds. The Dragons outscored the Cavs inibench scoring % 30-2, but it wasn't enough to win.

Clark was pleased widi die adjustments histeam made to earn the oyeitlme win.

"We jri^yed flat most of die night;" said Clark.."The guys really reached down there ui the last four minutes of regulation."

The Cavst are set to travel to Williamsburg, k^ KMnonowiin a4 p.m.'game again^ University, d' die Qiiid-eiIands, and will face KCAA Divisoa I FUman University on Dec. 6 fw a 7 p.m. matchi

'^ Wrigitt come out of nowhere to oiteh Uie boll and took it die rest pf tiw way for.atoucdown,seolingibe. iC^vs'33'-iJblwin over the Waspsi

Only, eight nominees mtule the sibw. Tlii'Cavs were set against var loBs NCAA^Divison I powerhouses, such as West Virginia, Arkansas and Matt yeams national champion' An-

Ktoe uan 300,000 votes were tolliedtto determine diefinalists.The- winner was detennlied'by.a group of CBS SpottS college football experts,

. ThhawMdUoneofUwWgfeStwott'bythecoUege's^^a^